House Approves Farm Support Bill

Tax Hike Feared . . .

Marvel Stalls Budget Work

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Legislative Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings Thursday virtually imposed a moratorium on his committee's development of the state's operational budget for 1975-76.

Fearful that the committee's decisions may be leading the state toward increased sales and income tax rates, Marvel instructed its fiscal staff to furnish "alternatives" to major recommendations already made by the senators.

Those alternatives would be designed to reduce the appropriations decisions.

Session Adjourned

Marvel also sought and received a motion to adjourn the committee's Thursday meeting without reaching any further decisions on budget proposals.

The committee had been scheduled to complete its operational budget decisions this week.

No committee member objected to Marvel's decision to delay further action on the budget document.

Marvel told his colleagues he had considered "retiring as chairman" rather than accept what could be a sharply increased budget which, together with legislative floor decisions, could lead to a 15% personal income tax rate and a 3% state sales tax rate.

Legislature stories on Pages 6, 7

Current state tax rates are 10% on personal income and 2½% on sales. Gov. J. James Exon's budget proposals would fit within the 13% income tax rate he has proposed for this year, retroactive to Jan. 1.

$360 Million Level

If the committee stays close to its fiscal staff recommendations on the remaining state agencies whose budgets have not yet been determined, Marvel said, its state tax appropriations recommendations could reach $360 million.

A $20 million addition for spending measures pending on the floor of the Legislature could hike that total to $380 million, a figure which would trigger 15% and 3% tax rates, he said.

Exon has proposed appropriations of about $342 million, according to fiscal staff estimates.

(Totals include $8.9 million in deficit spending for the current fiscal year.)

State tax appropriations for the current year were $305 million.

Refuses To 'Buy' It

Pointing to the projected $380 million figure, Marvel said: "I'm not willing to let that go . . I refuse to buy a $380 million or $390 million budget."

Committee decisions thus far include $230.7 million for operational expenses of all but seven state agencies. But those seven include the University of Nebraska, state colleges and technical community colleges, all major spenders.

Marvel told newsmen he "can't answer" as to when those decisions might be forthcoming.

Further decisions may be coming "next week or the following week or the next," he said. "We'll be arguing the budget for the next six weeks. I mean the Legislature."

The committee is scheduled to meet again Friday.

Marvel said he "can't answer" as to whether he will attempt to tailor the budget recommendations to 13% and 2½% rates.

Alternatives First

"I have to look at the alternatives first," he said.

Asked whether the committee's prior decisions were based on need, he responded: "Committee decisions reflect both need and some guesswork, as always. We don't have a perfect decision."

Marvel said the committee has "moved too rapidly," and needs more time to reach decisions which might "not have been as well thought out as they could be."

Alternative recommendations may reduce the "continuation budgets" of major departments, he said. Those are the appropriations required to maintain current services.

Choosing NU as an example, he said one alternative could be to reduce the university's continuation budget by 3.8% while budgeting some money for improvements in certain areas.

Then the money could be supplied to the institution in such a form as to "leave the cuts up to the administration," he said.

Opposes Governor

Marvel told newsmen he believes a 13% personal income tax rate may be necessary for 1976, but he will oppose Exon's bill to retroactively boost the 10% rate to 13% for this year.

"I hope we can reach recommendations that don't require a retroactive income tax increase," he said.

Prior to adjournment, the committee agreed to sponsor two resolutions and heard a briefing on state college budget requests.

The resolutions propose an immediate legislative study of special education funding administration and a between-sessions study of spending policies of the Wheat Commission.

Winter Departs Gently; Mild Weather Prevails

Winter went out with a whimper instead of a bang in the Cornhusker State Thursday.

Temperatures soared to a balmy 78 in McCook. Imperial and North Platte both reported highs of 77. Lincoln's high was a pleasant 70; Grand Island recorded 67 as its high and Beatrice reported 73.

Earlier Thursday the mercury dropped below the freezing mark in several areas hitting 31 in Omaha and Imperial, 30 in Scottsbluff and 29 in Alliance Lincoln's low was 32.

Spring officially arrived at 12.57 a.m. Friday.

The National Weather Service forecast mostly cloudy skies and cooler temperatures over the state. Highs will be in the low 60s west and the mid 60s east.

Critics Say Measure To Raise Milk Prices

From Press Reports

Washington — Rejecting complaints that it would increase consumer prices, the House Thursday approved a watered-down emergency farm support bill — but by less than the two-thirds margin needed to override a threatened presidential veto.

The bill, which backers say is needed to encourage farmers to produce record harvests despite rising production costs, was passed by a vote of 259 to 162 despite claims by critics that even the modified milk increase would raise consumer costs for milk and other dairy products by $495 million.

The bill raises 1975 government supports for feed grains, wheat, soybeans, cotton and milk. Before passing the measure, however, a labor-consumer coalition forced through compromise amendments shaving the hikes originally proposed for cotton and milk by the House Agriculture Committee.

The legislation now goes to the Senate where the Agriculture Committee planned to draft its own version of the bill in a meeting Friday. No final congressional action was expected, however, before the Easter recess.

Key Features

Here, at a glance, are key features of the emergency one-year farm bill:

Goal — Emergency price supports.

Bill's Term — Covers just this year's crops, with dairy provisions to be in effect until April 1, 1976.

Target Prices — Cotton to 45 cents a pound, from present 38 cents; corn to $2 25 a bushel, from $1.38, other feed grains at comparable levels; wheat to $3 10 a bushel, from $2.05.

Loan Levels — Cotton to 38 cents a pound, from present 35 cents, corn and feed grains to $1.87 a bushel, from $1 10; wheat to $2.50 a bushel, from $1.37; soybean loans re-established at about $3.94 a bushel.

Dairy Supports — Left at 80% of parity, mandated support adjustments every three months instead of current annual recomputation.

Bill's Cost — Farm law experts estimated it would add $470 million to the government's cost under these programs.

Consumer Impact of Dairy Provisions — The Agriculture Department estimates the total by this time next year would be $495 million through hiking the retail price of milk by 6 cents a gallon, butter by 15 cents a pound and cheese by 7 cents a pound.

Price supports include the target price, which is a government guarantee to the producer. If the free market price for a commodity falls below the law's fixed target price, the government will make up the difference by a direct payment to the farmer. Loan level is the amount a farmer can borrow from the government using crops as security. Parity is a theory, used with a price index, that at 100% a farmer's price for the product equals the cost of producing it plus a reasonable profit.

Talk Of Veto

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has threatened to recommend to President Ford that he veto the bill, asserting it would raise consumer food costs and dry up farmers' markets by allowing other countries to undercut the United States on world markets.

But backers of the bill pointed out — and Butz conceded — that in 1975, at least, the proposed increases in grain and soybean supports were not likely to produce big government subsidies because market prices currently are above the new support levels and are likely to stay there.

Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., of the House Agriculture Committee said he doubted the bill would add "anything additional" to consumer food costs. He said there "may be some very marginal" increases in milk prices, but he said consumers would face much bigger increases if dairy farmers are forced to quit production because of sagging incomes.

Add To Spending

Congressional experts estimated the measure, which administration officials charged would have cost taxpayers $882 million in its original form, now may add about $470 million to government spending because of the compromise reductions in cotton and milk support plans.

In final action, a coalition of lawmakers following advice from the AFL-CIO and the Consumer Federation of America pushed through an amendment setting milk supports at 80% of the "fair" parity level instead of the 85% proposed by the House Agriculture Committee. The vote on lowering the support to 80% — a slight increase over current levels — was 222 to 202.

Despite loss of the advance to 85%, however, the amendment left intact a provision which most dairy spokesmen rated as critical. It requires quarterly increases in supports during the year starting April 1 if farm production costs continue to advance.

Legality Of Bypass Park Route Questioned

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A new twist has been added to the old debate over putting the West Lincoln Bypass through Wilderness Park. And the points seem to have fallen in the corner of those opposed to the proposed route.

Taking park land for the U.S. 77 bypass would violate two State Supreme Court decisions, according to W. E. Haydon, executive director of Nebraska Recreation League, Inc.

Haydon, an attorney, researched the two court decisions in connection with another debate involving construction of a driver's license office in the city's Antelope Park. He found that the decisions would also affect the Wilderness Park proposal and a newer plan to take some of Oak Lake Park for improvement of West Cornhusker Highway

Omaha Precedents

The 1942 and 1972 decisions resulted from Omaha cases. One involves a lease for a period of years, the other encroachment into Omaha's Elmwood Park for auto parking, according to Haydon.

But the decisions are "firm on the theory that once there is a dedication of land for public parks, neither the Legislature, the municipal government nor the public can change its usage, even if the changed use may be advantageous to the public," Haydon said.

City Atty Charles Humble feels that the Supreme Court decisions may not apply if the park land was originally acquired for more general purposes than park use. The law department will research the decisions and park lands in question Friday, he said.

Can't Go Back

Haydon disagrees. Original use doesn't matter, he said. "The court decisions didn't go into original use. Once land is dedicated for park use, then it can't be changed," Haydon contends.

Wilderness Park, a wooded area running along Salt Creek in West Lincoln, was originally purchased as an open space and flood storage area, according to City Parks and Recreation Department records.

The history of the two other parks mentioned by Haydon are not quite that clear

Parts of Antelope Park, one of Lincoln's older green areas, were purchased as park land through bonds, various single purchases and perhaps gifts, according to a written history of Lincoln park land.

The city gained Oak Lake Park, originally a dump, through condemnation proceedings and began using it as park land even before the condemnation process was settled in court, according to the history.

Wider Implications

If Haydon's information is correct, the decisions could also affect other parks, including a proposal to take part of Seacrest Park for the U.S. 77 bypass, Parks and Recreation Department staff members said.

The Wilderness Park debate started in the early 1970's, subsided for a while and then surfaced during last year's spring elections.

The Sierra Club and a group formed last year, the Wilderness Park Preservation Committee, have been vocally opposed to taking any of Wilderness Park for the proposed bypass.

Though the City Council and County Board have given approval for a land exchange to permit the bypass through the park, the State Roads Department is currently taking another look at alternate routes.

Driver's License Office Won't Go In Park

The county and city have given up their plan to put the state driver's license office in Lincoln's Antelope Park, primarily because of public pressure.

"As long as it appears that there is much citizen division (over the proposed park land use), it is our responsibility to see what else is available," said County Board Chairman Jan Gauger Thursday.

The county, hopefully with the city's help, will begin again the search for a licensing facility site, currently housed in the county's half of the County-City Building. "We'd still like to consider the park as an outside possibility," Gauger said.

The new search will again delay construction of a fourth municipal court. Under a county-city arrangement, office shuffling, which depends entirely on getting the licensing office out of the building, will make room for construction of the courtroom.

Citizens opposing the use of park land for even a temporary licensing office began organizing last week, and early this week the Nebraska Recreation League Inc., representing about 700 Lincoln families, stepped in to head the opposition.

In a letter to Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, the league's executive director, W. E. Haydon, advised that the use of Antelope Park for the licensing office would violate two State Supreme Court decisions.

U.S. Waits For Soviet Reaction To Sub Raising

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The U.S. government Thursday waited for the first sign of how Soviet leaders have reacted to widespread publication of the Central Intelligence Agency's $350 million attempt to recover the secrets of a sunken Russian nuclear-armed submarine.

The Kremlin and the Soviet Embassy here have made no comment on the reports that the CIA last summer raised part of a diesel-powered "Golf" Class submarine from 16,000 feet deep in the Pacific about 750 miles northwest of Hawaii.

The White House, the Pentagon and the State Department imposed a nearly total news blackout after the first rush of news reports Tuesday night and Wednesday about the CIA effort to recover the code equipment, nuclear weapons and other secrets from the sunken ship.

But one senior U.S. official left no doubt that Washington's greatest concern is that the public disclosure might impel the Soviet Union to scrap the anticipated Salt II agreement on limitation of nuclear arms with the United States or that Communist Party Chairman Leonid I. Brezhnev might cancel his summit meeting with President Ford scheduled for Washington in June.

This senior official recalled that the Russians had known long before shooting down CIA pilot Francis Gary Powers about the U2 reconnaissance flights over the Soviet Union.

But, he said, they made no issue of it until President Dwight D. Eisenhower publicly acknowledged the flights after being confronted with the wreckage of the plane and the captured pilot. He said it was the public exposure, not the espionage, that caused the Soviet Union to call off a scheduled summit meeting in Moscow.

It was that reasoning, the official said, that led CIA Director William E. Colby to persuade a number of newspapers to withhold publication of the submarine story because of national security considerations. Colby, it was said, felt the Russians may well have been aware that the CIA was attempting to raise the submarine last summer, but he did not think they would feel forced to complain publicly unless the action was publicized.

Meanwhile, sources in the intelligence community indicated that plans for another attempt to retrieve the rest of the sunken Russian submarine next summer have now been scrapped, probably forever.

A number of public figures disagreed widely on whether the information the CIA hoped to obtain from the submarine was worth the expense.

Some agreed with Colby that there was great value in gaining access to a Soviet submarine for the first time even though it was an obsolete model that had mysteriously sunk seven years ago. Others commented that there was nothing of great worth that could be learned from the 1968 code books and code mechanisms, and even less from the submarine's old missiles, navigation and other equipment.

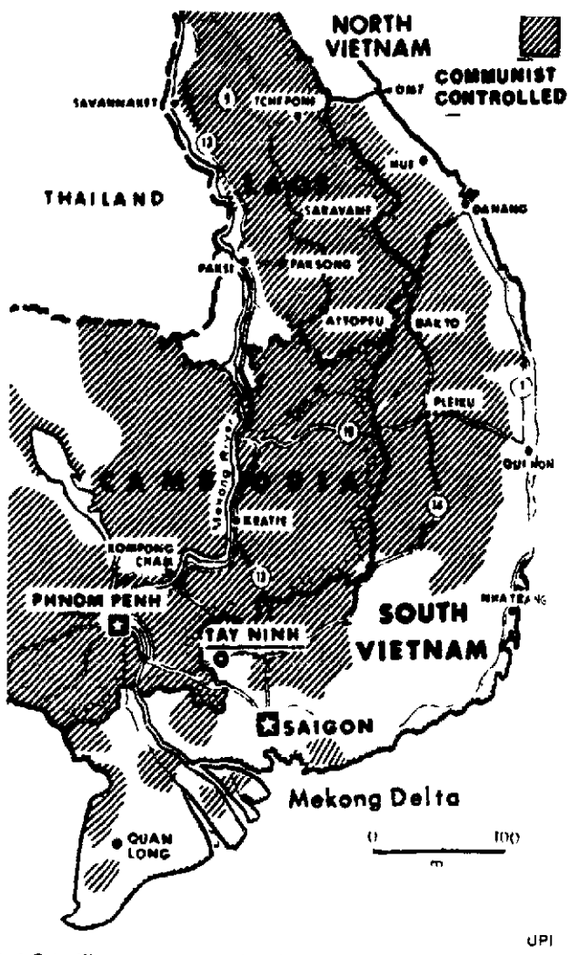
Forecast For S. Viets Gloomy

Washington (UPI) — South Vietnam probably will never regain the territory it conceded to the North Vietnamese this week, military and diplomatic sources said Thursday.

The suddenly gloomy Washington forecast is that President Nguyen Van Thieu's forces at best may retain their coastal and Mekong Delta urban bastions and the vital "ricebowl" in the delta.



UPI

LIGHT . . . at end of tunnel may be red.

But the sources said the North Vietnamese have at least 11 divisions in South Vietnam with four others in reserve near Hanoi, while Saigon not only must transfer and regroup its own army but deal with the enormous new problem of an estimated 300,000 civilian refugees streaming south from the abandoned Central Highlands districts.

One key to the gloom in Washington is that Thieu ordered the withdrawal in secret and apparently without consulting American officials, the sources said.

They painted this picture of the dramatically worsened South Vietnamese military situation:

—Five North Vietnamese divisions are now operating in the most northern of South Vietnam's four military regions.

—Dan Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, is defended by one South Vietnamese division plus one Saigon ranger battalion.

—In military region 2, south of Da Nang, Communist troops have cut all roads leading from the government-held coast to the Central Highlands bastions of Pleiku and Kontum.

—The North Vietnamese have three divisions afield in military region 3 just north of Saigon. Some government outposts between Saigon and Tay Ninh, near the Cambodian border, have been overrun the past few days. Tay Ninh's situation is "tenuous" and the bastion of Xuan Loc almost definitely will fall to the Communists.

—In military region 4, covering the Mekong Delta ricebowl area below Saigon, three divisions of Viet Cong are striking, and predictions are that such key bastions as Can Tho shortly will come under major attack.

War's Biggest Exodus

Saigon, South Vietnam (AP) — In the biggest exodus of the war, an estimated quarter-million refugees swarmed toward coastal havens Thursday, safe for the moment from a North Vietnamese takeover of at least a half dozen provinces written off by the Saigon government.

The conceded territory included the old imperial capital of Hue, against which Communist-led forces have launched a heavy shelling attack, officials said. They said South Vietnamese forces were abandoning Hue in orderly fashion and civilians were pouring out to join a massive flight to the coast.

One 20-mile-long column of close to 120,000 soldiers and civilians reached coastal Phu Yen Province after fleeing the fallen central highlands provinces of Kontum and Pleiku.

Russian Film Actress To Visit American Dad

MOSCOW (AP) — "I will kiss him, and then I will kiss him again!" Victoria Fyodorova joyfully declared Thursday, showing off visas she had just picked up to meet her American father.

"After that I have no plans, except to just be with him," said the 29-year-old film actress.

She said she planned to fly to the United States early next week for a rendezvous with her ailing 77-year-old father, Jackson R. Tate, a retired admiral living in Orange Park, Fla.

After months of anxious waiting, Victoria picked up a three-month exit visa from Soviet passport officials and then went to the U.S. Embassy for a tourist visa to the United States.

"Finally, finally," she beamed. "All I have to do now is buy the plane ticket."

"What a tremendous holiday this is for us!" said Victoria's mother Zoya Fyodorova, looking over her daughter's papers in their downtown Moscow apartment. "I've always wanted her to meet her father."

Tate was a naval attache in Moscow and Zoya was a well-known Soviet film star when they met 30 years ago in the waning months of World War II.

The affair evidently offended Kremlin authorities, and five months after they met Tate was expelled from Moscow. Zoya gave birth to Victoria in 1946 and soon after was thrown into prison, where she stayed for 8½ years. She never married.

Tate, who heard only a few years ago that he had a daughter, has had heart trouble and wanted to meet Victoria before he died.

Progress? Israel Changes Position

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — Henry Kissinger brought "additional Israeli suggestions and ideas" on a Sinai settlement to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on Thursday night after 10 hours of cabinet meetings in Jerusalem.

While refusing to say the negotiations had turned a new corner, U.S. officials told newsmen aboard the secretary of state's jet that the Israeli cabinet had made the first formal change in its position since Kissinger came to the Middle East two weeks ago.

An indication that some progress was being made in the shuttle negotiations was the information from U.S. officials that Kissinger may meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Vienna on Saturday.

Until now Israel has officially been willing to give up the 30 miles in the Sinai taken during the 1967 war but not to yield two strategic mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields.

All American officials would only describe what the Israeli cabinet has added as "some modifications, elaborations and new elements."

"I am bringing firm ideas," Kissinger said as he stepped smiling from his jet at Aswan airport. "You can call them proposals."

He added, "There's always hope for an agreement."

The gloom that had pervaded his plane earlier in the week gave way to muted optimism, although U.S. officials advised newsmen to "play it down the middle" and described Kissinger as neither "upbeat nor downbeat."

These officials said the "basic framework" for a Sinai settlement has not yet been established and that an agreement depends on how much "give" each side has.

For a Sinai withdrawal, Israel is demanding "real moves" by Egypt to end 27 years of economic and political hostility.

World's Population Total To Hit Four Billion People

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — By Dr. L. C. Nehrt's calculations, the world will soon mark one of those unheralded milestones in man's history, seldom noticed until the years have added to its significance.

Nehrt figures on about April 1 the world's population will break the four billion mark.

"I was playing with the figures the other night and it suddenly struck me — four billion people," said Nehrt, a Wichita State University professor and consultant to the United Nations. "But, no one has said anything about it. I just don't think we should pass a mark like that without taking note of it."

Nehrt said his figures are based on United Nations data.

Inflation Rate Rises, But Trend Moderating

Washington (AP) — Food prices in February rose at the slowest rate in seven months, the government reported Thursday, as the over-all inflation rate continued its moderating trend.

The Labor Department said the Consumer Price Index increased 0.6% last month, the same rate as in January but far below the average monthly increase last year, when the index jumped 12.2%.

Declines in meat and sugar prices held the rise in the food index to 0.1% last month, the smallest increase since last July, when it dropped 0.4%.

Grocery prices, the major portion of the food index, even declined slightly with seasonal adjustment, dropping 0.1%.

However, consumers still were hit by sharply higher costs for non-food items and services, including medical fees, utility bills and rent.

The index for services rose 0.8%, about the same as in each of the preceding four months. Non-food commodities also were up 0.8%, more than in either December or January but less than increases throughout most of 1974.

But James L. Pate, assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs, called the latest price report "very favorable news."

Pate added that he expects further improvement in the non-food area in the coming months because of slack economic conditions. Retailers, he said, are beginning to reduce prices as "one would expect during a slump in sales . . . and it seems like the forecast of a 6% inflation rate by the end of the year is a very reasonable prospect."

Although consumer prices have begun to moderate, they are unlikely to match the decline in wholesale prices which have dropped at annual rate of 6.2% over the past three months. The government's Wholesale Price Index, for example, does not include the cost of services which make up a major portion of the retail index.

For the three-month period ended in February, consumer prices rose at an annual rate of 8.2%.

House Demos Propose More Money For Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders unveiled a proposal Thursday to provide more money for public service jobs and eliminate bureaucratic delays they said have held up funds for projects already authorized by Congress.

Chairman Robert E. Jones, D-Ala., of the House Public Works Committee said at a news conference that the proposal would cover some $3.5 billion worth of public works projects already authorized by Congress but not yet funded plus another $1.5 billion in projects to be authorized for the first time.

The proposed legislation would relieve needy communities of the requirement to match federal grants and would require swift action by the government on requests from state and local governments for federal jobs funds.

The net effect, the Democratic leaders said, would be to create 250, 000 jobs by starting public works projects quickly in areas of high unemployment.

The bill containing the Democratic leaders' proposals, introduced shortly after the news conference, provides for the program to be administered by the secretary of commerce through the Economic Development Administration. It specifies that EDA must decide for or against a grant application within 30 days.

Start of work on previously approved projects has been delayed by "a type of bureaucratic impoundment by red tape," Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., complained.

Wright, a member of the Public Works Committee, headed a Democratic task force that produced an economic program including a proposal for large-scale employment on public works.

He said administrative delays "have been more effective than overt presidential impoundment" in withholding money approved by Congress for various programs.

In reply to a question, House Speaker Carl Albert said he thinks Ford "would take a long look at the legislation before vetoeing it."

Ford's budget message called for inaugurating no new spending programs.

Chairman Robert A. Roe, D-N.J. of the House Economic development subcommittee, said the subcommittee will begin hearings April 14 and expects to finish work on the legislation by the end of April.

Albert said he does not consider the bill expensive. He said economists' estimates are that within two years it would generate some $14 billion in additional national production. The extra revenue to the federal government and the reduction of unemployment and other benefits should recoup practically the whole cost of the program, he said.

Leader Of Small Indian Tribe Won't Give Up Tiny Reservation

Trumbull, Conn. (UPI) — The chief of one of the nation's smallest Indian tribes says white men have been stealing Indian land for long enough and the least they can do is give him a new house on his quarter-acre reservation.

Aurelius Piper, also known as Chief Big Eagle, is the leader of the Golden Hill Tribe, a band of less than 100 Indians who have been losing ground to white men since 1659.

"After 316 years of taking Golden Hill land, I think it shouldn't be too hard to provide a house that would cost only $35,000 to build today," he said.

The tribe got its name when America's first reservation was established on 80 acres of land on Golden Hill in Bridgeport.

But a few years later the Indians were paid off and forced to leave the land. A 20-acre reservation was set up in Trumbull, but was sold by an Indian agent in the 1850s, without the tribe's knowledge, Piper said.

Today's preserve, the smallest in the country, was officially recognized 99 years ago. Piper, incapacitated by a heart condition, said the crumbling dwelling he lives in on the reservation doesn't even have a heating system.

"This house was built by an Indian in the early 1800s. It served its purpose then," Piper sid Wednesday.

But because it is on a state reservation, he said, the State Department of Environmental Protection is responsible for repairs and maintenance. Piper said the house has been "neglected to the point where it's uninhabitable."

Piper and the State Indian Affairs Council rejected a money-saving proposal to move Piper to a nearby vacant house, leaving the reservation unoccupied.

"I will not leave my land," Piper said firmly.

Piper, 59, had to give up his trucking business in 1969 and has lived on Social Security since. Asked what he plans to do, he said:

Eat and sleep and stay in. What do you expect me to do — run? I'm supposed to be in the hospital.

New York Times News Summary

Saigon Aid Threatened

Washington — In the face of Administration claims that congressional reductions in military aid lead to South Vietnam's military setbacks, a bipartisan move developed in the Senate Thursday to cut off all military aid to Saigon this year.

Saigon Said Critical

New York — United States military experts regard the Saigon area as the critical battlefield. The military situation there, as they view it, is becoming a race between South Vietnam's ability to deploy four regular divisions there and increasing pressures from Communist attacks to the northwest, northeast and east. The speed and force of the North Vietnamese advances, the Americans say, may prevent the establishment of a coherent defense for the Saigon enclave.

Legal Attack Seen

Washington (Washington Star) — A new legal attack on the Social Security system, to make it apply equally to men and women, is sure to open soon — and it is likely to succeed. The supreme court has made such an attack almost a certainty by ruling, for the first time, that some of the basic sex-based assumptions behind the system are no longer true.

High Prices To Stay

Paris — The major oil-consuming countries agreed at a meeting in Paris on an American-inspired concept of keeping oil prices high enough to encourage the development of alternative sources of energy. The agreement, by the 18-nation International Energy Agency, apparently opens the way for participation by the United States in a preliminary meeting of oil producers and consumers scheduled to open in Paris April 7.

Nixon Friend Convicted

San Diego — C. Arnhold Smith, a close friend of former President Richard Nixon, was convicted on two counts of using business subordinates to conceal the source of illegal corporate contributions to Republican campaign committees.

Hospital Strike Ends

New York — Interns and resident physicians ended Thursday their strike against 21 of the city's hospitals with an agreement that sent them back at once to their regular duties. It was the fourth day of a walkout that sought to shorten work schedules, and it was the nation's first major physicians' strike.

House Demos Propose More Money For Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders unveiled a proposal Thursday to provide more money for public service jobs and eliminate bureaucratic delays they said have held up funds for projects already authorized by Congress.

Chairman Robert E. Jones, D-Ala., of the House Public Works Committee said at a news conference that the proposal would cover some $3.5 billion worth of public works projects already authorized by Congress but not yet funded plus another $1.5 billion in projects to be authorized for the first time.

The proposed legislation would relieve needy communities of the requirement to match federal grants and would require swift action by the government on requests from state and local governments for federal jobs funds.

The net effect, the Democratic leaders said, would be to create 250, 000 jobs by starting public works projects quickly in areas of high unemployment.

The bill containing the Democratic leaders' proposals, introduced shortly after the news conference, provides for the program to be administered by the secretary of commerce through the Economic Development Administration. It specifies that EDA must decide for or against a grant application within 30 days.

Start of work on previously approved projects has been delayed by "a type of bureaucratic impoundment by red tape," Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., complained.

Wright, a member of the Public Works Committee, headed a Democratic task force that produced an economic program including a proposal for large-scale employment on public works.

He said administrative delays "have been more effective than overt presidential impoundment" in withholding money approved by Congress for various programs.

In reply to a question, House Speaker Carl Albert said he thinks Ford "would take a long look at the legislation before vetoeing it."

Ford's budget message called for inaugurating no new spending programs.

Chairman Robert A. Roe, D-N.J. of the House Economic development subcommittee, said the subcommittee will begin hearings April 14 and expects to finish work on the legislation by the end of April.

Albert said he does not consider the bill expensive. He said economists' estimates are that within two years it would generate some $14 billion in additional national production. The extra revenue to the federal government and the reduction of unemployment and other benefits should recoup practically the whole cost of the program, he said.

Leader Of Small Indian Tribe Won't Give Up Tiny Reservation

Trumbull, Conn. (UPI) — The chief of one of the nation's smallest Indian tribes says white men have been stealing Indian land for long enough and the least they can do is give him a new house on his quarter-acre reservation.

Aurelius Piper, also known as Chief Big Eagle, is the leader of the Golden Hill Tribe, a band of less than 100 Indians who have been losing ground to white men since 1659.

"After 316 years of taking Golden Hill land, I think it shouldn't be too hard to provide a house that would cost only $35,000 to build today," he said.

The tribe got its name when America's first reservation was established on 80 acres of land on Golden Hill in Bridgeport.

But a few years later the Indians were paid off and forced to leave the land. A 20-acre reservation was set up in Trumbull, but was sold by an Indian agent in the 1850s, without the tribe's knowledge, Piper said.

Today's preserve, the smallest in the country, was officially recognized 99 years ago. Piper, incapacitated by a heart condition, said the crumbling dwelling he lives in on the reservation doesn't even have a heating system.

"This house was built by an Indian in the early 1800s. It served its purpose then," Piper sid Wednesday.

But because it is on a state reservation, he said, the State Department of Environmental Protection is responsible for repairs and maintenance. Piper said the house has been "neglected to the point where it's uninhabitable."

Piper and the State Indian Affairs Council rejected a money-saving proposal to move Piper to a nearby vacant house, leaving the reservation unoccupied.

"I will not leave my land," Piper said firmly.

Piper, 59, had to give up his trucking business in 1969 and has lived on Social Security since. Asked what he plans to do, he said:

Eat and sleep and stay in. What do you expect me to do — run? I'm supposed to be in the hospital.

New York Times News Summary

Saigon Aid Threatened

Washington — In the face of Administration claims that congressional reductions in military aid lead to South Vietnam's military setbacks, a bipartisan move developed in the Senate Thursday to cut off all military aid to Saigon this year.

Saigon Said Critical

New York — United States military experts regard the Saigon area as the critical battlefield. The military situation there, as they view it, is becoming a race between South Vietnam's ability to deploy four regular divisions there and increasing pressures from Communist attacks to the northwest, northeast and east. The speed and force of the North Vietnamese advances, the Americans say, may prevent the establishment of a coherent defense for the Saigon enclave.

Legal Attack Seen

Washington (Washington Star) — A new legal attack on the Social Security system, to make it apply equally to men and women, is sure to open soon — and it is likely to succeed. The supreme court has made such an attack almost a certainty by ruling, for the first time, that some of the basic sex-based assumptions behind the system are no longer true.

High Prices To Stay

Paris — The major oil-consuming countries agreed at a meeting in Paris on an American-inspired concept of keeping oil prices high enough to encourage the development of alternative sources of energy. The agreement, by the 18-nation International Energy Agency, apparently opens the way for participation by the United States in a preliminary meeting of oil producers and consumers scheduled to open in Paris April 7.

Nixon Friend Convicted

San Diego — C. Arnhold Smith, a close friend of former President Richard Nixon, was convicted on two counts of using business subordinates to conceal the source of illegal corporate contributions to Republican campaign committees.

Hospital Strike Ends

New York — Interns and resident physicians ended Thursday their strike against 21 of the city's hospitals with an agreement that sent them back at once to their regular duties. It was the fourth day of a walkout that sought to shorten work schedules, and it was the nation's first major physicians' strike.

CIA Critics Going Too Far

The cover has been blown off the secret CIA salvage operation in the Pacific Ocean and the aftermath leaves us somewhat shaken

A Soviet submarine equipped with nuclear missiles exploded and sunk off Hawaii in 1968. The Soviets apparently could not pinpoint its location in order to begin salvage operations of their own Or perhaps they felt it unsalvageable or that its location was unknown to others.

At any rate the CIA had one of Howard Hughes' companies build a salvage ship and a portion of the sunken Russian vessel has been raised. Whether the one-time undercover salvage effort will be completed now that the international spotlight has been focused on it is a question that has not been answered.

A number of congressmen interested in the current investigations of the nation's security and intelligence establishment have raised questions about the salvage operation.

Sen Frank Church questions the cost of building the salvage ship, the Glomar Explorer, and we sense that he questions the operation itself.

Some in the media act as if they have uncovered foul play which the American people should renounce.

Sadly, it looks as if the legitimate questions which prompted a look at CIA activities have led to something bigger. A Frankenstein has been created and it threatens the necessary missions of agencies such as the CIA

What this newspaper has joined others in objecting to is the surveillance of domestic political dissidents or political opponents of whichever administration happens to be in power, and the reprehensible practices of snooping on the private lives of private citizens, making files of their sex and drinking habits, opening their mail, listening to their phone calls, and so on just because they espoused political views which differed with the politicians in power at the time. We resented the autocratic management of the FBI by that tyrannical blackmailer J. Edgar Hoover, and were glad when Congress finally summoned the gumption to look into domestic snooping activities of the intelligence agencies

But we have never doubted the need for a CIA. And we can't take much comfort in seeing the news of the Pacific salvage operation spread all over the headlines and highlighting the network news as if the U.S. had just been caught in a new dirty trick that would win first prize in a dastardly deed contest.

It would seem that what our agents were doing was something any alert nation would do — something perhaps illegal under our concept of law, but something necessary, given the realities of the world today. And it surely was an opportunity which the Soviets would dearly love to grab

If Sen. Church and others question the need for such an operation they are way off base and are living in a dream world and somebody should tell them that the damage they do the national security is a terrible price we all must pay for their headline grabbing and mindless handwringing.

If they complain about costs and about the proficiency of the CIA in carrying out the salvage operation, that is another thing entirely and it is a legitimate concern. But that doesn't have to be an issue debated in the headlines.

We still favor congressional investigation of domestic snooping activities. We also feel that the need for increased congressional oversight of the intelligence establishment has never been better illustrated than by the revelations of domestic cloak and dagger hijinks and rule by dossier. And the present salvage operation episode suggests that questions are in order if it was too costly and bungled. The need for such activity as the salvage operation, however, should be apparent.

Unwanted Baby Is Not A 'Thing'

RONALD REAGAN

CALIFORNIA — The press called it a fetus

The defense lawyer called it a fetus.

The jury called it a baby.

And, after they did, they convicted Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin of Boston of manslaughter. He had delivered, by cesarean section, a male child to a patient with whom he had agreed to perform a legal abortion. The jury ruled, after lengthy deliberation, that the baby was alive when it was removed from the mother.

The press had described it as "a fetus of 20-24 weeks." The jury was shown photos and described it as a six-months-old baby.

The juror who held out longest against conviction said — after the verdict — that most of the jurors believed that the baby was alive during the operation when it was taken out of the mother and that the doctor was negligent for not checking for a heartbeat They thought his examination was too short."

Dr. Edelin was frustrated and angry at the outcome, not surprisingly. That he momentarily charged the jury with racial prejudice (he is black) can be attributed to the heat of the moment There is no evidence to suggest that the jury based its decision on anything other than the charge put to them and the facts presented. In fact, most of them expressed personal sympathy toward the doctor

One can give Dr. Edelin the benefit of the doubt and suppose that he harbored no malice toward the baby, he only performed his duty to abort the birth both earnestly and professionally. He's now appealing the case and the final outcome cannot be predicted.

Meanwhile, it has given the right-to-life forces a great deal of encouragement. And, according to reports in the media, the verdict seems to have discouraged (at least temporarily) medical research into abortion and related life-control measures.

While we await the appeal and its decision, I have become increasingly concerned that there is a subtle, but nonetheless effective, move afoot to dehumanize babies unwanted by their mothers

The latest chilling symptom:

Dr Edelin's lawyer says that he will argue in his appeal that a women's legal right to an abortion presumes that the aborted baby will be dead. If it isn't, as in the Edelin case, then it would have no right to live, under the law. What next? Euthanasia on a grand scale? Or, putting mentally retarded infants "to sleep?"

Before, during and after the Dr Edelin case there has been with increasing frequency — the use of the term "fetus" to describe a baby the mother wanted to abort Fetuses, after all, aren't people, they're "things." If it's inconvenient to convert one into a "baby," then dispose of it

Babies, on the other hand, are warm, lovable and cuddly. Altogether human. A fetus becomes a baby when it leaves the mother's womb alive.

Even if it doesn't, it certainly looks like a baby when it is 6 months old

☆ ☆ ☆

One is reminded of all the pejorative terms applied to various enemies to rob them of human qualities, in order to make belittling them, ostracizing them or killing them more easy. wops, frogs, spics, micks, polacks, gooks and slopes, to name a few Add now the "fetus." No human qualities. A faintly repulsive sound to the word Easily disposed of by serious-looking physicians and their patients.

What can be done to combat the growing tendency to dehumanize infants in the womb?

If you're pregnant and thinking of abortion, think of adoption instead. If you're not in that situation, write a letter to the editor every time he publishes a story describing a baby as a fetus.

It is time to say to all the world We are not talking about a slug or a snail or a salamander. We are talking about a real, live baby, whatever the shortness of its life. Write that letter. The squeaky wheel gets the grease.

The Field Is Closed

Every other year as the city elections approach we worry that local citizens aren't as interested in local government as they should be

We worry that people gripe, but seemingly are seldom moved to act, that the mayor's chair or the council seats or positions on the school board, for example, will be left to incumbents who may have provided excellent service but who should be challenged as a means of stimulating debate on what directions the community should take

Every city election we are pleased and relieved to find that concerned, qualified people do care about the city.

The filing deadline for the city primary was Wednesday. Lincoln voters will be presented with three distinct and different choices in the mayoral race and it should be a crackerjack contest. There is a fine field of council candidates, which will be pared down to eight nominees for four seats in the May general election and there is a fine field of candidates for the three open school board seats.

It shouldn't really be a surprise to us any longer.

Spy Smear Attempted On Kissinger

LONDON — A lively topic of conversation in London diplomatic circles today is a bizarre tale about how the Chinese communists tipped off Washington sometime ago that Russia's intelligence service was trying to destroy Secretary of State Henry Kissinger by planting "disinformation" that he was a Soviet secret agent

The Soviets allegedly believed that by getting rid of Dr. Kissinger as America's diplomatic wizard, they would precipitate a collapse of the Chinese-American accord. If there is any truth in this seemingly far-fetched tale, it raises the question as to whether Soviet influence might be partially responsible for the continuing efforts in some congressional and liberal news media circles to discredit Secretary of State Kissinger.

The flat statement that Peking informed the United States that the Soviet intelligence service, KGB, was attempting to convince the Central Intelligence Agency that Kissinger was a spy is contained in a very serious book published in London by Frederick Muller, Ltd., and in the United States by Taplinger Publishing Co

Entitled "A History of the Chinese Secret Service," the book was written by Richard Deacon, author of histories of the British and Soviet Secret services and former foreign manager of the British Sunday Times.

According to Deacon, the Chinese intelligence service revealed to the CIA that the KGB had "concocted forged documentation to the effect that the U.S. Secretary of State, Dr. Kissinger, was, under the code name of 'Bor,' a member of a secret section of Soviet intelligence."

Asserting that for six years the Soviets tried to destroy Kissinger, Deacon wrote that the KGB campaign against him, "sustained by some enemies of Kissinger within the CIA for quite a time," was "totally sabotaged by the Chinese whose detailed evidence on this vicious and totally untrue piece of disinformation finally balked the Russians.

"How useful a part this work of Chinese intelligence played in paving the way to an unofficial alliance with the USA is not easy to assess, but it should not be underestimated.

"The smears manufactured against Kissinger by the KGB were planted on a double-agent in the USA who had over the years supplied the CIA with a long list of KGB and GRU (Soviet military intelligence) agents . . . His intelligence had been of the utmost importance to the USA. Thus, initially, some U.S. intelligence chiefs were inclined to accept this planted KGB story on Kissinger as authentic."

Deacon also claims in his book that the Chinese communists gave the U.S. details of a Soviet espionage set up in Hong Kong which eventually led to collapse of the network.

The Deacon book is a fascinating and unique history of the Chinese secret services dating from pre-Christian times up to the present decade.

Checking back on receipts paid on gas in 1965, I find I paid 33 9 10 and 35 9 10 and .38 0 10 per gallon We were earning $5 000 per year at that time

We now earn $10,000 per year and pay 47 9 10 and 49 9 10 per gallon for gas So it looks as if gas is a better bargain today than it was in 1965

The problem is, after buying the family groceries for the week, 10 cents a gallon would be too much to pay for gas

Too Late to Help

Sargent, Neb.

The phony argument between the Republican administration and the Democratic Congress on aid to Cambodia and South Vietnam is purely academic and being staged for the news media only It is too late to help those innocent people who are soon to suffer all of the pain and indignities which are always inflicted on the victims of a communist takeover.

The United States allowed Henry Kissinger to sell them out at the Paris peace talks and they are doomed. If the President and the Congress really wanted to help these people, they could call the Kremlin and tell the Soviets that unless all of those gangsters were out of Cambodia and South Vietnam by noon tomorrow, there would be no more aid or trade with any communist country Without bank credits, industrial equipment and technical assistance and food from us, the Soviets would soon be out of business

No matter how you cut it, 50,000 American servicemen have died in vain!

During the recent open-campus debate, I had the opportunity to meet and talk with many teachers, students and parents. I also got a first-hand look at how news is made here in Lincoln. During that time I met two reporters who did an outstanding job on covering the story and presenting all the facts. These two men are Dick Holman of The Lincoln Star, and Joe Kafka of Radio Station KFOR. My hat goes off to them and the fine job they did.

Lincoln should be proud that we have such a fine news media here in Lincoln and, in particular, these men It was an honor to deal with them, and Lincoln is honored to have them here.

Shame on Ernest Chambers! A person who is sincere, dedicated and intelligent as I have thought him to be in most cases does not generalize about any group of people

I am a white representative of my church on race relations Some time ago an outstanding minister of the black race said, "There are white angels and black angels and white devils and black devils This applies to all races, nationalities, ethnic groups, and professions.

I am certain that Mr. Chambers' article in The "Point of View" of March 13th was a disappointment, not just to the legal profession, but to many who were building a respect for Mr. Chambers.

It seems a shame that he, of all people, should forget the outstanding performance of Judge Urbom so soon.

Nebraska Coliseum Memorabilia

Crete, Neb.

The Nebraska state basketball tournament is now history except that we would like to add more memorabilia to the University of Nebraska coliseum story

In 1926 when the magnificent new field house was first used for the tournaments, a 1925 classmate, Mrs. Delbert Russell, from Elsie, and I watched the Grant basketball team from Perkins County High School play in the morning. We do not recall the team whom they played or the town they were from.

That evening my husband and I drove to Lincoln and watched the Crete-North Platte game. In those days every team that could pay its own way could play in the state tournament.

This year, the 50th since 1926, the Grant basketball team from Perkins County High School again came to the state tournament as winners in the Class "C" Regional. They had the best record in the state, 23-0, and emerged the runnerup in Class "C", losing to Louisville by 48-47.

Crete also played in this last year at the coliseum by being winners in the Class "B" Regional. They emerged the winners in Class "B" as state champions. It was our privilege to attend some of the games.

My husband the law-maker, is a law-breaker as stated by the press. Raising money for the eye bank and sending a dog to seeing eye school are among many of the charitable things the Lions Club organization really does.

Also, speaking of freedom of the press, the media have certainly taken freedom upon themselves to exaggerate everything out of proportion about the raid at the Valley Lions Club. They certainly found it a juicy story after they found out that there was a councilman involved simply because it makes a more interesting story for the public to read.

I was also very upset when one of the deputies reported that my husband was hiding under the crap table, which was furthest from the truth. He was not near it' I happened to be a witness to this incident

Is this all the undercover men and law-enforcement officers have to do? To raid a non-profit organization such as we are? This situation looks serious to us when there is so much dope and drugs being peddled and robberies being committed.

I also hope the informant has peace with himself to know he has turned in a call on such a worthy and beneficial organization

Unfair Estate Taxes

Roca, Neb.

Uncle Sam, do you know that your government considers a niece a distant relative? Whether we be sons or daughters, nieces or nephews, we have been loyal to you. But enough of this. I'd like to get down to brass tacks.

Not all nieces or nephews are distant relatives. A mother and father were divorced. The father needed a home for a small daughter. A childless sister and her husband were willing to raise her Arrangements were made, a guardianship was legally approved.

A bewildered little girl had security until she married. A warm, tender love developed through the 16 years she lived with her aunt and uncle. This love for them carried over until their final days. Never was the niece treated as a distant relative.

The niece was like a daughter to them, caring for their every need in their advanced years. Naturally since she had been like a daughter to them, their estate went to her.

Now, Uncle Sam, your government is demanding a whale of a lot of estate taxes and all because, through no fault of her own, the niece is considered a distant relative.

Uncle Sam, just how does a niece go about getting a law passed to protect the rights of a niece or nephew who for 62 years has done willing and loving service to a beloved aunt and uncle?

Taxes such as your government feels are justly assessed can undo all the good fortune willed to the benefactor

Do you realize, Uncle Sam, that a niece could be enslaved by debt for the rest of her life through the process of unfair estate taxation?

The Nuclear Threat

Milligan, Neb.

Frankly, I'm terrified. I spent about two months this winter trying to see what goes on in the Nebraska Legislature and in local politics, and helping with some reforms without which I feel our beautiful state and our whole democracy are in deep trouble. I worked 12-hour days gathering facts, writing letters, making phone calls, trying to get people together to shed light in dark corners of government. I talked to citizens, senators, mayors, bureaucrats, farmers, lawyers, doctors, social workers, editors, and anyone else who had a moment.

Nobody paid me a cent (except for $19.05 in contributions at a $250 concert/square dance I sponsored). I didn't have any fellowships or food stamps or welfare or unemployment. I used my savings account to stay alive, and I have a few very special friends in Lincoln.

One of the things I did was to attend the Legislature's Public Works Committee hearing on Senator Fowler's bill to outlaw any more nuclear power plants in Nebraska until somebody knows what to do with the deadly plutonium they turn out (it stays deadly for 24,000 years, and the nuclear power authorities have done everything they can to hush up all the leaks that have already occurred). I wasn't able to testify, because Senator Kremer announced that they had to give both sides equal time (just as though the nuclear establishment didn't have million-dollar budgets for lobbying and public relations). A couple days later I read where he has voted to kill the bill outright, just like that, in committee, without ever even letting it get to the floor for a vote by the whole Legislature. Does he really feel he knows enough to make a decision that will affect this planet and all its inhabitants for 24,000 years after one afternoon's hearing? Or must we assume the worst (which — God forgive me — I have learned to do) — that the pro-nukers are just too well-organized and rich and powerful to be stopped any more?

CIA Critics Going Too Far

The cover has been blown off the secret CIA salvage operation in the Pacific Ocean and the aftermath leaves us somewhat shaken.

A Soviet submarine equipped with nuclear missiles exploded and sunk off Hawaii in 1968. The Soviets apparently could not pinpoint its location in order to begin salvage operations of their own. Or perhaps they felt it unsalvageable or that its location was unknown to others.

At any rate the CIA had one of Howard Hughes' companies build a salvage ship and a portion of the sunken Russian vessel has been raised. Whether the one-time undercover salvage effort will be completed now that the international spotlight has been focused on it is a question that has not been answered.

A number of congressmen interested in the current investigations of the nation's security and intelligence establishment have raised questions about the salvage operation.

Sen. Frank Church questions the cost of building the salvage ship, the Glomar Explorer, and we sense that he questions the operation itself.

Some in the media act as if they have uncovered foul play which the American people should renounce.

Sadly, it looks as if the legitimate questions which prompted a look at CIA activities have led to something bigger. A Frankenstein has been created and it threatens the necessary missions of agencies such as the CIA.

What this newspaper has joined others in objecting to is the surveillance of domestic political dissidents or political opponents of whichever administration happens to be in power, and the reprehensible practices of snooping on the private lives of private citizens, making files of their sex and drinking habits, opening their mail, listening to their phone calls, and so on, just because they espoused political views which differed with the politicians in power at the time. We resented the autocratic management of the FBI by that tyrannical blackmailer J. Edgar Hoover, and were glad when Congress finally summoned the gumption to look into domestic snooping activities of the intelligence agencies.

But we have never doubted the need for a CIA. And we can't take much comfort in seeing the news of the Pacific salvage operation spread all over the headlines and highlighting the network news as if the U.S. had just been caught in a new dirty trick that would win first prize in a dastardly deed contest.

It would seem that what our agents were doing was something any alert nation would do — something perhaps illegal under our concept of law, but something necessary, given the realities of the world today. And it surely was an opportunity which the Soviets would dearly love to grab.

If Sen. Church and others question the need for such an operation they are way off base and are living in a dream world and somebody should tell them that the damage they do the national security is a terrible price we all must pay for their headline grabbing and mindless handwringing.

If they complain about costs and about the proficiency of the CIA in carrying out the salvage operation, that is another thing entirely and it is a legitimate concern. But that doesn't have to be an issue debated in the headlines.

We still favor congressional investigation of domestic snooping activities. We also feel that the need for increased congressional oversight of the intelligence establishment has never been better illustrated than by the revelations of domestic cloak and dagger hijinks and rule by dossier. And the present salvage operation episode suggests that questions are in order if it was too costly and bungled. The need for such activity as the salvage operation, however, should be apparent.

The Field Is Closed

Every other year as the city elections approach we worry that local citizens aren't as interested in local government as they should be.

We worry that people gripe, but seemingly are seldom moved to act; that the mayor's chair or the council seats or positions on the school board, for example, will be left to incumbents who may have provided excellent service but who should be challenged as a means of stimulating debate on what directions the community should take.

Every city election we are pleased and relieved to find that concerned, qualified people do care about the city.

The filing deadline for the city primary was Wednesday. Lincoln voters will be presented with three distinct and different choices in the mayoral race and it should be a crackerjack contest. There is a fine field of council candidates, which will be pared down to eight nominees for four seats in the May general election and there is a fine field of candidates for the three open school board seats.

It shouldn't really be a surprise to us any longer.

RONALD REAGAN

Unwanted Baby Is Not A 'Thing'

CALIFORNIA — The press called it a fetus.

The defense lawyer called it a fetus.

The jury called it a baby.

And, after they did, they convicted Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin of Boston of manslaughter. He had delivered, by cesarean section, a male child to a patient with whom he had agreed to perform a legal abortion. The jury ruled, after lengthy deliberation, that the baby was alive when it was removed from the mother.

The press had described it as "a fetus of 20-24 weeks." The jury was shown photos and described it as a six-months-old baby.

The juror who held out longest against conviction said — after the verdict — that most of the jurors believed that the baby "was alive during the operation when it was taken out of the mother and that the doctor was negligent for not checking for a heartbeat. They thought his examination was too short."

Dr. Edelin was frustrated and angry at the outcome, not surprisingly. That he momentarily charged the jury with racial prejudice (he is black) can be attributed to the heat of the moment. There is no evidence to suggest that the jury based its decision on anything other than the charge put to them and the facts presented. In fact, most of them expressed personal sympathy toward the doctor.

One can give Dr. Edelin the benefit of the doubt and suppose that he harbored no malice toward the baby; he only performed his duty to abort the birth, both earnestly and professionally. He's now appealing the case and the final outcome cannot be predicted.

Meanwhile, it has given the right-to-life forces a great deal of encouragement. And, according to reports in the media, the verdict seems to have discouraged (at least temporarily) medical research into abortion and related life-control measures.

While we await the appeal and its decision, I have become increasingly concerned that there is a subtle, but nonetheless effective, move afoot to dehumanize babies unwanted by their mothers.

The latest chilling sympton: Dr. Edelin's lawyer says that he will argue in his appeal that a women's legal right to an abortion presumes that the aborted baby will be dead. If it isn't, as in the Edelin case, then it would have no right to live, under the law. What next? Euthanasia on a grand scale? Or, putting mentally retarded infants "to sleep?"

Before, during and after the Dr. Edelin case there has been — with increasing frequency — the use of the term "fetus" to describe a baby the mother wanted to abort. Fetuses, after all, aren't people, they're "things." If it's inconvenient to convert one into a "baby," then dispose of it.

Babies, on the other hand, are warm, lovable and cuddly. Altogether human. A fetus becomes a baby when it leaves the mother's womb alive.

Even if it doesn't, it certainly looks like a baby when it is 6 months old.

☆ ☆ ☆

One is reminded of all the pejorative terms applied to various enemies to rob them of human qualities, in order to make belittling them, ostracizing them or killing them more easy: wops, frogs, spics, micks, polacks, gooks and slopes, to name a few. Add now the "fetus." No human qualities. A faintly repulsive sound to the word. Easily disposed of by serious-looking physicians and their patients.

What can be done to combat the growing tendency to dehumanize infants in the womb?

If you're pregnant and thinking of abortion, think of adoption instead. If you're not in that situation, write a letter to the editor every time he publishes a story describing a baby as a fetus.

It is time to say to all the world: We are not talking about a slug or a snail or a salamander. We are talking about a real, live baby, whatever the shortness of its life. Write that letter. The squeaky wheel gets the grease.

Spy Smear Attempted On Kissinger

LONDON — A lively topic of conversation in London diplomatic circles today is a bizarre tale about how the Chinese communists tipped off Washington sometime ago that Russia's intelligence service was trying to destroy Secretary of State Henry Kissinger by planting "disinformation" that he was a Soviet secret agent.

The Soviets allegedly believed that by getting rid of Dr. Kissinger as America's diplomatic wizard, they would precipitate a collapse of the Chinese-American accord. If there is any truth in this seemingly far-fetched tale, it raises the question as to whether Soviet influence might be partially responsible for the continuing efforts in some congressional and liberal news media circles to discredit Secretary of State Kissinger.

The flat statement that Peking informed the United States that the Soviet intelligence service, KGB, was attempting to convince the Central Intelligence Agency that Kissinger was a spy is contained in a very serious book published in London by Frederick Muller, Ltd., and in the United States by Taplinger Publishing Co.

Entitled "A History of the Chinese Secret Service," the book was written by Richard Deacon, author of histories of the British and Soviet Secret services and former foreign manager of the British Sunday Times.

According to Deacon, the Chinese intelligence service revealed to the CIA that the KGB had "concocted forged documentation to the effect that the U.S. Secretary of State, Dr. Kissinger, was, under the code name of 'Bor,' a member of a secret section of Soviet intelligence."

Asserting that for six years the Soviets tried to destroy Kissinger, Deacon wrote that the KGB campaign against him, "sustained by some enemies of Kissinger within the CIA for quite a time," was "totally sabotaged by the Chinese whose detailed evidence on this vicious and totally untrue piece of disinformation finally balked the Russians.

"How useful a part this work of Chinese intelligence played in paving the way to an unofficial alliance with the USA is not easy to assess, but it should not be underestimated.

"The smears manufactured against Kissinger by the KGB were planted on a double-agent in the USA who had over the years supplied the CIA with a long list of KGB and GRU (Soviet military intelligence) agents . . . His intelligence had been of the utmost importance to the USA. Thus, initially, some U.S. intelligence chiefs were inclined to accept this planted KGB story on Kissinger as authentic."

Deacon also claims in his book that the Chinese communists gave the U.S. details of a Soviet espionage set up in Hong Kong which eventually led to collapse of the network.

The Deacon book is a fascinating and unique history of the Chinese secret services dating from pre-Christian times up to the present decade.

Checking back on receipts paid on gas in 1965, I find I paid .33 9/10 and .35 9/10 and .38 0/10 per gallon. We were earning $5,000 per year at that time.

We now earn $10,000 per year and pay .47 9/10 and .49 9/10 per gallon for gas. So it looks as if gas is a better bargain today than it was in 1965.

The problem is, after buying the family groceries for the week, 10 cents a gallon would be too much to pay for gas.

Omaha (AP) — There's still some honor among thieves, at least for rookies in the business.

Mr and Mrs. Thomas Secora answered a knock on their apartment door Wednesday night to find themselves confronted by a young, gun-weilding bandit.

The Secora's told police the nervous man asked if they had any money.

Then the intruder explained it was his first holdup.

From there, the conversation continued for 10 minutes, the Secora's learning that the man was without work, a new father, and in desperate need of funds.

After the conversation, the bandit, tucked his gun back in his waistband, apologized for bothering the Secora's, and left without any money.

Final Rites Held For Child Killed In House Fire

Alliance (AP) — Funeral services for a Nebraska child, who died in a fire at her home earlier this week, were to be held in Watertown, S. D., Thursday.

Snookie Ann Norton, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Norton of rural Lakeside, was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital here Monday evening.

The child died of smoke inhalation in a bedroom fire in the Norton house on the Sand Beach Cattle Co., ranch south of Lakeside.

Fire officials say they believe the blaze began in some wiring beneath the flooring in the bedroom.

Snookie was born here, but the Norton's moved to Watertown shortly after her birth. They moved to the Sand Beach ranch about one year ago.

Draft Wondered, Why Hadn't She Registered Yet

Columbus (UPI) — Anyone who looks at Randi Ridenour can tell she's a girl.

Randi had to cut through bureaucratic red tape, however, to make Uncle Sam a believer.

Uncle Sam thought Randi's first name was Randy and wondered why she — or he — had not registered for the draft following her — or his — 18th birthday on Dec. 15.

Randi and her father, Ed, a Selective Service questionnaire in hand, went to the National Guard Armory in Columbus this week to straighten out the situation.

"I went along with my father in case there was any doubt about my being a girl," the red-haired, freckled high school senior said Thursday.

"They called the Selective Service office and got my name taken off the list."

Kenneth Neumann, an administrative supply technician with the guard, handled Randi's problem.

"When I got off the telephone with the Selective Service, I told Randi she had to join," Neumann joked. "But she said she couldn't."

Neumann said it was the first time in six years he had such a mixup. "There was probably an error along the line," he said.

He Couldn't

Omaha (AP) — There's still some honor among thieves, at least for rookies in the business.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Secora answered a knock on their apartment door Wednesday night to find themselves confronted by a young, gun-weilding bandit.

The Secora's told police the nervous man asked if they had any money.

Then the intruder explained it was his first holdup.

From there, the conversation continued for 10 minutes, the Secora's learning that the man was without work, a new father, and in desperate need of funds.

After the conversation, the bandit, tucked his gun back in his waistband, apologized for bothering the Secora's, and left without any money.

Final Rites Held For Child Killed In House Fire

Alliance (AP) — Funeral services for a Nebraska child, who died in a fire at her home earlier this week, were to be held in Watertown, S. D., Thursday.

Snookie Ann Norton, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Norton of rural Lakeside, was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital here Monday evening.

The child died of smoke inhalation in a bedroom fire in the Norton house on the Sand Beach Cattle Co., ranch south of Lakeside.

Fire officials say they believe the blaze began in some wiring beneath the flooring in the bedroom.

Snookie was born here, but the Norton's moved to Watertown shortly after her birth. They moved to the Sand Beach ranch about one year ago.

Draft Wondered, Why Hadn't She Registered Yet

Columbus (UPI) — Anyone who looks at Randi Ridenour can tell she's a girl.

Randi had to cut through bureaucratic red tape, however, to make Uncle Sam a believer.

Uncle Sam thought Randi's first name was Randy and wondered why she — or he — had not registered for the draft following her — or his — 18th birthday on Dec. 15.

Randi and her father, Ed, a Selective Service questionnaire in hand, went to the National Guard Armory in Columbus this week to straighten out the situation.

"I went along with my father in case there was any doubt about my being a girl," the red-haired, freckled high school senior said Thursday.

"They called the Selective Service office and got my name taken off the list."

Kenneth Neumann, an administrative supply technician with the guard, handled Randi's problem.

"When I got off the telephone with the Selective Service, I told Randi she had to join," Neumann joked. "But she said she couldn't."

Neumann said it was the first time in six years he had such a mixup. "There was probably an error along the line," he said.

$9.9 Million Allocated To Aid Tech Colleges

By The Associated Press

The Legislature passed and sent to the governor Thursday a $9.9 million deficit appropriations bill, aimed largely at rescuing the state's financially troubled technical community colleges.

The bill, LB537, was approved on a 42-0 vote.

The bill would provide $5.9 million to replace revenues lost when the Nebraska Supreme Court ruled tech colleges were being financed by what amounted to an unconstitutional statewide property tax.

The bill also contains $2.6 million for local governments, to reimburse them for higher-than-expected homestead property tax exemptions.

The Appropriations Committee introduced the tech college bill. The plight of tech colleges was considered one key problem to be faced in the first session of this 84th Legislature.

The bill bails schools out for the current school year, but the Unicameral has yet to address the problem of funding the schools next year.

After the Supreme Court decision last summer, officials of tech schools told Gov. J. James Exon and legislators that they would have to close their doors unless an emergency appropriation was provided.

Appropriations contained in the bill passed Thursday would provide the following sums for the technical community college areas:

Metropolitan, $1.51 million; Southeast $1.38 million; Central, $1.3 million; Northeast, $745,700, Mid Plains $556,812 and Western $470,103.

The tech schools bill had been scheduled for a final vote last Monday, but Alliance Sen. Leslie Stull had action delayed until Thursday because of questions involving the State University of Nebraska.

Stull said questions had been raised about appropriating money for SUN, which in the past has been funded through federal sources and national grants.

After Thursday's vote, Stull said he was satisfied and raised no objection about passage of the bill because no state tax money was involved.

The $265,000 for SUN came from cash or revolving fund sources. Stull and Hastings Sen. Richard Marvel said much of that represented tuition money for the courses offered by SUN, the experimental educational television and multimedia project.

Stull said the money did not represent a state financial commitment.

He said the key to state and legislative commitment to SUN would come when next year's SUN budget comes up for a vote. Marvel agreed

Marvel said Thursday's bill simply allows SUN "to collect and expend tuition money, but the key issue has to do with the request for tax money to run SUN," Marvel said.

"If they want the general population to support them, then that's something else," Marvel said

Exon Estimate Inaccurate On Service Costs—Barnett

Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett contends that Gov. J.J. Exon was inaccurate in saying that a bill to provide evaluations of juvenile offenders would cost the state $250,000.

Exon vetoed LB294, but Barnett said the bill provides needed services for juveniles and total cost to the state can only be estimated.

In a statement released Thursday, Barnett said one certain cost would be $45,000 in lost revenue that would have come from the state's two Youth Development centers.

In addition, Barnett said, new state costs of up to $100,000 could be involved if the bill were fully implemented, but that figure might be much lower because costs of the evaluations "can be absorbed in the mental health services and other existing facilities."

Barnett said the program is needed so juveniles will have a better chance of avoiding future offenses.

The bill is designed to give juvenile court judges adequate information to make sentencing decisions.

Court Cost Hike Bill Fails

For the second time in three days Nebraska lawmakers refused to give first round approval to a bill which would increase basic criminal court case costs.

The vote to advance LB287 Thursday was 16-16.

Before that ballot, an amendment was approved to boost the basic cost of a case from $6 to $7.

In addition, those assessed costs pay $1 into the judicial retirement fund and another $1 into the law enforcement improvement fund.

The legislators turned down another amendment from Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh. He wanted to trim the daily witness fee for those appearing before grand juries from $20 to $10.

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora said the Cavanaugh suggestion marked "a red letter day. In my 13 years in the Legislature, it is the first attempt to reduce anybody's pay."

Simpson Urges Liquor License Limit

By United Press International

The Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee Thursday conducted hearings on bills to limit the number of liquor licenses according to population, revise price controls and to prohibit liquor sales at filling stations.

The committee, however, did not act on any of the bills.

Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln suggested in his LB68 that in some cases too many licenses are out now and that the number should be limited to possibly one license per 1,500 in population.

He said without any limits abuses tend to result from undue competition.

More City Licenses

In turn, Sen. William Skarda of Omaha suggested in his LB421 that the City of Omaha in particular and all other cities in general be allowed to own more than two liquor licenses.

Clarence Shafer, Omaha's parks director, said the city would like to be able to sell liquor at the Orpheum Theater. But he said the city can't because it already owns its two licenses.

Skarda's bill and Simpson's bill ran into opposition from the Omaha-Douglas County Beer and Liquor Retailers Association, which said not only should local government decide the number of licenses but it should not be allowed to compete with private license holders.

Pricing measures included LB204, sponsored by Sen. John DeCamp of Nleigh, and LB340, sponsored by Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue.

The DeCamp measure would require at least a 15% markup from wholesale while LB340 would prohibit the sale of liquor at wholesale at any price higher than the lowest in the nation.

Industry Support

DeCamp's other bill, LB143, drew support from the Nebraska Licensed Beverage Association.

Besides prohibiting the sale of liquor by fuel outlets, it would allow persons 16 years and older to not only carry liquor to a car but ring up sales and clear away tables.

Another provision would allow a retailer to buy liquor from a wholesaler even if he owes another wholesaler. James Moylan of Omaha, representing the beverage association, said that was to allow a retailer to buy from one wholesaler while he's involved in litigation with another.

Moylan said in short that provision would do away with the current so-called "blackball rule."

Asked why the suggested prohibition on filling stations selling liquor, Moylan said it was to try and keep liquor retailers "strictly in the liquor business."

Ed Department Will Offer Revised School Standards

The State Department of Education has revised and upgraded the minimum rules and regulations for the approval of public and nonpublic schools.

The rules will be distributed to schools and a series of area meetings will be held in late April to provide an opportunity for suggestions from the public.

In 1965, when the rules were last revised, the State Board of Education disallowed the minimum regulations which applied to Class I schools — those that maintain only elementary grades under the direction of a single school board.

"For the past 10 years, Class I schools have had no standards of quality to guide them nor to assure their patrons that a minimum educational program was being provided for the students attending the schools," said Hugh Harlan, administrator of School Management Services.

The new regulations include minimum standards also for Class I schools, he said.

New York City Gets Payment

NEW YORK (AP) — The city Finance Administration received a $1,227.35 check from former President Richard M. Nixon for payment of his New York City income taxes for the first four months of 1969.

Exon Vetoes 'Step Backwards'

Gov. J. James Exon Thursday vetoed a bill — his fourth this session — to exempt corporate executives who own 20% of their firm's stock from workmen's compensation coverage.

"This measure would be a step backwards for Nebraska's workmen's compensation laws which have been progressive . . . and in conformity with other states," he said.

Exon supplied senators with policy statements adopted by the National and Midwest Governors Conferences which urge the states to conform to model workmen's compensation laws recommended by the National Council of State Governments.

Uniformity is needed, he said, to prevent a federal takeover of workmen's compensation programs.

The bill in question, LB2, was opposed by both the AFL-CIO and the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry.

"When two such diverse groups agree, it is a veritable signal for caution," Exon said.

Exon noted that individual proprietorships and partnerships are not required to maintain workmen's compensation coverage on owners or partners. It is only when the corporate form of ownership is chosen that stockholding officers need to be covered.

Incorporation has certain federal tax advantages, Exon said, and with that comes responsibilities, one of which is the workmen's compensation coverage.

DeCamp's other bill, LB143, drew support from the Nebraska Licensed Beverage Association.

Besides prohibiting the sale of liquor by fuel outlets, it would allow persons 16 years and older to not only carry liquor to a car but ring up sales and clear away tables.

Another provision would allow a retailer to buy liquor from a wholesaler even if he owes another wholesaler. James Moylan of Omaha, representing the beverage association, said that was to allow a retailer to buy from one wholesaler while he's involved in litigation with another.

Moylan said in short that provision would do away with the current so-called "blackball rule."

Asked why the suggested prohibition on filling stations selling liquor, Moylan said it was to try and keep liquor retailers "strictly in the liquor business."

Exon Vetoes 'Step Backwards'

Gov. J. James Exon Thursday vetoed a bill — his fourth this session — to exempt corporate executives who own 20% of their firm's stock from workmen's compensation coverage.

"This measure would be a step backwards for Nebraska's workmen's compensation laws which have been progressive . . . and in conformity with other states," he said.

Exon supplied senators with policy statements adopted by the National and Midwest Governors Conferences which urge the states to conform to model workmen's compensation laws recommended by the National Council of State Governments.

Uniformity is needed, he said, to prevent a federal takeover of workmen's compensation programs.

The bill in question, LB2, was opposed by both the AFL-CIO and the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry.

"When two such diverse groups agree, it is a veritable signal for caution," Exon said.

Exon noted that individual proprietorships and partnerships are not required to maintain workmen's compensation coverage on owners or partners. It is only when the corporate form of ownership is chosen that stockholding officers need to be covered.

Incorporation has certain federal tax advantages, Exon said, and with that comes responsibilities, one of which is the workmen's compensation coverage.

Fort Robinson's Future Debated

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

For three hours Thursday, state senators weighed the Sioux Indians' claim to Fort Robinson against the state park's value as one of Nebraska's prime recreation areas.

The Legislature's Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee aired Sen. Ernest Chambers' LB424 which would deed an 11,360-acre tract of pine trees and buttes in northwest Nebraska to the Sioux Nation.

Chambers said his only weapons in the drive to return the former U.S. Army cavalry post to the Indians are justice and morality.

1868 Treaty Cited

Chambers and Robert Yellow Bird pointed to an 1868 treaty and a more recent law which states that all surplus federal property in unceded Indian lands shall revert to the Indians.

Instead, the land was acquired by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission from the federal government for a state park in 1972.

Quoting the greek philosopher Thucydides, Chambers said the Indians did not get the fort because the strong have the power to get what they want while the weak accept what they must.

It is time for whites to keep their word, Chambers said.

No Action Taken

The committee took no action on the bill, and committee members were generally reluctant to discuss afterwards whether they supported or opposed it.

Committee chairman Sen. George Syas said the committee would probably act on the bill Friday, despite a request from Yellow Bird that the committee delay action until a legal brief on the issue can be submitted.

Asked how he felt about LB424, Syas said, "Why not come to our executive session tomorrow and find out."

Alex Lunderman, a Sioux from Omaha, cited the law regarding the reversion of surplus property to Indians and said he felt "the state has accepted stolen property."

For Junior College

Yellow Bird said the Sioux would like to use the fort as a junior college and medical center for Indians and possibly other poor people.

As for any impact on the residents of Crawford and others whose economic well-being depends on tourism at Fort Robinson, Yellow Bird said, "These people have no business being there. They are there illegally. This is Indian country and is going to be Indian country. We are not citizens of your country."

The bill was opposed by Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance, Sen. Otho Kime of Valentine, the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and the State Historical Society.

Said Best Use

Fort Robinson's scenery, geology and history annually attract 200,000 visitors, Barbee told the committee He said the fort can do more as a state park to improve the quality of life for Nebraskans and area residents than in any other use.

He noted the annual income from the park almost meets the operating costs.

The deed turning the fort over to the state specifies it must be used for public purposes or else revert to the federal government, Barbee said.

But Chambers said the restriction was designed to keep it out of the hands of land developers and did not envision attempts to return it to the Indians.

Not Always Sioux Land

Marvin Kivett, director of the Historical Society which operates a museum at the fort, said the fort area has not been the property of the Sioux for thousands of years as some claimed.

He said the Sioux drove the Pawnee out of the area in 1973 and in turn were driven out themselves in 1890 by the U.S. Army.

Goodyear Report Said 'Misleading'

A report last week that the Lincoln Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. was to lay off 100 workers and begin a plant-wide three-day work week this week apparently was "very misleading," according to Lincoln Goodyear personnel manager Paul Ess.

William Demeza, public relations official at Goodyear's central office in Akron, Ohio, reported last Friday that the plant-wide layoffs and shortened work weeks were an attempt to meet economic pressures.

However, Thursday afternoon, Ess said, "We're doing nothing different right now from what we did last December" when the real economic slump began.

"Our work force is pretty stable right now," he added.

Ess explained that several people have been laid off during the past few months, but many have been recalled as the market for the company's manufactured items picks up.

Also, Ess pointed out that "since the first of the year, certain selected departments in the plant have had shortened work weeks at various times," but there has not been a plant-wide three-day work week.

Because Goodyear manufactures items for automobile, agricultural equipment and other industries, the shortened work weeks in the various departments also are "controlled by market requirements," Ess said.

Although Ess could not report the number of employes laid off during the past three months nor the percentage of those recalled, he did say that Goodyear employes participate in a supplement unemployment benefit plan. Under the plan, Goodyear workers receive up to 80% of their total wages while unemployed.

Also, employes wages are supplemented by the plan when they do not work full weeks, Ess said.

Lincoln Seniors To Spend Week Assisting Thone

Two high school seniors from Lincoln will spend the week of April 13-20 as interns in the Washington office of Rep. Charles Thone

They are Cristy A. McCarty, of Lincoln East High, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin McCarty, 7200 Old Post Road; and Louis J. Grabowski of Lincoln Southeast High, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grabowski, 2351 S. 40th.

Ten seniors from Thone's 1st Congressional District are making the trip. Chosen as an alternate from Lincoln in case one of the 10 cannot go was Alan Mitchell Shaw of Lincoln High, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Shaw, 1836 S. 26th.

The interns were picked from 167 applicants for the first-time program, according to Thone.

Each intern, Thone said, will do research in his office on a current problem awaiting action by the House of Representatives.

State Insurance Dept. Takes Over Pioneer

State Insurance Director James Jackson said Thursday his department has taken over complete control of Pioneer Insurance Co.

Jackson said the move was designed to protect the policyholders of the financially troubled firm, which has been under a protective voting trust since November 1973.

Jackson said he did not see any losses for policyholders as a result of the complete takeover. The takeover, he added, was done under the terms of a law passed last year.

The insurance director said the move was made with the concurrence of the attorney general's office because of a deterioration in the value of the company's assets in some California real estate, the root of the problem which resulted in the voting trust.

Jackson said his department ordered two appraisals of the property from the same certified appraisal firm.

He said in August 1973, the firm appraised the California property at $12 million. But the same company, Jackson said, now figures the value at $3 million as ,opposed to the $6 million Pioneer actually invested.

Jackson said the department will seek an insurance company buyer for the policies of Pioneer.

Fremont Utilities Given Added Compliance Time

State Director of Environmental Control Dan Drain said Thursday Fremont Utilities has been given a change in its compliance schedule to study a cheaper means of removing ashes from stack gases.

Drain noted the change does not affect the final compliance date for the plant

The change gives Fremont Utilities three extra months to submit air pollution control plans and award contracts.

The Fremont City Council has asked the State Department of Environmental Control for the extra time to study installation of a multicyclone dust collecting method. Normally, ashes from power plants are removed by precipitators.

However, a precipitator would cost the plant $2.5 million, Drain said The dust collector would cost $500,000.

Drain said the engineering firm will have to guarantee the system will work before it can be installed.

MOMMA Aimed At Help For City's Single Mothers

"Single motherhood is a problem."

That's what flyers floating around town claim.

Their purpose is to announce the organizational meeting of MOMMA, a group for single mothers.

MOMMA's first meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, at First Presbyterian Church, 17th and F.

The organization, modeled after one founded in California, is aimed at allowing divorced, separated, widowed and unmarried mothers to have an outlet for their joys, problems and anxieties in rearing children single-handedly, said Ruth Kroese, a divorced woman who created the local chapter.

She hopes the group will establish a child care coop in the near future. Long-range plans include searching for grants to help single mothers further their educations and have more opportunities in the work world.

"I want us to be happy with our lives as they are," Ms. Kroese said.

The books, including science, art, economics, history, folklore and literary works, will be on display in Love Library during the festival

Goodyear Report Said 'Misleading'

A report last week that the Lincoln Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. was to lay off 100 workers and begin a plant-wide three-day work week this week apparently was "very misleading," according to Lincoln Goodyear personnel manager Paul Ess.

William Demeza, public relations official at Goodyear's central office in Akron, Ohio, reported last Friday that the plant-wide layoffs and shortened work weeks were an attempt to meet economic pressures.

However, Thursday afternoon, Ess said, "We're doing nothing different right now from what we did last December" when the real economic slump began.

"Our work force is pretty stable right now," he added.

Ess explained that several people have been laid off during the past few months, but many have been recalled as the market for the company's manufactured items picks up.

Also, Ess pointed out that "since the first of the year, certain selected departments in the plant have had shortened work weeks at various times," but there has not been a plant-wide three-day work week.

Because Goodyear manufactures items for automobile, agricultural equipment and other industries, the shortened work weeks in the various departments also are "controlled by market requirements," Ess said.

Although Ess could not report the number of employes laid off during the past three months nor the percentage of those recalled, he did say that Goodyear employes participate in a supplement unemployment benefit plan. Under the plan, Goodyear workers receive up to 80% of their total wages while unemployed.

Also, employes wages are supplemented by the plan when they do not work full weeks, Ess said.

Fremont Utilities Given Added Compliance Time

State Director of Environmental Control Dan Drain said Thursday Fremont Utilities has been given a change in its compliance schedule to study a cheaper means of removing ashes from stack gases.

Drain noted the change does not affect the final compliance date for the plant.

The change gives Fremont Utilities three extra months to submit air pollution control plans and award contracts.

The Fremont City Council has asked the State Department of Environmental Control for the extra time to study installation of a multicyclone dust collecting method. Normally, ashes from power plants are removed by precipitators.

However, a precipitator would cost the plant $2.5 million, Drain said. The dust collector would cost $500,000.

Drain said the engineering firm will have to guarantee the system will work before it can be installed.

MOMMA Aimed At Help For City's Single Mothers

"Single motherhood is a problem."

That's what flyers floating around town claim.

Their purpose is to announce the organizational meeting of MOMMA, a group for single mothers.

MOMMA's first meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, at First Presbyterian Church, 17th and F.

The organization, modeled after one founded in California, is aimed at allowing divorced, separated, widowed and unmarried mothers to have an outlet for their joys, problems and anxieties in rearing children single-handedly, said Ruth Kroese, a divorced woman who created the local chapter.

She hopes the group will establish a child care coop in the near future. Long-range plans include searching for grants to help single mothers further their educations and have more opportunities in the work world.

"I want us to be happy with our lives as they are," Ms. Kroese said.

Venezuelan Gift Of Books To NU Biggest Of Kind

The dean of libraries at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Dr. Gerald A. Rudolph, said a recent gift is "the first collection of books of this size to be donated to NU by a foreign country."

UNL has received books from Venezuela worth an estimated $20,000. A Venezuelan publishing company, Editorial Monte Avila, donated the Spanish books as part of the cultural exchange festival, Venezuelan Ahora, to be held April 7-25 at UNL.

The books, including science, art, economics, history, folklore and literary works, will be on display in Love Library during the festival.

County Officers Group Names Hruza President

Kearney (AP) — Gerald Hruza of St. Paul, a Howard County supervisor, was elected president of the Central Nebraska County Officers Association meeting here Thursday.

Elections were held as the group, which represents 22 counties, held a one-day meeting.

Hruza, who had been the group's secretary-treasurer, succeeds Martin Kahle, a Kearney County supervisor.

Conrad J. Boehler, a Harlan County supervisor from Orleans, was selected vice president, and Mrs. Margaret Swanson, registrar of deeds in Buffalo County, was selected as the group's new secretary-treasurer.

About 225 members attended the meeting.

Lincoln Seniors To Spend Week Assisting Thone

Two high school seniors from Lincoln will spend the week of April 13-20 as interns in the Washington office of Rep. Charles Thone

They are Cristy A. McCarty, of Lincoln East High, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin McCarty, 7200 Old Post Road; and Louis J. Grabowski of Lincoln Southeast High, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grabowski, 2351 S. 40th.

Ten seniors from Thone's 1st Congressional District are making the trip. Chosen as an alternate from Lincoln in case one of the 10 cannot go was Alan Mitchell Shaw of Lincoln High, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Shaw, 1836 S. 26th.

The interns were picked from 167 applicants for the first-time program, according to Thone.

Each intern, Thone said, will do research in his office on a current problem awaiting action by the House of Representatives.

State Insurance Dept. Takes Over Pioneer

State Insurance Director James Jackson said Thursday his department has taken over complete control of Pioneer Insurance Co.

Jackson said the move was designed to protect the policyholders of the financially troubled firm, which has been under a protective voting trust since November 1973.

Jackson said he did not see any losses for policyholders as a result of the complete takeover. The takeover, he added, was done under the terms of a law passed last year.

The insurance director said the move was made with the concurrence of the attorney general's office because of a deterioration in the value of the company's assets in some California real estate, the root of the problem which resulted in the voting trust.

Jackson said his department ordered two appraisals of the property from the same certified appraisal firm.

He said in August 1973, the firm appraised the California property at $12 million. But the same company, Jackson said, now figures the value at $3 million as opposed to the $6 million Pioneer actually invested.

Jackson said the department will seek an insurance company buyer for the policies of Pioneer.

Marie Is Waiting To Die

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

At 91, Marie is looking forward to two things.

One is her 92nd birthday party this Saturday.

The other is dying.

In the back of her closet, stashed behind the fishing gear, Marie has a blue, cardboard box, twisted in plastic and tied with string.

Inside that box are her treasures.

Will Cover Expenses

She proudly scoops up her insurance papers, paid up in full, many, many years back. It's enough to cover her last illness and burial expenses.

Wrapped inside slightly yellowed tissue paper, neatly pressed and folded are the slip, panties and stockings she wants to be buried in. There's also a pink, embroidered hanky she wants cupped in her hands.

"I get so much pleasure from everythin' I got," Marie confides. "Even a broom."

Marie isn't rich. No siree. But she gets by "just fine" on $150 or so a month from the Social Security Administration.

"Heck, I don't need anything," she says emphatically, explaining how she makes do on so little while most people kick and scream about higher and higher food and gasoline prices.

'Don't Owe Nobody'

"I don't owe nobody so much as a howdy-do or a good-bye." Never has and never will and she's mighty proud of it.

People who know the slight, white-haired woman, whose shoulders stoop only when she's out to pick up her benefits, headed for the grocery over on O Street or calling on friends.

"These two take me wherever I go," she says, pointing to her calloused and weathered feet, bare on the carpeting.

One reason Marie has never worried about money is she has never had much.

Her father was a "pony solider" stationed at Fort Robinson when she was born. Her mother died when she was six months old. Her father died when she was 15.

Half She Saved

As soon as she could stand on a box and reach the sink, she started washing dishes for 10 cents a day. Half of that she gave to the woman who raised her. The other half she saved.

After working long and hard hours most of her life, Marie says she "thanks the people for whatever they give me."

Every month she squirrels away just enough to pay her $37 rent in a low-income apartment complex. The rest spreads thin by the end of the month.

Living doesn't worry her. Dying she looks forward to.

"What am I here for?" she asks plaintively. It's hard being old and alone.

No Family Left

Like other elderly people who have outlived their families, Marie has no one, "not even a 52nd cousin" to call on her.

For that reason, maybe she's sometimes too willing to welcome visitors, even strangers into her home.

She has some precious things — at least they're precious to her. There's the handmade quilt a lady from Beatrice gave her years ago and the two goose down pillows a sister in Texas sent her. They've never been used.

"I don't want to wear everything out at once," she says, although she's not quite sure why she saves them. Later, while carefully refolding the quilt to tuck it away again, she remembers that it won't fit her tiny twin bed. It hangs to the floor.

"I ain't gonna sweep the floor with a present somebody give to me," she says, tears welling up in her eyes.

Never Used

"I never even had it on my bed."

We mustn't forget the red party dress she's planning to wear this Saturday when friends come to call. She doesn't want any presents, just "for people to come see me. But they have to eat what I cook."

There's also the "prettiest dress you ever saw." It's a burgundy knit decorated with shiny red beads.

There's a note attached, written on an old church bulletin:

"My wish to be buried in this.

Marie"

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♦	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♥	Pass	2♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠

Opening lead - king of hearts.

I was playing with Helen Sobel in the Spingold many years ago and got to four spades. West led the K-Q-J of hearts and I trumped the third one.

There were lots of things to consider. First of all, it was important to avoid losing two trump tricks. Thus, I couldn't afford to play the ace and another spade if it turned out that West had the K-J-x.

Even if it turned out that East had the K-J-x and I played the ace and another trump, he could win with the king and return the jack. In that case I'd have a losing club to take care of — since it would become impossible to ruff a club in dummy.

Also to be taken into account was the possibility that, if East had the K-J-x of trumps, I might save the club loser by either taking a diamond finesse or by cashing the A-K and ruffing a diamond in the hope the queen would fall.

All these and many other thoughts went through my mind. But they took time — lots of time. Helen got up from the table when I started to think, went wandering about all over the room, came back later to see whether I'd played a card yet—I hadn't—went off again, and eventually settled down at a nearby sofa to read a magazine.

My opponents chatted amiably, occasionally getting up to stretch or take a drink of water. Time went on.

Finally, after fifteen minutes, I decided to play the ace and another trump. The trumps proved to be divided 2-2 and I showed my cards, claiming the contract. Every other conceivable line of play would also have succeeded.

Helen returned to the table soon after and asked anxiously: "Did you make it?" "Sure," said I, "it was a laydown."

Sketches Help Set Record Straight

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Joan Tomlinson has spent hours studying the eyes of Nebraska women from the past.

And though these women have diverse backgrounds, their eyes show a common characteristic — determination. A determination that Ms. Tomlinson transfers to paper.

Joan Tomlinson's sketches of these women appear each week in newspapers throughout the state to illustrate the Nebraska Women's Hall of Fame, brainchild of the Nebraska International Women's Year Coalition.

"You always hear about the men of history, the governors, the senators. You never hear about the women, the pioneers, the doctors. They've been just as much a part of the development of our state as the men.

'Owe It To Women'

"We owe this to the women in Nebraska, to bring out their history," said Ms. Tomlinson about the project which takes a day each month of her already packed time.

As a member of the Nebraska Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, the organization backing the "Hall of Fame" project, Ms. Tomlinson first agreed to do about a dozen sketches. Now she is involved for the entire year — "the longest project I've ever taken on."

A 1971 graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln with a degree in graphics, Ms. Tomlinson now works for Mid-America Webpress — until 3:30 p.m. each day.

And after 3:30 her calendar is black with meetings. She's active on both local and state levels with women's organizations and activities — and she is involved with "all phases of the Democratic Party." She is also the national committeewoman for Nebraska's Young Democrats.

5 Campaigns At Once

Last fall she worked on five different campaigns at the same time. "I know so many individuals and want to help them . . . I didn't limit myself," she explained.

"It's a crazy balance to be an artist and to be in politics," said Ms. Tomlinson.

Ms. Tomlinson is also a feminist — "not a women's libber. I'm not a bra burner. I don't put men down." She believes that a woman can be involved in the feminist movement and still be a feminine person.

"Women can go out and get an education; they can become involved in community activities . . . run for political office, be involved in business."

Honorable Choice

She also believes that choosing to stay home, run the household and raise children is a valid and honorable choice.

Each month Ms. Tomlinson sets aside a certain time to do the historial sketches, which take from three to four hours apiece. "I have to gear myself up for this. It has to be the right time and feeling to do it."

Joan Tomlinson studies their photographs. She looks at the hair style, the type of clothing and jewelry they wore, and, of course, their eyes.

And Determination

In the eyes of pioneer woman Eliza Wilcox Merrill, Ms. Tomlinson saw the strain, the wear and tear of rugged times — and the determination.

And in the delicate blue eyes of Ms. Tomlinson, artist, political worker and feminist, is the determination of modern women.

"Men feel that women are out to take over the world.

Not true, she says.

"We just wish they would move over."

MS. TOMLINSON . . . studies eyes of pioneer women.

Woman Feels Like Taxi Operator

DEAR ABBY I can sympathize with anyone who is taken advantage of by people who don t drive and are always looking for rides (I call them "schnorrers ")

Abby, I make sure my tank is not in need of filling when I have company with me because I don't want them to think that if I pull into a filling station it is a hunt for them to buy some gas.

Wouldn't you think that after years of chauffeuring people around one would give me a small gift, or buy me a lunch? Never! And I never see any of these people unless I am taking them someplace.

I have decided against joining a certain organization because I would be a taxi for everyone going my way.

My car is a convenience, but it's also an expense. My husband is the provider. I'm not employed

Please print this, so people who are always "schnorring" rides will realize that some little expression of gratitude besides "thanks a lot" and then slamming the car door would be appreciated.

HAD IT WITH SCHNORRERS

DEAR HAD IT: Here's your letter and I hope it helps. I think you're foolish for denying yourself the pleasure of joing a club for the reason you mentioned. Join, but don't allow yourself to be used.

DEAR ABBY· Is there some way I can break my German shephards of killing chickens?

They have done it only once, but I have heard that once they do it, they will not stop.

Someone suggested that I tie the dead chickens around the dogs' necks until the chickens rot and it will cure them of killing chickens

It sounds cruel, and I don't think I'd have the stomach to do it Can you, or some of your readers, suggest another cure?

DOG LOVER

DEAR DOG LOVER: Because dogs kill only when they are in pairs or packs, let only one dog run at a time. Hanging the dead chicken around the dog's neck won't work as a rule. You could punish the dogs by hitting them a hard whack to let them know they've done wrong, but the best "cure" is to keep the dogs away from the chickens. And the chickens away from the dogs.

DEAR ABBY I have a strange problem. I have been happily married for 14 years. My father-in-law remarried six years ago. His wife has a habit of giving me second-hand gifts.

In the days of the mini skirts, she gave me four half-slips that came down past my knee, a purse with a telephone number in it, and six nightgowns that smelled of mothballs!

This woman dresses beautifully, has excellent taste in clothes, and I cannot imagine why she would pass on these second-hand gifts to me that she wouldn't wear herself And she certainly can afford to buy new gifts.

Should I return the next gift that is obviously second-hand, and tell her I have no use for it? Or should I say it doesn't fit? Or what?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Accept the gift graciously, and dispose of it any way you wish.

Sketches Help Set Record Straight

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Joan Tomlinson has spent hours studying the eyes of Nebraska women from the past.

And though these women have diverse backgrounds, their eyes show a common characteristic — determination. A determination that Ms. Tomlinson transfers to paper.

Joan Tomlinson's sketches of these women appear each week in newspapers throughout the state to illustrate the Nebraska Women's Hall of Fame, brainchild of the Nebraska International Women's Year Coalition.

"You always hear about the men of history, the governors, the senators. You never hear about the women, the pioneers, the doctors. They've been just as much a part of the development of our state as the men.

'Owe It To Women'

"We owe this to the women in Nebraska, to bring out their history," said Ms. Tomlinson about the project which takes a day each month of her already packed time.

As a member of the Nebraska Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, the organization backing the "Hall of Fame" project, Ms. Tomlinson first agreed to do about a dozen sketches. Now she is involved for the entire year — "the longest project I've ever taken on."

A 1971 graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln with a degree in graphics, Ms. Tomlinson now works for Mid-America Webpress — until 3:30 p.m. each day.

And after 3:30 her calendar is black with meetings. She's active on both local and state levels with women's organizations and activities — and she is involved with "all phases of the Democratic Party." She is also the national committeewoman for Nebraska's Young Democrats.

5 Campaigns At Once

Last fall she worked on five different campaigns at the same time. "I know so many individuals and want to help them . . . I didn't limit myself," she explained.

"It's a crazy balance to be an artist and to be in politics," said Ms. Tomlinson.

Ms. Tomlinson is also a feminist — "not a women's libber. I'm not a bra burner. I don't put men down." She believes that a woman can be involved in the feminist movement and still be a feminine person.

"Women can go out and get an education; they can become involved in community activities . . . run for political office, be involved in business."

Honorable Choice

She also believes that choosing to stay home, run the household and raise children is a valid and honorable choice.

Each month Ms. Tomlinson sets aside a certain time to do the historial sketches, which take from three to four hours apiece. "I have to gear myself up for this. It has to be the right time and feeling to do it."

Joan Tomlinson studies their photographs. She looks at the hair style, the type of clothing and jewelry they wore, and, of course, their eyes.

And Determination

In the eyes of pioneer woman Eliza Wilcox Merrill, Ms. Tomlinson saw the strain, the wear and tear of rugged times — and the determination.

And in the delicate blue eyes of Ms. Tomlinson, artist, political worker and feminist, is the determination of modern women.

"Men feel that women are out to take over the world.

Not true, she says.

"We just wish they would move over."

MS. TOMLINSON . . . studies eyes of pioneer women.

Woman Feels Like Taxi Operator

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with anyone who is taken advantage of by people who don't drive and are always looking for rides. (I call them "schnorrers.")

Abby, I make sure my tank is not in need of filling when I have company with me because I don't want them to think that if I pull into a filling station it is a hint for them to buy some gas.

Wouldn't you think that after years of chauffeuring people around one would give me a small gift, or buy me a lunch? Never! And I never see any of these people unless I am taking them someplace.

I have decided against joining a certain organization because I would be a taxi for everyone going my way.

My car is a convenience, but it's also an expense. My husband is the provider. I'm not employed.

Firing Of Ranger Upheld By Board

The City Personnel Board Thursday upheld the firing of a park ranger who struck another ranger in the eye.

The ranger, Richard Baird, was fired by Parks Superintendent Richard Hilligus for "conduct unbecoming an officer."

The incident occurred Feb. 7 at ranger headquarters at Antelope Park.

Ranger Joe Knopp testified at the hearing that the blow from Baird cracked a bone around his eye and that he stayed home from work for five days on doctor's orders.

Baird testified that he was provoked by Knopp when Knopp knocked him against a wall. He said the action caused his ear to bleed overnight.

Baird testified that immediately before the incident he had accidentally knocked Knopp's can of mace from a table and kicked it across the floor. He said Knopp called him a "bastard" and acted like he was going to throw Baird's briefcase to the floor.

Knopp was suspended for five days without pay in connection with the incident.

Assistant Parks Superintendent Herbert Cords, who investigated the incident, told the board he recommended that Baird be fired because the event indicated he could not cope with stress.

"If he's going to hit one of our rangers, what is going to happen next? Is he going to hit some boy?" Cords asked.

Hilligus said the fact that Baird had been suspended a week without pay in connection with a 1973 incident did not enter into his decision to fire Baird.

In that incident Baird fired a shot into the roof of the bathhouse at the Antelope Park Swimming Pool at 23rd and M during an altercation there.

Baird said he fired the shot because another ranger was being assaulted by a group of youths. Citizen groups demanded an investigation into the incident and Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf suspended Baird for violating a departmental rule on the use of firearms.

Park rangers, who have the same arrest powers as Lincoln police, are assigned to enforce laws on park land in the city, although they can make arrests at other locations.

Fire Safety May Require Older Hotels To Lock Up

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Fire Prevention Bureau's efforts to force some of Lincoln's older hotels to comply somewhat with modern fire codes might mean that some of them will close, owners say.

Fire inspectors began ordering changes last fall after receiving many complaints about one hotel, according to the Lincoln Fire Department.

Some of the changes are quite extensive, involving perhaps $8,000 to $10,000 worth of work, according to one owner.

6 Hotels Affected

Six structures are involved in the push to bring the hotels into compliance, according to Inspector Charles Beachamp.

The hotels affected are the Sam Lawrence, the DLD, the Campus, the Central, the Cornhusker and the Clayton House.

The lever being used to bring about compliance is that the structures must be approved by the fire department and the city housing administrator before a hotel permit will be issued this June.

Paul DeKlotz, owner of the DLD Hotel, 112 S. 17th, said the new enforcement definitely raises the possibility the hotel might close.

No Criticism

DeKlotz, like other owners was reluctant to criticize the move by the fire department.

However, he pointed out that some of the hotels cater to a low-income, semi-permanent type of guest who might be dispossessed if the cost of remodeling forces a hotel to close its doors or raise rates.

Another owner, who asked not to be identified, said, "Unfortunately, it affects the poor people, the pensioner on the bottom of the totem pole.

"It's one of those things that happens when there's progress."

Sam Zolot, an owner of the Sam Lawrence, although admitting that the necessary remodeling may be one of the factors forcing the hotel to close its doors, commented, "You can't blame the city. They're just trying to make it safer."

No Displeasure

Managers of the Clayton House and the Radisson-Cornhusker professed no displeasure at the changes they are being asked to make in their buildings.

The Clayton House needs to install a manual fire alarm system with automatic sensors in a few areas.

The Cornhusker is being ordered to install a manual alarm system and to remodel the basement to separate it from an exit corridor.

"Any changes they want us to make are fine with us," said assistant manager Kate Smith. "It just makes it safer for our guests."

The Sam Lawrence, the DLD and the Campus Hotel are being ordered to make the most extensive changes. Both are being required to install fire doors with automatic closers on each floor in stairwells.

The three hotels also have to vacate some rooms in which their windows are also the exit to the fire escape.

Fire inspectors have not yet determined the changes they will order at the Central Hotel.

Vegetarians Gaining Powerful Supporters

©The New York Times

New York—Not long ago, vegetarians were viewed by many people as weird, wiry crusaders for carrot juice who ran around in tennis shoes rather than wear the leather off some animal's back.

As a result, many vegetarians kept their eating habits to themselves. But nowadays, they are coming out of the closet, and they have some powerful supporters on their side, including Dr. Jean Mayer, the Harvard nutritionist.

Vegetarianism, he said, is an idea "that has three things going for it all at once — economics, health and compassion."

According to interviews by New York Times correspondents across the country, more and more people — especially the young — are giving up "flesh foods" in favor of a vegetarian way of life.

There are various reasons: Many vegetarians abhor the thought of killing animals to feed themselves. Others cite health reasons and their aversion to the various hormones, growth-inducing drugs, chemicals and preservatives that are often found in meat. Some say they simply can't afford the price of meat anymore, while others are members of religious groups such as the Seventh Day Adventists and Hare Krishna, whose members refrain from eating meat.

But perhaps the most popular reason for vegetarianism these days is the political-ecological argument that, for moral reasons, red-meat eaters should sustain themselves lower on the world's threatened food chain. The "new vegetarians," as adherents to this theory call themselves, do not feel that it is morally right at the time of a world food crisis to eat red meat — especially when it takes seven to eight pounds of grain to produce one pound of beef.

It is an idea that is especially appealing to the young. Larry Behrendt, a political science sophomore at the University of California in Berkeley and a Vegetarian, put it this way:

"Vegetarianism is the way of the future. If everybody in this country ate less meat, there would be so much more grain to ship to starving countries."

But many Americans are eating more meat, not less. According to the 1974 Handbook of Agricultural Charts, Americans consumed 109 pounds of beef per capita in 1973, compared with 58 pounds per person in 1940. Nutritionists say this and the rest of the meat and poultry that Americans eat provides far more protein than their bodies can readily absorb.

Vegetarians generally come in two main varieties: Lacto-Ovo vegetarians, who will eat milk, cheese and eggs but no "flesh foods," and Vegans, who exclude all animal products.

Is their way of eating healthy and safe? Doctors and nutritionists generally give an almost unqualified "yes" to Lacto-Ovo vegetarianism, but express some doubts about Vegan diets.

"If they have to avoid flesh, I recommend the Lacto-Ovo style," said Dr. Philip White, director of the American Medical Association's Department of Foods and Nutrition.

"If done carefully and well, a vegetarian diet is not harmful," he added. "After all, two-thirds of the world's population subsists on vegetarian diets."

Dr. White warned, though, that a strict Vegan diet could result in a Vitamin B-12 deficiency, which could cause severe anemia and damage to the spinal cord over a period of 10 to 15 years. He recommended Vitamin B-12 supplementation in such a diet.

Mexico Has 'Promising' Oil Finds

©The New York Times

Mexico City—The Mexican government has announced "highly promising" new oil fields in the state of Veracruz but continues to withhold information about the size of its extensive deposits in the southeastern states of Chipas and Tabasco.

In its annual report, Pemex, the state oil monopoly, disclosed that seven wells, capable of producing more than 4,000 barrels a day, were recently drilled near Cotaxtla in the state of Veracruz.

Geological structures there, it said, are similar to those found in Chipas and Tabasco.

Pemex also said that exploratory drilling would soon begin off-shore near the southeastern state of Campeche and onshore in the state of Baja California. Government sources added that they were even more optimistic about Baja California's prospects than those of Veracruz.

Mexico City—The Mexican government has announced "highly promising" new oil fields in the state of Veracruz but continues to withhold information about the size of its extensive deposits in the southeastern states of Chipas and Tabasco.

In its annual report, Pemex, the state oil monopoly, disclosed that seven wells, capable of producing more than 4,000 barrels a day, were recently drilled near Cotaxtla in the state of Veracruz.

Geological structures there, it said, are similar to those found in Chipas and Tabasco.

Pemex also said that exploratory drilling would soon begin off-shore near the southeastern state of Campeche and onshore in the state of Baja California. Government sources added that they were even more optimistic about Baja California's prospects than those of Veracruz.

Farmers 'Scared' Of Surplus

By The Associated Press

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Several thousand farmers who are concerned about the impact of rising productivity on their profits Thursday weighed a proposal to trim corn and soybean planting plans by 10%.

"We're terribly concerned about a surplus of corn and beans, and if we produce this surplus we'll have disastrous prices," warned Gail Hemmingsen, an Akron farmer.

Hemmingsen said the federal government is "asking a 6.5 billion bushel corn crop. We had 4.7 billion bushels in 1974, and we have corn reduced in price by more than $1 a bushel since that harvest.

"We're scared to death of what that price would be if we'd had full production of a 6.5 billion bushel crop."

There is no organization behind what is described as a grassroots movement among farmers from many Midwest states to voluntarily cut back on production.

There have been similar meetings in recent weeks in Nebraska, Illinois, Minnesota, Ohio and Indiana, backers of the movement said.

One of their concerns is that there will be no healthy export market for farm commodities.

"We're very concerend about embargoes and monitoring" by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Ford Administration, Hemmingsen said.

"They've slacked them off, but the damage has been done. We feel a lot of countries have cancelled orders because the government won't guarantee a continuing supply" of farm products.

Farmers are also concerned about costs to produce crops and livestock.

"The costs of anhydrous ammonia (a fertilizer) are up four times from three years ago," Hemmingsen continued.

"Fuel costs are up two and one-half times, and costs for chemicals and feeds have doubled.

"We're also very concerned about what consumers will think of our meeting. They feel if we get an increase in prices, they will get an increase in food costs. That's not necessarily so.

"For example, we've had a 30% drop in milk prices on the farm in the past year, and the price came down only three to four cents a half gallon in grocery stores," Hemmingsen said.

Hemmingsen added that the farmers here are also "concerned about the starving people in the world and we hope a cutback in corn and soybean production won't have an effect on them.

"But we can't do it ourselves. We have to make a profit and we're not making it now."

Hemmingsen estimated that 10,000 to 12,000 farmers would be at the meeting. "They are also coming from other states, with delegations from Minnesota and Nebraska that we know of. I believe some are also coming from Texas, Kansas and Arizona," he explained.

The keynote speaker at the afternoon meeting was to be Jon Wefald, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture.

He was to be introduced by Iowa Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsberry.

Keep Lead Out Of Your Cattle

A farmer who dumps used motor oil where his cattle can reach it or uses his pasture for a trash dump risks losing some animals to lead poisoning, according to Dr. Alex Hogg, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension veterinarian.

Lead is the leading cause of poison deaths in cattle, he said.

Interestingly, calves will drink fuel and motor oil, intrigued by the different taste, he said, citing the case of a farmer who set a bucket of fuel oil down while preparing to fill a tank heater. A calf drank the entire bucketful, he said.

Oil High In Lead

Used crankcase oil is high in lead, because approximately 30% of the tetraethyl lead from burned gasoline ends up in the oil, Hogg explained.

He told of a farmer bringing two dead 500-pound calves in and explaining that they had gotten out after he had poured used crankcase oil on his driveway. The farmer said he did not think they had gotten any of the oil, because it had not been in puddles.

However, the veterinarians found a cupful of oil in one of the calves, Hogg said.

Farmers should also think twice before using a pasture as a place to dump trash, he said.

Many Culprits

Sources of lead poisoning of cattle have been identified as machinery grease, discarded lead-acid batteries, pails that had contained lead based paint, window putty, lead arsenate pesticides, lead lined drinking containers and plumbing calk, he said.

Cattle have also been known to be poisoned by eating the wallpaper in tumbledown, abandoned farm homes. The wallpaper has a salty taste and there usually are five or six layers, he explained.

Hogg said the veterinarians have no way of knowing how many cattle die of lead poisoning in Nebraska each year, because they have no toxicologist on their staff.

However, at Iowa State University, where they do have a number of toxicologists, a large number of cases are diagnosed each year, he said.

6 A Year

Dr. C. M. Hibbs, veterinary pathologist at the NU North Platte Station, has reported that during 1970 through 1973 their laboratory received an annual average of more than six cases.

"The obvious cases probably do not get referred to the laboratory," he said.

Lead poisoning generally causes brain damage, inflammation of the lining of the stomach and intestine, and/or degeneration of the peripheral nerves, he said.

"The central nervous manifestations are blindness and a peculiar twitch of the ear or other muscles," he said.

Other indications of lead poisoning in cattle are a showing of abdominal distress, with the abdomen possibly appearing tucked, according to Hogg.

Not Swallowing

Cattle may grind their teeth and appear to be chewing, although they may not actually be swallowing.

Animals may circle, push against objects and exhibit muscular uncoordination. They may twitch their ears slowly and rhythmically and bob their heads.

When they show marked excitement and have convulsive seizures, they probably will die, Hogg said.

Weather Forecaster Admits To Inaccuracy

If the farmer knew at planting time last spring what he knows now about last summer's weather, he could have made more accurate decisions and saved himself a lot of time, effort and money.

But all he has to rely on are hunches — even the weather forecasters don't issue their summer seasonal forecast until late May.

Dr. Don Gillman of the long range prediction group of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Washington laid it on the line to those attending the 1975 Nebraska Water Conference recently. You already may have guessed it — long range weather prediction is only slightly more accurate than tossing a coin to determine the forecast.

Cause And Effect

Gillman is talking about predicting the weather a month or more in advance and said the process has a cause and effect relationship with the farmer.

"We consider the weather — you consider the effects," he noted. "Drought isn't really something a meterologist can talk about. It is when you get clobbered."

He officially labeled last summer a dry spell, but added it certainly qualifies as a drought to someone growing corn.

"A classic drought pattern that resembled that of the '30's set up near the end of June. The pattern broke after a few weeks and then returned," Gillman said. "The cause was very subtle and will take a great deal of work to research."

He emphasized that the forecast for dry weather for the 1974 summer as a whole was correct. But he noted that the July forecast failed to bring the hot weather out over the Plains.

'Not Useful Forecast'

"The forecast was wrong in a very critical way," he said. "It could not be considered in any way a useful forecast."

He said they can call long range temperature forecasts correctly 6 times out of 10. That is a little better than just a random forecast which would be accurate only 5 out of 10. Long range precipitation forecasts are even less reliable, Gillman said, hitting only 11 times out of 20. He conceded these forecasts were "not very useful to the man on the street."

He pointed out that there has been favorable crop weather in the Great Plains for the last couple of decades. There has not been much extreme spring or summer weather in that time and temperatures have been rather cool. He also said summer rainfall has been near normal or a little on the wet side.

But the last 20 years have not been typical of the entire century, he said, and it is not wise to count on next year or the one after to be like recent years. He also warned farmers to be cautious about counting on bumper crops.

Drought Pattern

However, he did note that there is a tendency for major drought to occur in some part of the country every two decades. He said in the '50's it was in the southern plains and the '30's in the northern and central plains.

Panel Hears Cost Of NW Bell Ads

Omaha (UPI) — Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. spent nearly $674,000 last year in Nebraska for activities unrelated to direct customer telephone services, the Nebraska Public Service Commission was told Thursday.

Frank J. Landis, the company's statistician in Nebraska, supplied the expense figures during the commission's second day of Omaha hearings on Bell's request for a $16 million increase in Nebraska telephone rates. The hearings were scheduled to end Friday.

Landis commented during questioning by Kenneth A. Nickolai, commission staff attorney, who said later his purpose was to give the commission a chance to determine whether the expenses should be considered part of Bell's cost of operation in Nebraska.

States Disagree

Nickolai said other states were in disagreement on whether to allow such items to be calculated by Bell as a cost of doing business, which would affect Bell's request for a 10.4 to 10.8% rate of return in Nebraska. Bell is now allowed an 8.5% rate of return.

"I only wanted to bring out the figures to allow the commissioners to decide how to handle them," Nickolai said.

Landis' figures showed that for the 12-month period ending Sept. 30, 1974, Bell spent $364,000 for informational and promotional advertising in print, television, radio and outdoor.

For the same period, Bell donated $187,844 to Nebraska charitable and civic groups and for social and service club membership dues and expenses, Landis said, ranging from $39,657 to $1.

Northwestern Bell also spent $77,822 for lobbying activities and $43,781 for the Pioneer Telephone Association, a group Landis described as designed to "promote, enhance and cultivate" in employes the spirit of service to the company.

Landis also said the proposal to raise telephone rates would give the company total earnings of $24.5 million a year, an increase of more than $8 million.

Richard M. Wolf, a representative of Bell's parent American Telephone and Telegraph, testified that Western Electric's overall prices for telephone apparatus, cable and supplies were about 25% less than other telecommunications suppliers.

Western Electric is the manufacturing unit for the Bell System in the United States.

Elderly Represented

The commission also took testimony from Doris V. Mendes, Omaha, who represented the Gray Panthers, a group described as working to help solve problems of the elderly.

Mrs. Mendes said she lives in a 15-story Omaha Housing Authority apartment building, which, she said, lacks a public telephone.

"I can afford a telephone, but there are people in my building who can't, and there isn't a telephone booth. I've had these elderly people tell me that everything else can be taken away from them, but, 'Just leave me my telephone'."

She suggested that Northwestern Bell supply free telephone service to the disabled elderly in Nebraska.

Philip Nelson, Aurora, vice president and manager of the Hamilton Telephone Co., also appeared before the commission "in support, generally, of the (Bell) application" for a rate increase.

He said Hamilton Telephone would have additional earnings, if the commission were to approve a rate increase. But, he said, "Most of that will go out of the community to help Northwestern Bell serve its customers elsewhere."

Bell's proposal would increase charges for long distance dialing and increase the monthly charge of a business or residential telephone and for extensions in a home or business.

In addition, Bell proposed a 10-cent increase in the price of making a local call from a telephone booth.

ALLIANCE SYSTEM . . . best in state.

Collection Of Garbage Automated In Alliance

Alliance (AP) — How do you like your trash can? Granted, it's not a question one encounters during the normal course of the day, but residents of Alliance are beginning to become accustomed to that strange query from strangers descending on the town.

Delegations from Kearney, Sidney and Scottsbluff have rolled into Alliance recently to examine a new automated trash collection system that an environmental specialist says is the best in the state.

Dave Dobscha, of the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control, covers 40 counties in western Nebraska from his Solid Waste Pollution Control Division office in North Platte. He says he's been using the Alliance system as a model to demonstrate what can be done with solid waste disposal.

And the word has apparently spread. A delegation from Great Falls, Mont., visited Alliance recently. Private contractors from Grand Island and Gering have also examined the system.

Providing residents with large city-owned trash containers was only part of the system. The 300-gallon receptacles were placed at interim locations in alleys to serve three or four homes. Where no alley space existed, 90-gallon receptacles were provided to each home. Those containers are fitted with wheels to allow the homeowner to transport them to curbs on collection days. As a part of the new system, a ban on trash fires was made part of the authorizing ordinance.

At the heart of the Alliance system is an automated collection truck with a packer body. It has a rail system on the side that enables a single operator to drive up to the barrel, pick it up with the mechanism attached to the truck, dump it and set it back on the ground — in a few seconds without the need to leave the cab of the truck.

The one-man operation is particularly attractive to Dobscha. "The refuse collection industry is the No. 1 leader in major industrial accidents among all businesses in the nation."

With automatic handling and by staying away from the packing mechanism, there are few hazards.

Before the new system went into effect, a packer truck with a crew of three or four was barely able to make the once-aweek collections in the city. Now a two-times a week schedule presents no problem.

Community skeptics predicted a number of problems with the system, none of which has developed. And the best thing about it, say city officials, is the cost.

In December, the average collection cost was 87.49 cents per family for twice-a-week service. That dropped in 84.72 cents in January and 74.87 cents in February. Earlier, the officals had optimistically predicted that the new system could break even if costs could be held to about a dollar per family.

Prison Reform Promoter Jailed; Program Canceled

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

A dinner and discussion on methods of helping ex-convicts has been abruptly canceled.

And the promoter of the event, who claimed he was on the staff of a national organization pushing for penal reform, is now in the Lincoln jail.

Police said the organization which he claimed to represent is apparently nonexistent and that the well-dressed young man is a suspect in at least two cases in which motels were defrauded.

Panel Scheduled

The man, who identified himself as Milo McNabb, had obtained agreement from some local corrections officials to appear on a panel Friday at the Sheraton Inn.

The man said reservations were being held for about 120 persons. Price for each ticket was $6. It was billed as an opportunity for the families of offenders to have questions answered by a knowledgeable panel.

McNabb had called news media representatives to a press conference Wednesday at the Sheraton and some carried announcements of the upcoming meeting.

Official Checked Up

The matter came to the attention of police after Dee Lofgren, corrections specialist with the State Crime Commission, checked up on the National Prison Foundation, which the man claimed to represent.

Lofgren, one of those called to appear on the panel, telephoned the Washington, D.C., central offices of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the American Corrections Association and the American Bar Association.

None of the organizations had ever heard of the National Prison Foundation. When Lofgren called McNabb, he said he could not remember the name of the president of the foundation or its address.

Lofgren then called Lancaster County Atty. Ron Lahners, who ordered police to investigate.

Detective Orley Barker, who arrested the man, said he had no identification and had only $3 in cash.

Barker said the man, in his early 20s, is suspected to have stayed at the Airport Holiday Inn in Lincoln from March 12 to 16, then walking out on a $150 bill and over to the Sheraton Airport Inn, where he had run up a $165 bill before he was arrested.

Barker said the man is also suspected of leaving another motel bill unpaid in Dubuque, Iowa. Police said they do not believe Milo McNabb is the man's real name.

Ohio Man Accused In Shooting Deaths

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Information will be filed in Polk County Associate District Court Friday charging a Toledo, Ohio man with murder in the shooting deaths of two men last Aug. 22 during a robbery at the Downtown Holiday Inn, police said Thursday.

Asst. Police Chief Thomas Teale Jr., identified the man — who is currently serving time in the Iowa State Penitentiary at Fort Madison — as Terrance Duane Hollowell, 26.

Two men were killed and two others wounded in that late-night robbery. Louis Trujillo Jr., a night auditor, and Danny Peters, a security guard, were fatally shot. A night clerk and a motel guest were also wounded.

Arraignment for Hollowell, who has claimed to be a former FBI informer, will be set later, Teale said Thursday night.

Hollowell was named as the man who robbed the Holiday Inn by a prisoner in the Polk County Jail, according to a copyrighted story in Friday's Des Moines Register.

Hollowell has been confined at the state penitentiary since Feb. 5 following an armed robbery conviction in Iowa City.

He was a resident of the Riverview Rlease Center at Newton at the time of the Holiday Inn incident, records show.

Panel Hears Cost Of NW Bell Ads

Omaha (UPI) — Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. spent nearly $674,000 last year in Nebraska for activities unrelated to direct customer telephone services, the Nebraska Public Service Commission was told Thursday.

Frank J. Landis, the company's statistician in Nebraska, supplied the expense figures during the commission's second day of Omaha hearings on Bell's request for a $16 million increase in Nebraska telephone rates. The hearings were scheduled to end Friday.

Landis commented during questioning by Kenneth A. Nickolai, commission staff attorney, who said later his purpose was to give the commission a chance to determine whether the expenses should be considered part of Bell's cost of operation in Nebraska.

States Disagree

Nickolai said other states were in disagreement on whether to allow such items to be calculated by Bell as a cost of doing business, which would affect Bell's request for a 10.4 to 10.8% rate of return in Nebraska. Bell is now allowed an 8.5% rate of return.

"I only wanted to bring out the figures to allow the commissioners to decide how to handle them," Nickolai said.

Landis' figures showed that for the 12-month period ending Sept. 30, 1974, Bell spent $364,000 for informational and promotional advertising in print, television, radio and outdoor.

For the same period, Bell donated $187,844 to Nebraska charitable and civic groups and for social and service club membership dues and expenses, Landis said, ranging from $39,657 to $1.

Northwestern Bell also spent $77,822 for lobbying activities and $43,781 for the Pioneer Telephone Association, a group Landis described as designed to "promote, enhance and cultivate" in employes the spirit of service to the company.

Landis also said the proposal to raise telephone rates would give the company total earnings of $24.5 million a year, an increase of more than $8 million.

Richard M. Wolf, a representative of Bell's parent American Telephone and Telegraph, testified that Western Electric's overall prices for telephone apparatus, cable and supplies were about 25% less than other telecommunications suppliers.

Western Electric is the manufacturing unit for the Bell System in the United States.

Elderly Represented

The commission also took testimony from Doris V. Mendes, Omaha, who represented the Gray Panthers, a group described as working to help solve problems of the elderly.

Mrs. Mendes said she lives in a 15-story Omaha Housing Authority apartment building, which, she said, lacks a public telephone.

"I can afford a telephone, but there are people in my building who can't, and there isn't a telephone booth. I've had these elderly people tell me that everything else can be taken away from them, but, 'Just leave me my telephone'."

She suggested that Northwestern Bell supply free telephone service to the disabled elderly in Nebraska.

Philip Nelson, Aurora, vice president and manager of the Hamilton Telephone Co., also appeared before the commission "in support, generally, of the (Bell) application" for a rate increase.

He said Hamilton Telephone would have additional earnings, if the commission were to approve a rate increase. But, he said, "Most of that will go out of the community to help Northwestern Bell serve its customers elsewhere."

Bell's proposal would increase charges for long distance dialing and increase the monthly charge of a business or residential telephone and for extensions in a home or business.

In addition, Bell proposed a 10-cent increase in the price of making a local call from a telephone booth.

Bus Planners Want To Bring Workers—Not Cars—Downtown

Lincoln bus planners are going after those elusive downtown workers in the hopes of getting them to leave their cars at home and leave the driving to LTS.

Five businesses will be contacted by the Lincoln Transportation System to help the city set up pilot programs aimed at bringing people — not their cars — downtown. The firms have not yet been selected.

LTS Board member Bob Campbell said Thursday LTS is zeroing in on the downtown area where there is the highest concentration of workers.

"Every employe car we can keep out of downtown opens up a space for shoppers," said Campbell.

Lack of adequate parking facilities in the central business district has been tagged as one of the area's major problems.

The board authorized a subcommittee to work with the advertising agency of Bailey, Lewis & Associates on the promotional program. LTS has about $13,000 left in its advertising budget for this year.

Although board members believe that their best bet on increasing bus use is by attracting downtowners, a study on mass transit needs may give more definite information on LTS's potential market. The study, due to be released next month, also will present a six-year plan for the bus system.

In a related matter, the bus board will provide free bus service April 19, from 9.30 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Chamber of Commerce will pick up the tab. The board estimated the cost will be $800.

The board also said it would consider a request by some 75 workers in the Superior Industrial Park for bus service

Lana Tatreau, chairman of the Industrial Park Bicentennial Committee, said workers in three companies would like bus service during morning and evening rush hours. The industrial park is located on N. 27th St.

Hruska Views Brankrupt Railroad

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., met Thursday morning with senators from other states affected by the bankruptcy of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad.

The lawmakers met with representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC), which is supervising the transition of the Rock Island's routes to other rail companies.

After the meeting, Hruska said everything possible is being done to provide job security for Rock Island employes.

The Rock Island employes about 170 workers in Nebraska, most of them in the Fairbury area.

"I can't give them (Rock Island workers) any assurance, nobody can," Hruska said, "But there are certain protections and safeguards" for the railworkers.

Hruska added there is one definite assurance — mainline rail service in Nebraska will be continued.

However, he was pessimistic about the many branch lines in the state.

Most of the unprofitable Rock Island branch lines will probably be abandoned, said Hruska.

Rock Island officials in Nebraska and elsewhere are not happy about the way the ICC is handling the case; one Nebraskan, who wished not to be identified, calling it the "rape of the Rock Island."

Another unnamed regional railworker said some regular shippers are already moving to other modes of transportation.

A lobbyist for the United Transportation Workers Union, M. J. McNeil of Lincoln, holds out little hope for the Rock Island workers in the state, and says the whole thing is unfair.

McNeil points to the billions of tax dollars that have been sunk into the Penn Central and other ailing railroads in the northeastern portion of the nation, and asks why the government hasn't stepped in to help the Rock Island.

GREGORY . . . time to abolish war.

Cycle-Mounted 'Peacenik' Is 72

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Leo Gregory was a latecomer to the peace movement.

But the 72-year-old "peacenik" has picked up where those several decades his junior left off.

Gregory, of Agency, Mo., arrived in Lincoln Thursday "Easy Rider" style — astride his 11-year-old BMW 600 motorcycle.

He shuns the beads, the banners, the dialogue of the movement's younger practitioners, preferring instead the conservative blue suit, the appearance of the retired farmer that he is.

'Just Ordinary Person'

"Ma'am, I'm just an ordinary person," Gregory said. "except I've given more thought to war than the average person."

Gregory's mission here is to spread his message about war and peace. Peace mostly.

He travels the Midwest trying to convince the clergy that "war is avoidable and must be abolished" — and they are the ones to do it.

War is a "moral problem," he said. "It lays at the threshhold of the doors of churches."

Christians Most Warlike

Most of the world's wars have been Christian wars, Gregory said, his weathered hands waving through the air as he returned time and again to his basic theme: "War should be renounced."

"Theologians have searched the Scriptures with a microscope to justify war," he said. "There is no such thing as a just war."

Gregory adopted his "Easy Rider" lifestyle just three years ago. His wife, 70, didn't like the idea at first, but she's come around, he said. And he has "converted" his 11 children to seeing things his way.

Although he dropped in at the Nebraskans for Peace office upon his arrival here, Gregory owes no allegiances to any group, peaceful or otherwise.

Everything he does, he does on his own. And he pays his own way — from savings and Social Security.

Last year alone, Gregory interviewed 230 clergymen about their attitudes towards war.

'90% Condone War'

Five to 10% of those interviewed "are opposed to war, about 90% condone war," he said. "The big churches" are the worse offenders by "dragging their feet."

The soft-spoken, little man is well-read on his subject, able to back up a statement with historical data and Biblical quotations.

Gregory was raised a catholic, he said, almost apologetically. But he has a bone to pick with his church: "The Catholic Church is the most militant church in the world."

"There never was a more opportune time than now" to do away with war, Gregory said, citing younger voting ages, the "coming into their own" of blacks and women, and awakened citizen awareness resulting from Watergate.

"There is no use to postpone" the abolition of war "for another 1,000 years," Gregory said. "It may be too late for all of us."

Computer May Save 40% On Gas Usage

Indianapolis (UPI) — A tiny computer controlling the carburetor of an automobile could save up to 40% on gasoline consumption — 500 million gallons a year nationally, Chairman Robert W. Sarnoff of RCA Corp. said Thursday.

The report sparked a rally on the New York Stock Exchange.

In a speech at the Indiana University School of Business, Sarnoff said major automobile makers already are testing the new RCA device called a microprocessor. The cost of the installation is less than $100 per car, he added.

Cadillac, Swedish Saab and the German Volkswagen companies have experimented in the past with computers to control the fuel fed into carburetors with indifferent success.

Sarnoff said the RCA device is a tiny computer containing 6,000 transistors and other electronic elements in a chip only one-quarter inch square.

The installation includes various linkage mechanism. It controls the flow of gasoline for starting and driving, keeps the mixture at the optimum level and causes the automatic gear shift to change gears at the precise moment for optimum fuel economy, he said.

The gear shift timing feature, which could be the main key to fuel savings, is not found on the older computerized fuel control systems.

Bus Planners Want To Bring Workers—Not Cars—Downtown

Lincoln bus planners are going after those elusive downtown workers in the hopes of getting them to leave their cars at home and leave the driving to LTS.

Five businesses will be contacted by the Lincoln Transportation System to help the city set up pilot programs aimed at bringing people — not their cars — downtown. The firms have not yet been selected.

LTS Board member Bob Campbell said Thursday LTS is zeroing in on the downtown area where there is the highest concentration of workers.

"Every employe car we can keep out of downtown opens up a space for shoppers," said Campbell.

Lack of adequate parking facilities in the central business district has been tagged as one of the area's major problems.

The board authorized a subcommittee to work with the advertising agency of Bailey, Lewis & Associates on the promotional program. LTS has about $13,000 left in its advertising budget for this year.

Although board members believe that their best bet on increasing bus use is by attracting downtowners, a study on mass transit needs may give more definite information on LTS's potential market. The study, due to be released next month, also will present a six-year plan for the bus system.

In a related matter, the bus board will provide free bus service April 19, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Chamber of Commerce will pick up the tab. The board estimated the cost will be $800.

The board also said it would consider a request by some 75 workers in the Superior Industrial Park for bus service.

American Employe In Europe May Be Poor

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Those glamorous days of being rich on an American salary in Europe have faded. Transfers abroad are no longer regarded as plums; they're more like sour pickles. Don Ediger reports from the London bureau of McGraw-Hill World News.)

By DON EDIGER

London — The year is 1985. You're working in Europe, where your company exiled you for last year's bad sales performance. You can barely afford your kid's Esperanto lessons, not to mention rent on a tiny apartment in what the locals call the Yankee ghetto. Life is tough for an American expatriate.

That vision, or nightmare, of life in Europe in a decade is a far cry from Europe on $5 a day. But if current economic trends continue, and if long-range projections by some prestigious institutions are accurate, it might not be far off base.

The change ironically is coming about at a time when U.S. companies are increasing overseas personnel at record rates, a move caused by mounting U.S. involvement in international commerce. If you work for a large company, the chances of getting an overseas assignment are increasing every day. But while employes once fought for such transfers, many are now turning them down and more are likely to do so in the future.

For those reasons, let's look at England. It's a good example, because more Americans work there than in any other country outside North America.

If your company sends you to England in 1985, you may want an apartment in central London. A two-bedroom flat in that area already goes for as much as $1,200 a month, and with 9.5% inflation annually — the rate at which Britain's national institute of economic and social research says rents have been rising — the cost would soar to about $3,000 a month in 1985.

Having given up on living in the heart of London — you still may not be able to send your children to one of the two main American schools, both of which are located in central London. The American Community School (A.C.S.), currently charges $1,200 a semester for high school tuition and says fees might increase by as much as 30% in 1976.

Students at ACS used to hang out at chic London discotheques and spend a good part of the winter skiing. Now they're more likely found at The Great American Disaster (T.G.A.D.), a small restaurant in Knightsbridge that specializes in hamburgers.

While rents are rising at less than 10% a year in most European countries, clothes are going up at about 23% in England and 19% in France. Many U.S. businessmen in Europe already stock up on clothing when they make trips to the states.

All of this will drastically affect Americans working abroad. To add to their problems is the question of language, unable to agree on a single language, Common Market officials in Brussels are considering Esperanto, a man-made language developed late last century and never used by anyone but scholars.

KANSAS STATE WINS . . .

Syracuse Upsets NC In NCAA Semifinals

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Guard Jim Lee scored the winning basket and Jim Williams added a free throw, giving Syracuse a 78-76 victory over sixth-ranked North Carolina Thursday night in the NCAA East Regional semifinals and the biggest upset thus far in the NCAA's post-season basketball classic.

Syracuse now will face Kansas State, a 74-65 winner over Boston College, in the East regional championship Saturday. North Carolina and Boston College will meet in the consolation game.

Junior guard Chuck Williams scored 32 points, 24 of them in the second half, in leading 17th-ranked Kansas State past unranked Boston College.

It was Lee who engineered Syracuse's first lead of the game when he scored six points in an Orangemen eight-point burst midway through the second half.

The Orangemen took their first lead of the game at 15:55 of the second half, 51-50, on a breakaway bucket by Williams, during that eight-point spurt.

The lead changed hands 11 times after that, with Lee finally giving the Orangemen the winning margin after the Tar Heels' freshman guard, Phil Ford, had thrown a bad pass out of bounds when the Tar Heels led 76-75.

That gave Syracuse 27 seconds on the clock to play with, and the Orangemen worked the ball around for the last shot. Williams added his free throw with two seconds left after North Carolina center Mitch Kupchak had thrown away an in-bounds pass.

Lee was the Orangemen's high scorer with 24 points, hitting mostly from the outside, and Williams, a 5-foot-10 sophomore guard, had 19.

North Carolina took its biggest lead at 30-21 with 7:10 left in the first half, but then two minutes later the Orangemen ran off six straight points to come back within three at 32-29. The two clubs battled evenly to the half, when the Tar Heels, 22-8, led 42-41 over the 20th-ranked Orangemen, 22-7.

Ford, who scored 78 points in three Atlantic Coast Conference tounament games to lead the Tar Heels to the ACC championship, scored 24 points and team captain Brad Hoffman, a 5-10 guard, had 20.

Hoffman and Ford accounted for almost all of North Carolina's second-half offense. The two guards combined for 26 of North Carolina's second-half points, Ford picking up 14 in the second half and Hoffman 12.

After a close first half, which ended 39-36 in favor of Kansas State, 20-8, the Wildcats went on a 24-12 tear through nearly the first 10 minutes of the second half, opening a 63-48 lead. Williams scored 16 points in that burst.

But then turnovers began to plague the Wildcats, who didn't get off a shot for about three minutes. Meanwhile, the Eagles scored eight straight points, six by junior forward Wil Morrison. That brought Boston College back within seven points before Williams could score again for Kansas State.

The Eagles then went on another eight-point spurt, closing to 65-63 with 2:40 remaining. But Boston College, despite applying full-court pressure, was able to score only two points in the final two minutes.

Green, Benson Spark Indiana

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Indiana's defense operated with a business-like efficiency and Steve Green and Kent Benson combined for 57 points to propel the top-ranked Hoosiers past Oregon State 81-71 Thursday night and into a showdown against fifth-ranked Kentucky in the CAA Mideast basketball finals Saturday.

Kentucky, admittedly looking ahead to its chance to avenge a 98-74 loss to Indiana in the regular season, had to brush off several Central Michigan rallies before winning its Mideast semifinal 90-73.

Indiana's victory was its 34th in a row and raised its record for the season to 31-0.

Green, Indiana's 6-foot-7, 220-pound forward, and Benson, the 6-11, 235-pound center, demolished any hope Oregon State might have had of upsetting the Hoosiers. Green finished with 34 points, connecting 14 of 19 shots from the field, and Benson had 23. For most of the evening their combined total was more than Oregon State's whole team effort.

Green missed his first shot of the night but then hit his next seven straight and combined with Benson to reel off 12 points in the first five minutes of the game. By halftime Indiana had a 64 per cent average from the field and when Green left the game with just under two minutes remaining in the half, he had 17 points and Benson had 15.

A standing ovation from the 13,500 in the Dayton Arena at Green's departure in the first half was matched at the appearance of All-American Scott May, who played the last 1½ minutes of the first half and the final minute of the game. May, playing with a flexible cast on his broken left arm, missed wildly on the two shots he attempted in the first half.

Oregon State, 19-11, made one brief run at the Hoosiers when Charlie Neal and Paul Miller brought the Beavers within two points, 22-20, with 9:35 remaining in the first half. The much-publicized Hoosier defense then showed the reason for its acclaim, holding Oregon State without a field goal for a period of 5:09 late in the first half.

Indiana led by as much as 23 points but seemed lethargic before Green again got the Hoosiers going with three straight baskets to give them a 20-point lead with 13 minutes to go in the game.

Oregon State was hampered by foul trouble to Ronnie Shelton, who went into the game with an 18.9 scoring average. Shelton scored only two points in the first half and fouled out in the early minutes of the second half.

Don Smith led Oregon State in scoring with 14 points.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight noted the states his team went through on its way to victory.

"I thought we went from patience to impatience to patience again in the first half," said Knight, referring to the period when Indiana lost a 10-point lead and Oregon State closed to within two. "We were going too quickly on offense, but then our patience took over again."

Knight, looking drawn from a week-long bout with the flu, said his team was looking forward to its game with Oregon State which beat the Hoosiers last year in the Far West Classic.

"We were glad to get the chance to play them again this year," Knight said. "When you have a situation like this the kids are charged up."

Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller admitted that the whole issue was settled in the first half.

"I have always been impressed with them," he said. "I never once didn't say they didn't have a fine club. They are a year older and a year smarter. They are solid and their execution is better."

Miller refused to make a prediction about Saturday's confrontation between Indiana and Kentucky.

"It should be quite a battle," he said.

Forward Kevin Grevey scored 14 first-half points and ignited an offensive attack that carried Kentucky past Central Michigan. Grevey scored six of Kentucky's eight points in an offensive spurt which put his team into a 44-37 lead at halftime.

Central Michigan, taking advantage of 6-10 center Rick Robey's foul problems, opened up a four-point lead 22-18 with a little more than 10 minutes to go in the first half after outscoring the Wildcats 8-2.

Then Grevey and Mike Phillips, who went into replace Robey at center, went to work and gave Kentucky its halftime margin.

Grevey scored only three more points in the second half but Phillips, who had returned to the game when Robey picked up his fourth foul early in the second half, continued the scoring pace and finished with 15 points.

The Chippewas, who finished the season at 21-6 after clinching the Mid-American Conference title, closed to within two points with eight minutes remaining in the game on a basket by Russ Davis.

The Wildcats then unloaded their final scoring burst of the night, hitting three unanswered baskets to pull away for good.

Dan Roundfield and James McElroy provided the Central Michigan offensive punch throughout the game.

Both played major roles in the Chippewas' early first-half lead with Roundfield getting 11 first-half points and nine rebounds while McElroy scored eight. Roundfield finished the game with 20 points and McElroy had 17.

Kentucky shot 48 per cent from the field compared to 36 per cent for Central Michigan in the game.

Oral Roberts Tops Nebraska

Tulsa, Okla. — Dave Bueherer tried, but Oral Roberts tagged the Nebraska pitcher for a home run in the first inning then clung to a 2-1 lead in the first game of a doubleheader here Thursday to edge the visitors.

In the second game, Oral Roberts bombed the Huskers 8-0, with a 12-hit barrage as Nebraska began its 29th baseball season under coach Tony Sharpe.

Buehrer walked the first batter in the first inning then had two ground outs to first baseman Jon Henne. Then Jerry Triska swatted the first pitch over the left field wall 330 feet away for all the runs the hosts needed.

Buehrer held Oral Roberts to a single in the fourth and a double in the fifth, but the NU batters couldn't score.

In the second game, Herb Adams nailed a single off NU pitcher Kirk Eymann and was followed minutes later by Buddy Slemp with a double which scored Adams. That was the beginning of the end as Oral Roberts tagged Eymann and Bob Batenhorst for 12 hits.

"This was the first time we've managed to get outside all season," said NU assistant coach Bob Gates. "Yesterday (Wednesday) we couldn't do anything, but they managed to dry the field for us today and we caught a few in warmup.

"They're a pretty good team," Gates said. "But we have a few more chances at them."

Nebraska plays doubleheaders at Oral Roberts Friday, Saturday and Sunday before traveling to Fayetteville, Ark., on Monday.

UCLA Nips Montana In Close 67-64 Contest

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Second-ranked UCLA, chased all the way, held off hustling Montana 67-64 Thursday night and struggled into the NCAA West Regional basketball finals.

The victory moved UCLA, now 25-3, into Saturday's regional championship game against the winner of the evening's second game between seventh-ranked Arizona State and 16th-rated Nevada-Las Vegas.

Montana, the Big Sky Conference champion, was a big underdog, but the Grizzlies challenged UCLA from start to finish, led by the scoring of Eric Hays and Ken McKenzie.

The Bruins led by only two points with 1:10 remaining, but put the game away on a free throw by Marques Johnson with 38 seconds left and two more foul shots by Pete Trgovich with 16 seconds to go, that put ULCA on top 67-62.

Montana led briefly twice in the first half as Hays, a 6-foot-3 senior hit all nine of his shots from the floor and scored 19 points.

UCLA, the Pacific-8 Conference champion, led 34-33 at halftime. The Bruins, behind All-America forward Dave Myers, went ahead by nine points with 12 minutes left, but Montana would not fold.

Montana, now 21-7, trailed 64-55 with about 4½ minutes left. The Grizzlies then scored seven straight points to pull within 6462 before the Bruins put down the rally.

Hays, who wound up 13-16 from the floor, led all scorers with 32 points. McKenzie, a 6-9 senior, added 20. Trgovich and Rich Washington, a former Portland prep star, led UCLA with 16 points each. Myers finished with 12.

"I thought it would be a very difficult game," said UCLA Coach John Wooden. "To be quite honest, I didn't think it would be that tight. They gave us trouble everywhere."

Hays "was tremendous. He's an outstanding basketball player," Wooden said of the Montana forward.

Coach Jud Heathcote of Montana, asked whether he was proud or disappointed, said he was "more disappointed—when you come that close and lose, pride is a nebulous thing.

"Eric Hays played with great intensity. It was his best game of the year by far."

Maryland Stops Irish, Faces Louisville Next

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Fourth-ranked Maryland's disciplined three-guard offense finally wore down upset-minded Notre Dame 83-71 and No. 3 Louisville's sharpshooters gunned down Cincinnati 78-63 in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball semifinals Thursday night.

Maryland and Louisville will meet in New Mexico State's Pan American Center Saturday for a berth in the NCAA championship tournament at San Diego March 29 and 31.

The Missouri Valley Conference champion Cardinals fashioned a big 42-25 halftime lead on two super-charged spurts, one led by Bridgeman and another by substitute Ike Whitfield.

The first and most impressive surge came with the Cardinals trailing 11-10 with 15:48 left in the first half. Bridgeman spearheaded this surge, hitting two quick baskets, and the Cardinals ran off 15 straight points against the startled Bearcats.

With 6:48 left to play in the first half, Whitfield came off the bench and scored eight points in a 3:12 span where Louisville outscored Cincinnati 10-0 for a 39-19 lead, the largest of the first half.

The Bearcats, who had not lost a game since a regularseason meeting against Louisville, started a rally with the second half. Changing briefly to a man-to-man defense and beating the Cardinals down the floor on the fast break, Cincinnati trimmed Louisville's 17point halftime lead to a ninepoint margin at 57-48 with 8:10 left in the game.

Freshmen Mike Jones and Steve Collier helped cut Louisville's lead in the closing minutes. Collier hit seven straight points for his team to make it 69-61 with 3:10 left to play, but that was the closest Cincinnati could come.

Cincinnati remained in its two-three zone defense through the first half, although the Cardinal sharpshooters had little trouble shooting over it. The Cardinals were hitting 68 per cent from the field midway through the first half and had hit 59.4 per cent at halftime.

The Bearcats, meanwhile, hit only 31.6 per cent in the first half and posed only a minor scoring threat to the Cardinals at the start of the game. Cincinnati freshman Robert Miller helped Cincinnati to a 9-6 early lead with his scoring and rebounding.

Louisville, 26-2 for the season, was led by Bridgeman with 20 points and freshman Ricky Gallon with 16. Allen Murphy added 13 and Phillip Bond 10 for the Cardinals.

Sports Signals

It's A Sports Center

Suggestions began flowing in Thursday following my discussion about a name for the new "whatever it is" where the Nebraska Cornhuskers will play basketball next season.

In thinking of a name, consideration should be given to the fact that the new structure on the state fairgrounds will be a multi-sports complex, housing not only basketball, but also swimming, track and field, and perhaps other indoor facilities for gymnastics and tennis.

I know of another similar situation — at Notre Dame, where the Irish basketballers, hockey team and track and field men compete. Notre Dame calls it their "Athletic and Convocation Center."

Along those lines, maybe the new facility could be called "Nebraska Sports Center," or, if convocations are to be held there, why not steal the name from the Irish?

One of the Star's photographers, Web Ray, suggests it would be appropriate to call a place where Cornhuskers play "The Corn Palace," or "Corn Crib," or "Moonshine Hall."

If any of our readers have any other suggestions, shoot them to us and we'll pass them along.

Catching Up On Sports

Bryan Moss, the freshman swimmer from Nebraska who will be competing in next week's NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships in Cleveland, O., is a product of Northwest High School in Omaha and his prep coach was Joe Stocker. A couple of earlier stories had him from the wrong school.

Oklahoma has the lead in the Big Eight's all-sports trophy race with just the spring sports of outdoor track, baseball, tennis and golf to be contested. The Sooner point total is 23 based on a scoring system in which the low score ranks as the best.

Next is Iowa State at 28, then Kansas and Missouri at 30½ each, Oklahoma State 32½, Kansas State 34½, Nebraska 35½ and Colorado 37½.

Kansas has won the most titles with three championships (indoor track, swimming and basketball. Iowa State and Missouri tied for the cross country crown, Oklahoma State won in wrestling, Iowa State in gymnastics and Oklahoma in football.

Dates for the annual Sidney (Iowa) Championship Rodeo has been set for Aug. 5-10 . . . The Buffalo Bill Rodeo will open June 18 in North Platte.

One of the most absurd things I've read recently is comment by some golf critics that Johnny Miller can't win on a tough golf course. What about his U.S. Open title two years ago? The Open always is on a demanding course. Golf Digest in its latest issue has rated Miller the top choice to win his first Masters title April 9-13 at the Augusta National Golf Course.

A final note: Don Bryant has been elected president of the Nebraska Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association and Mark Gordon of The Star has won re-election as vice-president. Other officers are John Martinez of the North Platte Telegraph-Bulletin, treasurer; and Al Reddington of the Beatrice Sun, executive secretary.

NU Golfers Lack Experience

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Experience — that's the key to winning in golf and that's the major problem Nebraska golf coach Larry Romjue faces this year — No Experience.

Sophomore lettermen Craig Moyer of Wood River and Gary Stieneke of South Sioux City, who saw limited action last year, are the only other returnees.

Freshman Doug Smith, from Lincoln High, offers a bright spot in the squad's newcomers in addition to Dave Patuley, a transfer from Nebraska Wesleyan and senior Bob Meyer who lettered his freshman and sophomore years and then sat out last year.

"Right now, Smith and Moyer are playing better than the rest, but I expect everyone to improve as we get into more tournaments," said Romjue.

"We just need to get as much experience as we can in the next six weeks or so before the Big Eight meet," said Romjue. "Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, and defending Big Eight champion Oklahoma State are returning either all, or all but one of their top five players from last year."

"But we have a lot of potential, and we're playing tougher courses this year so we may come around by conference meet time," said Romjue, now in his fifth year as golf coach.

Romjue pointed out that the Huskers faced 10 of the top 15 teams in the nation in the Pan American Intercollegiate meet in Monterey, Mexico and four of the top 15 in the Sooner Invitational earlier this year. NU finished 19th in Mexico and 10th in Oklahoma.

"By facing top caliber competition like this, our golfers can compare for evaluation and see what it takes to become class players," said Romjue.

"The more times a player is under pressure, he learns how to keep a score down if he's playing bad and how to improve if he's playing well," he said. "The only way to learn in golf is to compete."

The Big Eight's southern teams, Oklahoma State and Oklahoma, appear to be the Big Eight teams to beat and the remaining places seem to be a toss-up according to Romjue. "OSU is a contender for the national title and OU could end up in the top ten.

"Certainly the weather and opportunity to play more in the warmer climates help a team in recruiting and in gaining playing experience," said Romjue.

"I've offered scholarships to kids from the south to come here, and they have ended up going to southern schools for less scholarship money," said Romjue.

"I would expect that by the middle of April, all our players will be shooting under 80. And should we keep improving we could finish third or fourth in the conference," said Romjue.

Remaining schedule:

March 25-28 — Galveston Island Intercollegiate Invitational, Galveston, Texas; April 4 — Triangular with UNO and South Dakota in Lincoln; April 10-11 — Wheatshocker Invitational, Wichita; April 17-18 — Kansas Relays, Lawrence, Kan.; April 24-25 — Drake Relays, Des Moines, April 26 — Triangular with Drake, Iowa State at Ames, Iowa, May 16-17 — Big Eight at Norman, Oklahoma.

2 Mavs 'Found' In NU Lineup

By Associated Press

Two Mavericks have been discovered in the defensive line of the University of Nebraska Cornhusker football team.

Middle guard John Lee and tackle Ron Pruitt are expected to anchor the Cornhusker defensive line next season in their senior years. But they are actually enrolled in coursework that will lead to degrees from the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) under the current system.

The UNO campus, of course, has its own football program. And at UNO, sports teams are called the Mavericks.

The situation developed through a fluke in the University of Nebraska system under which criminal justice majors receive degrees from UNO. Both Lee and Pruitt are majoring in criminal justice, or criminology.

Back in 1962, UNO became headquarters for criminal justice coursework. Later, courses in criminal justice were offered at the Lincoln campus, but an administrative decision was made to retain the headquarters at UNO and offer the criminal justice degrees from that school.

Cornhusker football coach Tom Osborne isn't concerned about the two Mavericks on his team.

"I wasn't aware until two or three days ago that the degrees came out of Omaha," Osborne said. "I think as far as the NCAA is concerned and as far as we're concerned, they're taking 12 hours and are registered here."

A check with the National Collegiate Athletic Association headquarters near Kansas City, Kan., tentatively confirmed Osborne's opinion.

Jim Delany, a member of the NCAA enforcement division, said there is no regulation to cover such a situation, which he termed unique.

"It doesn't sound like anything real serious," he said. Meanwhile, the 440 criminology majors at UNL are working to get the policy changed.

KANSAS STATE WINS . . .

Syracuse Upsets NC In NCAA Semifinals

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Guard Jim Lee scored the winning basket and Jim Williams added a free throw, giving Syracuse a 78-76 victory over sixth-ranked North Carolina Thursday night in the NCAA East Regional semifinals and the biggest upset thus far in the NCAA's post-season basketball classic.

Syracuse now will face Kansas State, a 74-65 winner over Boston College, in the East regional championship Saturday. North Carolina and Boston College will meet in the consolation game.

Junior guard Chuck Williams scored 32 points, 24 of them in the second half, in leading 17th-ranked Kansas State past unranked Boston College.

It was Lee who engineered Syracuse's first lead of the game when he scored six points in an Orangeman eight-point burst midway through the second half.

The Orangemen took their first lead of the game at 15:55 of the second half, 51-50, on a breakaway bucket by Williams during that eight-point spurt.

The lead changed hands 11 times after that, with Lee finally giving the Orangemen the winning margin after the Tar Heels' freshman guard, Phil Ford, had thrown a bad pass out of bounds when the Tar Heels led 76-75.

That gave Syracuse 27 seconds on the clock to play with, and the Orangemen worked the ball around for the last shot. Williams added his free throw with two seconds left after North Carolina center Mitch Kupchak had thrown away an in-bounds pass.

Lee was the Orangemen's high scorer with 24 points, hitting mostly from the outside, and Williams, a 5-foot-10 sophomore guard, had 19.

North Carolina took its biggest lead at 30-21 with 7:10 left in the first half, but then two minutes later the Orangemen ran off six straight points to come back within three at 32-29. The two clubs battled evenly to the half, when the Tar Heels, 22-8, led 42-41 over the 20th-ranked Orangemen, 22-7.

Ford, who scored 78 points in three Atlantic Coast Conference tounament games to lead the Tar Heels to the ACC championship, scored 24 points and team captain Brad Hoffman, a 5-10 guard, had 20.

Hoffman and Ford accounted for almost all of North Carolina's second-half offense. The two guards combined for 26 of North Carolina's second-half points, Ford picking up 14 in the second half and Hoffman 12.

After a close first half, which ended 39-36 in favor of Kansas State, 20-8, the Wildcats went on a 24-12 tear through nearly the first 10 minutes of the second half, opening a 63-48 lead. Williams scored 16 points in that burst.

But then turnovers began to plague the Wildcats, who didn't get off a shot for about three minutes. Meanwhile, the Eagles scored eight straight points, six by junior forward Wil Morrison. That brought Boston College back within seven points before Williams could score again for Kansas State.

The Eagles then went on another eight-point spurt, closing to 65-63 with 2:40 remaining. But Boston College, despite applying full-court pressure, was able to score only two points in the final two minutes.

Green, Benson Spark Indiana

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Indiana's defense operated with a business-like efficiency and Steve Green and Kent Benson combined for 57 points to propel the top-ranked Hoosiers past Oregon State 81-71 Thursday night and into a showdown against fifth-ranked Kentucky in the CAA Mideast basketball finals Saturday.

Kentucky, admittedly looking ahead to its chance to avenge a 98-74 loss to Indiana in the regular season, had to brush off several Central Michigan rallies before winning its Mideast semifinal 90-73.

Indiana's victory was its 34th in a row and raised its record for the season to 31-0.

Green, Indiana's 6-foot-7, 220-pound forward, and Benson, the 6-11, 235-pound center, demolished any hope Oregon State might have had of upsetting the Hoosiers. Green finished with 34 points, connecting 14 of 19 shots from the field, and Benson had 23. For most of the evening their combined total was more than Oregon State's whole team effort.

Green missed his first shot of the night but then hit his next seven straight and combined with Benson to reel off 12 points in the first five minutes of the game. By halftime Indiana had a 64 per cent average from the field and when Green left the game with just under two minutes remaining in the half, he had 17 points and Benson had 15.

A standing ovation from the 13,500 in the Dayton Arena at Green's departure in the first half was matched at the appearance of All-American Scott May, who played the last 1½ minutes of the first half and the final minute of the game. May, playing with a flexible cast on his broken left arm, missed wildly on the two shots he attempted in the first half.

Oregon State, 19-11, made one brief run at the Hoosiers when Charlie Neal and Paul Miller brought the Beavers within two points, 22-20, with 9:35 remaining in the first half. The much-publicized Hoosier defense then showed the reason for its acclaim, holding Oregon State without a field goal for a period of 5:09 late in the first half.

Indiana led by as much as 23 points but seemed lethargic before Green again got the Hoosiers going with three straight baskets to give them a 20-point lead with 13 minutes to go in the game.

Oregon State was hampered by foul trouble to Ronnie Shelton, who went into the game with an 18.9 scoring average. Shelton scored only two points in the first half and fouled out in the early minutes of the second half.

Don Smith led Oregon State in scoring with 14 points.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight noted the states his team went through on its way to victory.

"I thought we went from patience to impatience to patience again in the first half," said Knight, referring to the period when Indiana lost a 10-point lead and Oregon State closed to within two. "We were going too quickly on offense, but then our patience took over again."

Knight, looking drawn from a week-long bout with the flu, said his team was looking forward to its game with Oregon State which beat the Hoosiers last year in the Far West Classic.

"We were glad to get the chance to play them again this year," Knight said. "When you have a situation like this the kids are charged up."

Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller admitted that the whole issue was settled in the first half.

"I have always been impressed with them," he said. "I never once didn't say they didn't have a fine club. They are a year older and a year smarter. They are solid and their execution is better."

Miller refused to make a prediction about Saturday's confrontation between Indiana and Kentucky.

"It should be quite a battle," he said.

Forward Kevin Grevey scored 14 first-half points and ignited an offensive attack that carried Kentucky past Central Michigan. Grevey scored six of Kentucky's eight points in an offensive spurt which put his team into a 44-37 lead at halftime.

Central Michigan, taking advantage of 6-10 center Rick Robey's foul problems, opened up a four-point lead 22-18 with a little more than 10 minutes to go in the first half after outscoring the Wildcats 8-2.

Then Grevey and Mike Phillips, who went into replace Robey at center, went to work and gave Kentucky its halftime margin.

Grevey scored only three more points in the second half but Phillips, who had returned to the game when Robey picked up his fourth foul early in the second half, continued the scoring pace and finished with 15 points.

The Chippewas, who finished the season at 21-6 after clinching the Mid-American Conference title, closed to within two points with eight minutes remaining in the game on a basket by Russ Davis.

The Wildcats then unloaded their final scoring burst of the night, hitting three unanswered baskets to pull away for good.

Dan Roundfield and James McElroy provided the Central Michigan offensive punch throughout the game.

Both played major roles in the Chippewas' early first-half lead with Roundfield getting 11 first-half points and nine rebounds while McElroy scored eight. Roundfield finished the game with 20 points and McElroy had 17.

Kentucky shot 48 per cent from the field compared to 36 per cent for Central Michigan in the game.

UCLA Nips Montana In Close 67-64 Contest

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Second-ranked UCLA, chased all the way, held off hustling Montana 67-64 Thursday night and struggled into the NCAA West Regional basketball finals.

The victory moved UCLA, now 25-3, into Saturday's regional championship game against the winner of the evening's second game between seventh-ranked Arizona State and 16th-rated Nevada-Las Vegas.

Montana, the Big Sky Conference champion, was a big underdog, but the Grizzlies challenged UCLA from start to finish, led by the scoring of Eric Hays and Ken McKenzie.

The Bruins led by only two points with 1:10 remaining, but put the game away on a free throw by Marques Johnson with 38 seconds left and two more foul shots by Pete Trgovich with 16 seconds to go. that put ULCA on top 67-62.

Montana led briefly twice in the first half as Hays, a 6-foot-3 senior hit all nine of his shots from the floor and scored 19 points.

UCLA, the Pacific-8 Conference champion, led 34-33 at halftime. The Bruins, behind All-America forward Dave Myers, went ahead by nine points with 12 minutes left, but Montana would not fold.

Montana, now 21-7, trailed 64-55 with about 4½ minutes left. The Grizzlies then scored seven straight points to pull within 6462 before the Bruins put down the rally.

Hays, who wound up 13-16 from the floor, led all scorers with 32 points. McKenzie, a 6-9 senior, added 20. Trgovich and Rich Washington, a former Portland prep star, led UCLA with 16 points each. Myers finished with 12.

"I thought it would be a very difficult game," said UCLA Coach John Wooden. "To be quite honest, I didn't think it would be that tight. They gave us trouble everywhere."

Hays "was tremendous. He's an outstanding basketball player," Wooden said of the Montana forward.

Coach Jud Heathcote of Montana, asked whether he was proud or disappointed, said he was "more disappointed—when you come that close and lose, pride is a nebulous thing.

"Eric Hays played with great intensity. It was his best game of the year by far."

Oral Roberts Tops Nebraska

Tulsa, Okla. — Dave Bueherer tried, but Oral Roberts tagged the Nebraska pitcher for a home run in the first inning then clung to a 2-1 lead in the first game of a doubleheader here Thursday to edge the visitors.

In the second game, Oral Roberts bombed the Huskers 8-0, with a 12-hit barrage as Nebraska began its 29th baseball season under coach Tony Sharpe.

Buehrer walked the first batter in the first inning then had two ground outs to first baseman Jon Henne. Then Jerry Triska swatted the first pitch over the left field wall 330 feet away for all the runs the hosts needed.

Buehrer held Oral Roberts to a single in the fourth and a double in the fifth, but the NU batters couldn't score.

In the second game, Herb Adams nailed a single off NU pitcher Kirk Eymann and was followed minutes later by Buddy Slemp with a double which scored Adams. That was the beginning of the end as Oral Roberts tagged Eymann and Bob Batenhorst for 12 hits.

"This was the first time we've managed to get outside all season," said NU assistant coach Bob Gates. "Yesterday (Wednesday) we couldn't do anything, but they managed to dry the field for us today and we caught a few in warmup.

"They're a pretty good team," Gates said. "But we have a few more chances at them."

Nebraska plays doubleheaders at Oral Roberts Friday, Saturday and Sunday before traveling to Fayetteville, Ark., on Monday.

Maryland Stops Irish, Faces Louisville Next

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Fourth-ranked Maryland's disciplined three-guard offense finally wore down upset-minded Notre Dame 83-71 and No. 3 Louisville's sharpshooters gunned down Cincinnati 78-63 in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball semifinals Thursday night.

Maryland and Louisville will meet in New Mexico State's Pan American Center Saturday for a berth in the NCAA championship tournament at San Diego March 29 and 31.

The Missouri Valley Conference champion Cardinals fashioned a big 42-25 halftime lead on two super-charged spurts, one led by Bridgeman and another by substitute Ike Whitfield.

The first and most impressive surge came with the Cardinals trailing 11-10 with 15:48 left in the first half. Bridgeman spearheaded this surge, hitting two quick baskets, and the Cardinals ran off 15 straight points against the startled Bearcats.

With 6:48 left to play in the first half, Whitfield came off the bench and scored eight points in a 3:12 span where Louisville outscored Cincinnati 10-0 for a 39-19 lead, the largest of the first half.

The Bearcats, who had not lost a game since a regularseason meeting against Louisville, started a rally with the second half. Changing briefly to a man-to-man defense and beating the Cardinals down the floor on the fast break, Cincinnati trimmed Louisville's 17point halftime lead to a ninepoint margin at 57-48 with 8:10 left in the game.

Freshmen Mike Jones and Steve Collier helped cut Louisville's lead in the closing minutes. Collier hit seven straight points for his team to make it 69-61 with 3:10 left to play, but that was the closest Cincinnati could come.

Cincinnati remained in its two-three zone defense through the first half, although the Cardinal sharpshooters had little trouble shooting over it. The Cardinals were hitting 68 per cent from the field midway through the first half and had hit 59.4 per cent at halftime.

The Bearcats, meanwhile, hit only 31.6 per cent in the first half and posed only a minor scoring threat to the Cardinals at the start of the game. Cincinnati freshman Robert Miller helped Cincinnati to a 9-6 early lead with his scoring and rebounding.

Louisville, 26-2 for the season, was led by Bridgeman with 20 points and freshman Ricky Gallon with 16. Allen Murphy added 13 and Phillip Bond 10 for the Cardinals.

Sports Signals

It's A Sports Center

Suggestions began flowing in Thursday following my discussion about a name for the new "whatever it is" where the Nebraska Cornhuskers will play basketball next season.

In thinking of a name, consideration should be given to the fact that the new structure on the state fairgrounds will be a multi-sports complex, housing not only basketball, but also swimming, track and field, and perhaps other indoor facilities for gymnastics and tennis.

I know of another similar situation — at Notre Dame, where the Irish basketballers, hockey team and track and field men compete. Notre Dame calls it their "Athletic and Convocation Center."

Along those lines, maybe the new facility could be called "Nebraska Sports Center," or, if convocations are to be held there, why not steal the name from the Irish?

One of the Star's photographers, Web Ray, suggests it would be appropriate to call a place where Cornhuskers play "The Corn Palace," or "Corn Crib," or "Moonshine Hall."

If any of our readers have any other suggestions, shoot them to us and we'll pass them along.

Catching Up On Sports

Bryan Moss, the freshman swimmer from Nebraska who will be competing in next week's NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships in Cleveland, O., is a product of Northwest High School in Omaha and his prep coach was Joe Stocker. A couple of earlier stories had him from the wrong school.

Oklahoma has the lead in the Big Eight's all-sports trophy race with just the spring sports of outdoor track, baseball, tennis and golf to be contested. The Sooner point total is 23 based on a scoring system in which the low score ranks as the best.

Next is Iowa State at 28, then Kansas and Missouri at 30½ each, Oklahoma State 32½, Kansas State 34½, Nebraska 35½ and Colorado 37½.

Kansas has won the most titles with three championships (indoor track, swimming and basketball. Iowa State and Missouri tied for the cross country crown, Oklahoma State won in wrestling, Iowa State in gymnastics and Oklahoma in football.

Dates for the annual Sidney (Iowa) Championship Rodeo has been set for Aug. 5-10 . . . The Buffalo Bill Rodeo will open June 18 in North Platte.

One of the most absurd things I've read recently is comment by some golf critics that Johnny Miller can't win on a tough golf course. What about his U.S. Open title two years ago? The Open always is on a demanding course. Golf Digest in its latest issue has rated Miller the top choice to win his first Masters title Apri 9-13 at the Augusta National Golf Course.

A final note: Don Bryant has been elected president of the Nebraska Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association and Mark Gordon of The Star has won re-election as vice-president. Other officers are John Martinez of the North Platte Telegraph-Bulletin, treasurer; and Al Reddington of the Beatrice Sun, executive secretary.

NU Golfers Lack Experience

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Experience — that's the key to winning in golf and that's the major problem Nebraska golf coach Larry Romjue faces this year — No Experience.

Sophomore lettermen Craig Moyer of Wood River and Gary Stieneke of South Sioux City, who saw limited action last year, are the only other returnees.

Freshman Doug Smith, from Lincoln High, offers a bright spot in the squad's newcomers in addition to Dave Pauley, a transfer from Nebraska Wesleyan and senior Bob Meyer who lettered his freshman and sophomore years and then sat out last year.

"Right now, Smith and Moyer are playing better than the rest, but I expect everyone to improve as we get into more tournaments," said Romjue.

"We just need to get as much experience as we can in the next six weeks or so before the Big Eight meet," said Romjue. "Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, and defending Big Eight champion Oklahoma State are returning either all, or all but one of their top five players from last year."

"But we have a lot of potential, and we're playing tougher courses this year so we may come around by conference meet time," said Romjue, now in his fifth year as golf coach.

Romjue pointed out that the Huskers faced 10 of the top 15 teams in the nation in the Pan American Intercollegiate meet in Monterey, Mexico and four of the top 15 in the Sooner Invitational earlier this year. NU finished 19th in Mexico and 10th in Oklahoma.

"By facing top caliber competition like this, our golfers can compare for evaluation and see what it takes to become class players," said Romjue.

"The more times a player is under pressure, he learns how to keep a score down if he's playing bad and how to improve if he's playing well," he said. "The only way to learn in golf is to compete."

The Big Eight's southern teams, Oklahoma State and Oklahoma, appear to be the Big Eight teams to beat and the remaining places seem to be a toss-up according to Romjue. "OSU is a contender for the national title and OU could end up in the top ten.

"Certainly the weather and opportunity to play more in the warmer climates help a team in recruiting and in gaining playing experience," said Romjue.

"I've offered scholarships to kids from the south to come here, and they have ended up going to southern schools for less scholarship money," said Romjue.

"I would expect that by the middle of April, all our players will be shooting under 80. And should we keep improving we could finish third or fourth in the conference," said Romjue.

Remaining schedule:

March 25-28 — Galveston Island Intercollegiate Invitational, Galveston, Texas; April 4 — Triangular with UNO and South Dakota in Lincoln; April 10-11 — Wheatshocker Invitational, Wichita; April 17-18 — Kansas Relays, Lawrence, Kan.; April 24-25 — Drake Relays, Des Moines; April 26 — Triangular with Drake, Iowa State at Ames, Iowa; May 16-17 — Big Eight at Norman, Oklahoma.

2 Mavs 'Found' In NU Lineup

By Associated Press

Two Mavericks have been discovered in the defensive line of the University of Nebraska Cornhusker football team.

Middle guard John Lee and tackle Ron Pruitt are expected to anchor the Cornhusker defensive line next season in their senior years. But they are actually enrolled in coursework that will lead to degrees from the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) under the current system.

The UNO campus, of course, has its own football program. And at UNO, sports teams are called the Mavericks.

The situation developed through a fluke in the University of Nebraska system under which criminal justice majors receive degrees from UNO. Both Lee and Pruitt are majoring in criminal justice, or criminology.

Back in 1962, UNO became headquarters for criminal justice coursework. Later, courses in criminal justice were offered at the Lincoln campus, but an administrative decision was made to retain the headquarters at UNO and offer the criminal justice degrees from that school.

Cornhusker football coach Tom Osborne isn't concerned about the two Mavericks on his team.

"I wasn't aware until two or three days ago that the degrees came out of Omaha," Osborne said. "I think as far as the NCAA is concerned and as far as we're concerned, they're taking 12 hours and are registered here."

A check with the National Collegiate Athletic Association headquarters near Kansas City, Kan., tentatively confirmed Osborne's opinion.

Jim Delany, a member of the NCAA enforcement division, said there is no regulation to cover such a situation, which he termed unique.

"It doesn't sound like anything real serious," he said. Meanwhile, the 440 criminology majors at UNL are working to get the policy changed.

Terrage Captures Fonner Feature

Grand Island — J. and C. Jorgensen's Terrage finally found the winner's circle in 1975 by defeating six foes here Thursday in Fonner Park's featured seventh race.

The 6-year-old gelding led throughout the 6-furlong chase over a fast track to post his first win in five outings this year — two here and three at Louisiana Downs.

In running a 1:11 4-5 clocking — just three-fifths of a second off the Fonner record, Terrage was guided by Ken Jones to a 2½-length victory.

He returned $9.00, $4.80 and $3.40. Ray Guzinski's Gungo placed for $8.40 and $5.80 while Del Rathman's Rideniron showed for $2.80.

Jones' win on Terrage and an earlier triumph on T. V. Smith's Jacinto Queen boosted the Omaha rider to within one point of the track's leading jockey, David Pettinger. Jones now trails by 113-112 points.

Alvan Adams

Big Eight Award To Adams

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Alvan Adams, Oklahoma's great center, was selected Big Eight Conference basketball player of the year Thursday but was not a shoo-in for the honor.

Willie Smith of Missouri, Chuckie Williams of Kansas State and Hercle Ivy of Iowa State also received a generous helping of votes from the committee of sports writers and sportscasters.

Mike Evans of Kansas State ran away with the balloting for freshman of the year recognition.

Adams, who makes a habit of taking Big Eight honors, finished second in league scoring behind Ivy. Adams had a game average of 26.5 points as compared with Ivy's 28.3.

Adams led the conference in rebounding, averaging 13.3 rebounds a game.

Evans was a big surprise for the Wildcats. Before the season started, Coach Jack Hartman of K-State said Evans would be called upon "to give us a lot of help."

Evans did that. At some stages of the campaign, he and Williams were the most awesome twosome in the conference. Evans was seventh in scoring, hitting for 17.4 points a game.

Hartman was named coach of the year in a close race with Norm Stewart of Missouri. Both coaches started the season without a returning letterman and contended for the conference championship until the final day of the campaign.

K-State wound up second and Missouri third. Kansas won the championship.

Princeton, Oregon Reach Semifinals

NEW YORK (AP) — Princeton's Tigers routed South Carolina 86-67 behind Tim Van Blommesteyn and Armond Hill Thursday night and streaked into the semifinals of the National Invitation basketball tournament at Madison Square Garden.

The tough Ivy Leaguers earned a semifinal berth Saturday against Oregon, which earlier whipped Oral Roberts 68-59 as Greg Ballard struck for 23 points and 15 rebounds and keyed a second-half rally. St. John's will meet Providence in Saturday's other semifinal game.

The flawless Tigers gave South Carolina a virtual textbook lesson in basketball in the nightcap, executing with precision and scoring many of their points on easy layups with Van Blommesteyn hitting for 24 points and Hill for 22.

The well-drilled Tigers, who had been beaten by South Carolina by 17 points earlier in the season, had their 11th straight victory just about wrapped up by halftime when they led 42-24.

South Carolina, a slight favorite, stirred up some excitement at the start of the second half, reeling off eight straight points, but Princeton went on to score 15 of the game's next 19 points for a commanding 57-36 advantage with 12 minutes left.

The Tigers extended their lead to 23 points before a sizeable portion of the Garden crowd of 11,425 started to head for the exits.

Princeton improved its record to 20-8. South Carolina, 19-9, was led by 13 points by Nate Davis and 12 by Mike Dunleavy and Nate Davis.

Oral Roberts led by nine points at one time in the opening game before Oregon took charge midway through the first half and took a 33-32 halftime advantage behind Ballard.

Ballard had 12 points and nine rebounds in the opening half, then triggered a 16-4 scoring burst that helped Oregon move to a 48-36 lead with less than 12 minutes remaining.

The Titans' clicked off the next six points, closing to 48-42, but that was the closest they got. Led by Ballard, the Ducks improved their lead to as many as 16 points before Coach Dick Harter sent in his reserves.

Stu Jackson scored 16 points for Oregon, 20-8. Tony Roberts had 18 points, tops for Oral Roberts, which closed out its season at 20-8.

Hartman Receives AP Honor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jack Hartman of Kansas State, who moulded a green team into a national playoff club, was named basketball coach of the year today in the Big Eight Conference.

Hartman is in Providence, R.I., with his team for tonight's game with Boston College in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's East Regional semifinals. The Wildcats surprised last week by upsetting Pennsylvania 69-62 in first-round action.

Norm Stewart, the Missouri coach, gave Hartman a close race for the honor in a vote of a panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

K-State wound up its regular season with 18 victories and eight defeats and finished the conference race in second place, one game behind the champion Kansas Jayhawks.

Hartman had no returning starters from the 1974 season, and preseason forecasts had the Wildcats struggling for a berth in the Big Eight's upper division.

Hartman admits the Wildcats have "surprised me a great deal. Yes, I would regard the victory over Penn as our biggest of the year, playing them on their home floor and everything."

Stewart, likewise, didn't have a single returning starter, and his team was third in Big Eight competition and played in the Collegiate Commissioners Tournament at Louisville, Ky., last week, losing to Purdue in the first round.

Wedman Sparks Kings

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City-Omaha Kings, fired by Scott Wedman, moved one stop closer to a playoff berth with a 101-95 National Basketball Association victory Thursday night over the quick-tempered New Orleans Jazz.

The Kings led by only one point, 93-92 with two minutes, six seconds left on the strength of rookie Wedman's seventh consecutive point. Wedman started the game at guard for the first time in his career, replacing the injured Jimmy Walker, who is suffering from back spasms.

The Jazz lost its composure and the game at the 2:06 mark when E. C. Coleman was called for a two-shot foul that sent Sam Lacey to the free throw line for the Kings. Coleman protested the call and official Bob Rakel called a technical foul.

New Orleans Coach Butch Van Breda Kolff protested the call on Coleman and he, too, received a technical. While Nate "Tiny" Archibald was shooting the two technicals, Pete Maravich was antagonizing Rakel and the official kicked him out of the game.

After the fuss, the Kings held a 97-92 lead and coasted the rest of the way. The Kings' magic number for a playoff berth was reduced to two over Detroit and Milwaukee.

The Kings were led by Archibald with a game-high 31 points, and Wedman was next with 21. New Orleans' top scorer was Maravich with 24.

The triumph put Kansas City only 1½ games behing the Midwest Division-leading Chicago Bulls, who lost to Cleveland.

Terrage Captures Fonner Feature

Grand Island — J. and C. Jorgensen's Terrage finally found the winner's circle in 1975 by defeating six foes here Thursday in Fonner Park's featured seventh race.

The 6-year-old gelding led throughout the 6-furlong chase over a fast track to post his first win in five outings this year — two here and three at Louisiana Downs.

In running a 1:11 4-5 clocking — just three-fifths of a second off the Fonner record, Terrage was guided by Ken Jones to a 2½-length victory.

He returned $9.00, $4.80 and $3.40. Ray Guzinski's Gungo placed for $8.40 and $5.80 while Del Rathman's Rideniron showed for $2.80.

Jones' win on Terrage and an earlier triumph on T. V. Smith's Jacinto Queen boosted the Omaha rider to within one point of the track's leading jockey, David Pettinger. Jones now trails by 113-112 points.

Wedman Sparks Kings

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City-Omaha Kings, fired by Scott Wedman, moved one stop closer to a playoff berth with a 101-95 National Basketball Association victory Thursday night over the quick-tempered New Orleans Jazz.

The Kings led by only one point, 93-92 with two minutes, six seconds left on the strength of rookie Wedman's seventh consecutive point. Wedman started the game at guard for the first time in his career, replacing the injured Jimmy Walker, who is suffering from back spasms.

The Jazz lost its composure and the game at the 2:06 mark when E. C. Coleman was called for a two-shot foul that sent Sam Lacey to the free throw line for the Kings. Coleman protested the call and official Bob Rakel called a technical foul.

New Orleans Coach Butch Van Breda Kolff protested the call on Coleman and he, too, received a technical. While Nate "Tiny" Archibald was shooting the two technicals, Pete Maravich was antagonizing Rakel and the official kicked him out of the game.

After the fuss, the Kings held a 97-92 lead and coasted the rest of the way. The Kings' magic number for a playoff berth was reduced to two over Detroit and Milwaukee.

The Kings were led by Archibald with a game-high 31 points, and Wedman was next with 21. New Orleans' top scorer was Maravich with 24.

The triumph put Kansas City only 1½ games behing the Midwest Division-leading Chicago Bulls, who lost to Cleveland.

Alvan Adams

Big Eight Award To Adams

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Alvan Adams, Oklahoma's great center, was selected Big Eight Conference basketball player of the year Thursday but was not a shoo-in for the honor.

Willie Smith of Missouri, Chuckie Williams of Kansas State and Hercle Ivy of Iowa State also received a generous helping of votes from the committee of sports writers and sportscasters.

Mike Evans of Kansas State ran away with the balloting for freshman of the year recognition.

Adams, who makes a habit of taking Big Eight honors, finished second in league scoring behind Ivy. Adams had a game average of 26.5 points as compared with Ivy's 28.3.

Adams led the conference in rebounding, averaging 13.3 rebounds a game.

Evans was a big surprise for the Wildcats. Before the season started, Coach Jack Hartman of K-State said Evans would be called upon "to give us a lot of help."

Evans did that. At some stages of the campaign, he and Williams were the most awesome twosome in the conference. Evans was seventh in scoring, hitting for 17.4 points a game.

Hartman was named coach of the year in a close race with Norm Stewart of Missouri. Both coaches started the season without a returning letterman and contended for the conference championship until the final day of the campaign.

K-State wound up second and Missouri third. Kansas won the championship.

Princeton, Oregon Reach Semifinals

NEW YORK (AP) — Princeton's Tigers routed South Carolina 86-67 behind Tim Van Blommesteyn and Armond Hill Thursday night and streaked into the semifinals of the National Invitation basketball tournament at Madison Square Garden.

The tough Ivy Leaguers earned a semifinal berth Saturday against Oregon, which earlier whipped Oral Roberts 68-59 as Greg Ballard struck for 23 points and 15 rebounds and keyed a second-half rally. St. John's will meet Providence in Saturday's other semifinal game.

The flawless Tigers gave South Carolina a virtual textbook lesson in basketball in the nightcap, executing with precision and scoring many of their points on easy layups with Van Blommesteyn hitting for 24 points and Hill for 22.

The well-drilled Tigers, who had been beaten by South Carolina by 17 points earlier in the season, had their 11th straight victory just about wrapped up by halftime when they led 42-24.

South Carolina, a slight favorite, stirred up some excitement at the start of the second half, reeling off eight straight points, but Princeton went on to score 15 of the game's next 19 points for a commanding 57-36 advantage with 12 minutes left.

The Tigers extended their lead to 23 points before a sizeable portion of the Garden crowd of 11,425 started to head for the exits.

Princeton improved its record to 20-8. South Carolina, 19-9, was led by 13 points by Nate Davis and 12 by Mike Dunleavy and Nate Davis.

Oral Roberts led by nine points at one time in the opening game before Oregon took charge midway through the first half and took a 33-32 halftime advantage behind Ballard.

Ballard had 12 points and nine rebounds in the opening half, then triggered a 15-4 scoring burst that helped Oregon move to a 48-36 lead with less than 12 minutes remaining.

The Titans' clicked off the next six points, closing to 48-42, but that was the closest they got. Led by Ballard, the Ducks improved their lead to as many as 16 points before Coach Dick Harter sent in his reserves.

Stu Jackson scored 16 points for Oregon, 20-8. Tony Roberts had 18 points, tops for Oral Roberts, which closed out its season at 20-8.

Hartman Receives AP Honor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jack Hartman of Kansas State, who moulded a green team into a national playoff club, was named basketball coach of the year today in the Big Eight Conference.

Hartman is in Providence, R.I., with his team for tonight's game with Boston College in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's East Regional semifinals. The Wildcats surprised last week by upsetting Pennsylvania 69-62 in first-round action.

Norm Stewart, the Missouri coach, gave Hartman a close race for the honor in a vote of a panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

K-State wound up its regular season with 18 victories and eight defeats and finished the conference race in second place, one game behind the champion Kansas Jayhawks.

Hartman had no returning starters from the 1974 season, and preseason forecasts had the Wildcats struggling for a berth in the Big Eight's upper division.

Hartman admits the Wildcats have "surprised me a great deal. Yes, I would regard the victory over Penn as our biggest of the year, playing them on their home floor and everything."

Stewart, likewise, didn't have a single returning starter, and his team was third in Big Eight competition and played in the Collegiate Commissioners Tournament at Louisville, Ky., last week, losing to Purdue in the first round.

Rutgers University has postponed a decision on membership in the proposed Eastern Independent Collegiate Basketball League. Other potential members include Duquesne, George Washington, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Villanova and West Virginia.

After Jerry Colangelo, general manager of the Phoenix Suns, confronted a referee at the Suns' game against New York, he said it was worth the $250 fine like Jabbar got in a similar case. No action was taken against Colangelo by the officials at the game.

Athletic director and head basketball coach Tom Millsap of Norfolk, announced his resignation. Millsap's team won its district championship and traveled to the Nebraska state Basketball tournament this year after posting a 11-9 record.

Bob Sixel of Broken Bow, announced he will resign from the post of head basketball coach at the end of the year. Sixel coached in Palmer for five years and posted an overall record of 75-28 in leading his 1974 team to the Class D state championship.

Marvin Webster, "The Human Eraser" from Morgan State, was named the Associated Press College Division Player of the Year for 1974-75. This was his second year for the honor.

BASEBALL

Stockholder notification requirements are delaying the final approval of the sale of the Baltimore Orioles, Bill Veeck, who heads a group negotiation the purchase of the American League team said. Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland said he thought the last obstacle to the sale is a television contract.

The Kansas City Royals made their first squad cut, transferring 10 players to the minor league complex in Sarasota, Fla. The team is now seven over the opening day limit, with 32 players on the squad.

FOOTBALL

A call from Hank Aaron to recruit Charles Green of Mobile helped the University of Wisconsin convince Green, a 6-1, 208-pound quarterback, to sign with the Wisconsin school.

Oregon State University football coach Dee Andros filed a suit seeking $75,000 from a clothing store he claims used his name in advertising without his permission. The store ads used Andros' nickname, "The Great Pumpkin," and a photo of him.

The Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, have signed running back Randy "Sweet Back" Walker. Walker scored 33 touchdowns in 22 college games.

Jack Gotta, a championship coach in the Canadian and new World Football Leagues, will direct operations but will not coach a proposed new Birmingham WFL team.

The University of Texas-Arlington administration will support the football team for another year but the rest of the school and the community must prove its support also.

Mary Pratt, of Quincy, Mass., has applied for the head football coaching job in one of the public schools there.

Despite an SEC letter of intent to Mississippi State last fall, Jeff Moore has signed NCAA papers to play for Jackson State.

Cincinnati Bengals coach and general manager Paul Brown has said somebody wants Greg Cook, but won't say which NFL team is talking trade for the long-ailing quarterback.

Ali Comments Anger Challenger Wepner

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — Muhammad Ali is in condition. His jabs — the verbal ones — are getting through to Chuck Wepner no matter how much Wepner says there're not.

Chuck tips his hand just by the scowl on his battered face when he talks about Muhammad.

Chuck Wepner

Muhammed Ali

"He's gonna try to make me out a jerk," Wepner growled Thursday.

"That stuff about him not fighting Joe Frazier or Ken Norton Monday in the shape he's in, but he's good enough for me. And that bit about him hinting he might carry me for 10 or 12 rounds. He'll try that, they carry him out."

Brave words, sounding so much like the braggadocio of so many who have fallen to Ali.

Surrounded by the advisory board manager Al Braverman has put together, Wepner looking quite trim and solid, spoke of "my recurring dream" in which, of course, he wins the title by ko'ing Ali in the 13th round.

"I been havin' that dream all the time," he said. "I hit him with a right hand and they count him out and I see and hear Howard Cosell jumping up and down yelling, 'I do not believe it, I do not believe it."

But Chuck believes in his vaguely possible real, but probably contrived, dream. Believes it so much that he has bet $700 at 10-1 on himself, a nice piece of change to add to his $100,000 guarantee.

"I been watching the films of him and he don't move. Those other guys didn't know what to do. I know all I need. These," and he raised his two fists and then pounded his chest, searching for his heart.

But what about Ali's other weapons? The needling before the fight, the way he'll talk in the ring Monday, deliver his message?

Wepner pulled at his Fu Manchu mustache. "It's hard to talk with a glove in your mouth," he said.

'Unknown's Pace Florida Meet

Jacksonville, Fla. (UPI) — B. R. "Mac" McLendon, a journeyman pro who was thinking about leaving the tour before winning a share of the National Team Championship last fall, shared the first round lead in the Greater Jacksonville Open with Barney Thompson Thursday by shooting a 5-under-par 67.

That gave the 29-year-old McLendon and the even less known 26-year-old Thompson a one-stroke lead over six first-round runnersups, including Arnold Palmer who had nary a bogey in his 4-under round of 68.

McLendon had missed the exempt list five straight years before teaming with Hubert Green to win the national title at Disney World in early November.

"That victory made me change my mind about quitting," said McLendon. "I felt reborn. I fell in love with golf again."

McLendon finished in the top 25 in four of five tournaments at the start of the year, took a couple of weeks off, then had trouble rejuicing his game when the tour arrived in Florida. He is currently 41st on the '75 PGA money list with winnings of more than $14,000.

Palmer was tied for runnerup honors with Ben Crenshaw, Lee Elder, Jim Dent, Grier Jones and Bob Dickson. Another stroke back at 3-under 69 were Tex Simon, Marion Heck, Bobby Cole and Dave Stockton.

The really big names in pro golf are missing for the most part this week. Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Lee Trevino are taking the week off; Gary Player hasn't returned from his South Africa home; and Bob Murphy, No. 2 on this year's money list, was a last-minute withdrawal because of a touch of flu.

"I don't think about who else is in the field," insisted McLendon. "Sure, Miller is on a hot streak, but he's human like the rest of us. Names like Miller and Nicklaus don't intimidate me. They beat me more than I beat them, but that doesn't mean I'm afraid of them."

Thompson, a 6-foot-5, 200-pound second year pro golfer out of Huntington, W. Va., isn't even on the top 100 money list through the first 10 tournaments this year.

A graduate of the 1973 PGA qualifying school, Thompson was 132nd on the list in 1974 with earnings of just over $13,000. His best finish last year was a tie for ninth in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

Elder and Dent, two of the few blacks on the pro golf tour, and the blond young Crenshaw, led the first half of the field in the opening round. But McLendon, a late starter, broke out of the pack when he went 5 under with a birdie at No. 16.

The lean, blond Thompson, playing in the third from last threesome, wasn't even in contention through his first 11 holes Thursday.

Thompson, a 6-foot-5, 200-pound second year pro golfer out of Huntington, W. Va., isn't even on the top 100 money list through the first 10 tournaments this year.

A graduate of the 1973 PGA qualifying school, Thompson was 132nd on the list in 1974 with earnings of just over $13,000. His best finish last year was a tie for ninth in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

Elder and Dent, two of the few blacks on the pro golf tour, and the blond young Crenshaw, led the first half of the field in the opening round. But McLendon, a late starter, broke out of the pack when he went 5 under with a birdie at No. 16.

The lean, blond Thompson, playing in the third from last threesome, wasn't even in contention through his first 11 holes Thursday.

Employe Benefits OKd For LCAD

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD) board has made promises of employe benefits part of its hiring package, but those benefits have been nonexistent

The board has been making up for the lack of benefits for LCAD executive director Bob Adams and assistant director Eric McMasters through increased salaries.

Thursday, the board took action, deciding that full-time LCAD employes who qualify will now be eligible for health insurance and pension plans

The board bucked the recommendation of its personnel and staff relations committee — and its executive committee — in agreeing to pay 90% of the cost of single coverage health insurance for all full-time employes

LCAD Payment

The committees had recommended that single coverage health insurance be available to all full-time employes, but that LCAD also foot the additional cost of the family plan for Adams and McMasters

Individual board members, including Asuquo Pete Umoren, Malone Center director, said the practice would be discriminatory Walt Giles of the Municipal Court, said the committees recommendation would penalize those employes who "have the least ability to pay"

Other board members pointed out that city, county, state and private business employes are required to dig into their pockets to pay a share of their health insurance

The health insurance plan to which LCAD will subscribe is that offered local United Fund agencies through Lincoln Community Services (LCS), which oversees fund-raising and programs of member agencies.

Full Cost Paid

Eight agencies, plus LCS, currently subscribe to the plan, said Nancy Ossenkop LCS budget director In those agencies the full cost of single coverage health insurance is provided by the employer regardless of the individual's position within that agency, she said

The LCAD board had no difficulty with the recommendation to allow any fulltime employe of a year or more who is 25 years of age or older to enrolling the National Health and Welfare Association pension fund, also offered through LCS

Under that plan, the board will match employe contributions up to 5% of income

LCS and five local agencies currently have employes enrolled in the plan, Ms Ossenkop said

In other action, Adams announced that Dona Giles has been named director of the city's proposed detoxification center

Mrs Giles, a registered nurse, has spent the last eight months as a vocational-rehabilitation counselor at LCAD

Alcoholism Experience

She has worked in other detoxification centers and alcoholism treatment programs in Kansas City and at Veterans Administration Hospital here

LCAD is negotiating with Lincoln General Hospital for use of its nurses dormitory as the detoxification site, Adams said A City Council-funded architectural study to determine the cost of converting the facility is planned, he said

If all goes well, Adams said, the detoxification center will be in operation by mid-summer

It was to have opened Jan. 1, but was delayed because of negotiation breakdowns first with the Salvation Army and later with Bethesda, formerly Providence, Hospital.

Last September, the City Council appropriated $94,200 for the center.

Program Slated At Union College

Organ and trumpet music will be combined in "Toccatas and Flourishes" at the Union College Auditorium on Saturday at 8 30 p m

The musicians will be Richard Morris, director of music at Manhattan's West-Park Presbyterian Church in New York City, and Martin Bernbaum, artist in residence at Western Carolina University.

Admission price is $1 for singles and $3 for families

Employe Benefits OKd For LCAD

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD) board has made promises of employe benefits part of its hiring package, but those benefits have been nonexistent.

The board has been making up for the lack of benefits for LCAD executive director Bob Adams and assistant director Eric McMasters through increased salaries.

Thursday, the board took action, deciding that full-time LCAD employes who qualify will now be eligible for health insurance and pension plans.

The board bucked the recommendation of its personnel and staff relations committee — and its executive committee — in agreeing to pay 90% of the cost of single coverage health insurance for all full-time employes.

LCAD Payment

The committees had recommended that single coverage health insurance be available to all full-time employes, but that LCAD also foot the additional cost of the family plan for Adams and McMasters.

Individual board members, including Asuquo Pete Umoren, Malone Center director, said the practice would be discriminatory. Walt Giles of the Municipal Court, said the committees' recommendation would penalize those employes who "have the least ability to pay."

Other board members pointed out that city, county, state and private business employes are required to dig into their pockets to pay a share of their health insurance.

The health insurance plan to which LCAD will subscribe is that offered local United Fund agencies through Lincoln Community Services (LCS), which oversees fund-raising and programs of member agencies.

Full Cost Paid

Eight agencies, plus LCS, currently subscribe to the plan, said Nancy Ossenkop, LCS budget director. In those agencies the full cost of single coverage health insurance is provided by the employer, regardless of the individual's position within that agency, she said.

The LCAD board had no difficulty with the recommendation to allow any fulltime employe of a year or more who is 25 years of age or older to enrolling the National Health and Welfare Association pension fund, also offered through LCS.

Under that plan, the board will match employe contributions up to 5% of income.

LCS and five local agencies currently have employes enrolled in the plan, Ms. Ossenkop said.

In other action, Adams announced that Dona Giles has been named director of the city's proposed detoxification center.

Mrs. Giles, a registered nurse, has spent the last eight months as a vocational-rehabilitation counselor at LCAD.

Alcoholism Experience

She has worked in other detoxification centers and alcoholism treatment programs in Kansas City and at Veterans' Administration Hospital here.

LCAD is negotiating with Lincoln General Hospital for use of its nurses' dormitory as the detoxification site, Adams said. A City Council-funded architectural study to determine the cost of converting the facility is planned, he said.

If all goes well, Adams said, the detoxification center will be in operation by mid-summer.

It was to have opened Jan. 1, but was delayed because of negotiation breakdowns first with the Salvation Army and later with Bethesda, formerly Providence, Hospital.

Last September, the City Council appropriated $94,200 for the center.

Program Slated At Union College

Organ and trumpet music will be combined in "Toccatas and Flourishes" at the Union College Auditorium on Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

The musicians will be Richard Morris, director of music at Manhattan's West-Park Presbyterian Church in New York City, and Martin Berinbaum, artist in residence at Western Carolina University.

Admission price is $1 for singles and $3 for families.

Strauss Wins Power Struggle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Party Chairman Robert S. Strauss moved to stall constroversy Thursday over a contribution from Ashland Oil and won a key power struggle among the state party chairmen.

At the opening of two days of meetings of party leaders, Strauss appointed a three-man committee to study the 1970 contribution of $50,000 from Ashland Oil Inc., thus preventing any open debates on the subject during the current meetings.

At the same time, Strauss-backed candidate Donald Fowler of South Carolina ousted Robert Vance of Alabama as president of the Association of State Democratic Chairmen. Vance had the support of party liberals in the contest.

Pipeline Work To Start

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The $6 billion trans-Alaska pipeline is finally going to have some pipe laid.

Billions of dollars and millions of man hours after the biggest manmade project in history began, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. has announced the first regular section of pipe is scheduled to be installed in Alaskan soil next Tuesday.

A 1,900-foot ditch has been gouged out of the Tonsina River and its flood plain 74 miles north of the ice-free port of Valdez. That small town on the state's southern coast is the terminal for the 798-mile pipeline which will cross tundra and mountains from its start at oil rich Prudhoe Bay.

Tuesday's ceremonies will not be the first time pipe has been put in place along the route, however. A small test section was installed near Fairbanks late last year to enable engineers to check its parts and performance during the biting arctic winter. The test section, which was elevated on vertical supports, eventually will be incorporated into the final product.

Accounting Methods Differ In Money-Market Funds

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — Investors in money-market funds have recently suffered a sharp decline in income. Interest rates on the short-term investments these funds buy — such things as commercial paper, bank certificates of deposit and government securities — have been dropping rapidly. Most funds are now paying just a little over six percent (compared with 11% and up a few months ago). Some have fallen almost to five percent.

In part, the differences in yield among the funds reflect the differing quality of their investments. A fund that specializes in government securities will earn less than one that invests mainly in commercial paper. If an investor switches to the commercial-paper fund on account of its higher yield, he is taking a slightly higher investment risk.

But with many funds, the yield difference lies not in the portfolio but in the accounting. For example, two funds may return the exact same number of dollars to investors — yet the published "yield" on one may be a half percentage point higher than on the other. The difference lies purely in the mathematics of calculating investment payouts. If you switched to the apparently higher-yielding fund, you wouldn't gain a nickel for your efforts.

But in other cases, an accounting difference may be genuinely significant to investors. For example, two funds with exactly the same portfolios will give you a different return depending on whether they value their investments at cost (which is what they paid for them) or at market (which is their current value in the marketplace).

In brief, here's what the two different accounting methods mean to you:

When a fund values its portfolio of investments at market, it makes an adjustment every day to take any change of interest rates into consideration. If rates fall, as they have been recently, the underlying value of the portfolio rises. The capital gain is credited to the fund's investors, and the fund's yield falls.

Whenever you buy into, or sell out of, a fund valued at market, you can count on getting your fair share of whatever gains (or losses) your capital has earned. The Reserve Fund and Dreyfus Liquid Assets are two money-market funds that value at market.

Other funds value at cost. They do not make adjustments to account for daily changes in value on the investments they hold. If they buy a 90-day certificate of deposit at 8%, they carry it at 8% for the entire period, even if its value rises in the interim. These funds pay no attention to the capital gain, and do not allocate it to investors. They also ignore capital losses.

Here is where the inequity creeps in. Shareholders are deprived of the gain their investment has earned. In effect, that gain used to subsidize the interest rate — keeping it high even though the general level of interest rates fall.

Investors who buy into the fund at this point are getting the advantage of a higher interest rate than the market would otherwise allow them. They get a little more than their capital deserves, while the older investors get a little less. The Money Market Management Fund, and Scudder Managed Reserves value their portfolios this way. Fidelity Daily Income Trust used to do so with the bulk of its portfolio, but has just switched over to valuing at market.

When interest rates rise again, the situation will reverse: older investors will gain at the expense of newer ones. This produces a situation where the smart money will switch to a cost-valued fund when interest rates start to fall.

Electronics News Sparks Brief Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Talk of a possible device to improve cars' gasoline mileage set off a burst of excitement in electronics stocks Thursday but failed to lift the general market out of its downtrend of the past few days.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than six points at the height of a short-lived buying wave at midday, finished with a 5.48 loss at 764 even.

That brought the Dow's loss for the past three sessions to 22.53 points in a setback that has been largely attributed to profit taking.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .73 to 83.61, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index was down .33 at 44.36.

Declines outpaced advances 790 to 579 among the 1,768 issues traded on the Big Board.

NYSE volume picked up a bit to 20.96 million shares from 19.03 million on Wednesday.

The session turned on the report by Robert W. Sarnoff, chairman of RCA Corp., that a minute device called a microprocessor was being tested by major automakers as a means of improving fuel economy, and that the resultant savings in gasoline could amount to more than 500 million gallons a month.

The gradual spread of the news among investors sparked a rush into RCA shares at first, then a surge in electronics issues generally, and finally a general uptrend throughout the market.

But the rally collapsed as quickly as it had begun.

"What I think happened was that people saw this rally was speculative, coming as it did on one development of dubious immediate impact, and so they backed off," observed Larry Wachtel at Bache & Co.

RCA shares, which rarely are volatile, jumped 3⅜ to 19 before trading in them was halted because of a heavy flow of orders. By the time it resumed, the rally had passed and the stock closed at 17½, up 1⅞ for the day on turnover of 696,300 shares.

Among stocks of the numerous other companies which produce microprocessors, AMBAC Industries rose 1⅝ to 11⅛, General Instrument gained 1 to 10⅜, Fairchild Camera added ⅞ to 33⅝, and National Semiconductor was up 2⅜ at 29.

National, which traded as low as 6¼ last year, hit 32¼ at the peak of the buying before falling back.

Rockwell International, which said after the close it was involved in microprocessor tests with a number of auto firms including General Motors, gained ¾ to 21⅜.

In auto stocks, GM gained ¼ to 42⅞; Ford rose ¾ to 37⅝, and Chrysler was unchanged at 10¾.

The microprocessor story stole the spotlight from several other economic news developments during the day. But analysts did note some evident disappointment over the February consumer price index, which matched January's rise at a 7.2 per cent annual rate.

American Telephone & Telegraph was heavily traded, falling 1⅜ to 49⅛. On Wednesday, the company reported its first quarterly earnings decline in three years.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index slipped .25 to 80.56.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market was up .11 at 75.78.

Commodities Finish Mixed

Chicago (AP) — Profit-taking cut down a determined climb of farm commodity futures prices late on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday and prices closed on a mostly irregular tone.

Soybeans, corn and iced broiler prices were mixed on the final bell while oats were down about 1½ cents a bushel. Wheat futures gained up to 4 cents and soybean meal rose $2 a ton. Iced broilers were steady to about ½ cent a pound higher.

Gold futures closed $3 an ounce lower.

Most Hog Classes Up

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)— Receipts were modest on the Omaha livestock market Thursday forcing most hog classes higher.

Sellers brought just 4,000 animals for the session. Trade on barrows and gilts was active, and the trend was called steady to 50-cents higher, most sales were 25-to-50 cents up, as heavier weighted offerings were scarce.

About 300 head of top-graded handyweights took the day's butcher top, $40.25, early in the session. Bulk sales on more desirable animals ranged from $39.50-$40.00.

Sows under 450 pounds were called 25-to-50 cents higher, but heavier weights lost 50-cents. Sow earnings ranged from $34.50-$38.00.

There were but 600 head of cattle on the runs, and the scattered sales of slaughter steers and heifers that were reported were called steady. However, there weren't enough sales to give an adequate market test.

Cows turned weak to 50-cents lower, as adjustment from gains earlier in the week continued.

The sheep supply totaled 500 head, but went direct to dealers.

Accounting Methods Differ In Money-Market Funds

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — Investors in money-market funds have recently suffered a sharp decline in income. Interest rates on the short-term investments these funds buy — such things as commercial paper, bank certificates of deposit and government securities — have been dropping rapidly. Most funds are now paying just a little over six percent (compared with 11% and up a few months ago). Some have fallen almost to five percent.

In part, the differences in yield among the funds reflect the differing quality of their investments. A fund that specializes in government securities will earn less than one that invests mainly in commercial paper. If an investor switches to the commercial-paper fund on account of its higher yield, he is taking a slightly higher investment risk.

But with many funds, the yield difference lies not in the portfolio but in the accounting. For example, two funds may return the exact same number of dollars to investors — yet the published "yield" on one may be a half percentage point higher than on the other. The difference lies purely in the mathematics of calculating investment payouts. If you switched to the apparently higher-yielding fund, you wouldn't gain a nickel for your efforts.

But in other cases, an accounting difference may be genuinely significant to investors. For example, two funds with exactly the same portfolios will give you a different return depending on whether they value their investments at cost (which is what they paid for them) or at market (which is their current value in the marketplace).

In brief, here's what the two different accounting methods mean to you:

When a fund values its portfolio of investments at market, it makes an adjustment every day to take any change of interest rates into consideration. If rates fall, as they have been recently, the underlying value of the portfolio rises. The capital gain is credited to the fund's investors, and the fund's yield falls.

Whenever you buy into, or sell out of, a fund valued at market, you can count on getting your fair share of whatever gains (or losses) your capital has earned. The Reserve Fund and Dreyfus Liquid Assets are two money-market funds that value at market.

Other funds value at cost. They do not make adjustments to account for daily changes in value on the investments they hold. If they buy a 90-day certificate of deposit at 8%, they carry it at 8% for the entire period, even if its value rises in the interim. These funds pay no attention to the capital gain, and do not allocate it to investors. They also ignore capital losses.

Here is where the inequity creeps in. Shareholders are deprived of the gain their investment has earned. In effect, that gain used to subsidize the interest rate — keeping it high even though the general level of interest rates fall.

Investors who buy into the fund at this point are getting the advantage of a higher interest rate than the market would otherwise allow them. They get a little more than their capital deserves, while the older investors get a little less. The Money Market Management Fund, and Scudder Managed Reserves value their portfolios this way. Fidelity Daily Income Trust used to do so with the bulk of its portfolio, but has just switched over to valuing at market.

When interest rates rise again, the situation will reverse: older investors will gain at the expense of newer ones. This produces a situation where the smart money will switch to a cost-valued fund when interest rates start to fall.

Electronics News Sparks Brief Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Talk of a possible device to improve cars' gasoline mileage set off a burst of excitement in electronics stocks Thursday but failed to lift the general market out of its downtrend of the past few days.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than six points at the height of a short-lived buying wave at midday, finished with a 5.48 loss at 764 even.

That brought the Dow's loss for the past three sessions to 22.53 points in a setback that has been largely attributed to profit taking.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .73 to 83.61, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index was down .33 at 44.36.

Declines outpaced advances 790 to 579 among the 1,768 issues traded on the Big Board.

NYSE volume picked up a bit to 20.96 million shares from 19.03 million on Wednesday.

The session turned on the report by Robert W. Sarnoff, chairman of RCA Corp., that a minute device called a microprocessor was being tested by major automakers as a means of improving fuel economy, and that the resultant savings in gasoline could amount to more than 500 million gallons a month.

The gradual spread of the news among investors sparked a rush into RCA shares at first, then a surge in electronics issues generally, and finally a general uptrend throughout the market.

But the rally collapsed as quickly as it had begun.

"What I think happened was that people saw this rally was speculative, coming as it did on one development of dubious immediate impact, and so they backed off," observed Larry Wachtel at Bache & Co.

RCA shares, which rarely are volatile, jumped 3⅜ to 19 before trading in them was halted because of a heavy flow of orders. By the time it resumed, the rally had passed and the stock closed at 17½, up 1⅞ for the day on turnover of 696,300 shares.

Among stocks of the numerous other companies which produce microprocessors, AMBAC Industries rose 1⅝ to 11⅛, General Instrument gained 1 to 10⅜, Fairchild Camera added ⅞ to 33⅝, and National Semiconductor was up 2⅜ at 29.

National, which traded as low as 6¼ last year, hit 32¼ at the peak of the buying before falling back.

Rockwell International, which said after the close it was involved in microprocessor tests with a number of auto firms including General Motors, gained ¾ to 21⅜.

In auto stocks, GM gained ¼ to 42⅞; Ford rose ¾ to 37⅝, and Chrysler was unchanged at 10¾.

The microprocessor story stole the spotlight from several other economic news developments during the day. But analysts did note some evident disappointment over the February consumer price index, which matched January's rise at a 7.2 per cent annual rate.

American Telephone & Telegraph was heavily traded, falling 1⅜ to 49⅛. On Wednesday, the company reported its first quarterly earnings decline in three years.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index slipped .25 to 80.56.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market was up .11 at 75.78.

Most Hog Classes Up

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)— Receipts were modest on the Omaha livestock market Thursday forcing most hog classes higher.

Sellers brought just 4,000 animals for the session. Trade on barrows and gilts was active, and the trend was called steady to 50-cents higher, most sales were 25-to-50 cents up, as heavier weighted offerings were scarce.

About 300 head of top-graded handyweights took the day's butcher top, $40.25, early in the session. Bulk sales on more desirable animals ranged from $39.50-$40.00.

Sows under 450 pounds were called 25-to-50 cents higher, but heavier weights lost 50-cents. Sow earnings ranged from $34.50-$38.00.

There were but 600 head of cattle on the runs, and the scattered sales of slaughter steers and heifers that were reported were called steady. However, there weren't enough sales to give an adequate market test.

Cows turned weak to 50-cents lower, as adjustment from gains earlier in the week continued.

The sheep supply totaled 500 head, but went direct to dealers.

Court: Right To Attorney Applies To Small Claims Court Appeals

By The Associated Press

In striking down a decision of the Scotts Bluff County District Court, the Nebraska Supreme Court said Thursday that the right to an attorney applies to cases appealed to district court from small claims court.

The small claims courts, established by the legislature in 1972, allow individuals to settle suits for less than $500 without hiring attorneys.

The high court said Thursday, "The creation of small claims courts is clearly in accord with sound public policy."

But the court said the system is only valid "as long as the right to appear by counsel is guaranteed in a real sense somewhere in the proceeding." The court said the right to an attorney should be granted when small claims cases are appealed to district court.

The issue was brought to the court by a $288 suit filed in Scotts Bluff County Small Claims Court by Howard Simon against Abe Lieberman.

The case involved renting and loss of moving equipment.

The small claims court gave Simon a $145 judgment and Lieberman appealed to the district court. The district court said Lieberman could not have an attorney in district court because the case was appealed from small claims court. The Supreme Court ordered the district court to grant a new trial and allow Lieberman to be represented by an attorney.

In a personal note attached to a case, Judge Lawrence Clinton asked the medical, legal and insurance industries to work with the legislature to set up panels of impartial experts to give testimony in medical malpractice cases.

He commented on a case appealed from the Douglas County District Court in which Alma Halligan was suing Walter Cotton for malpractice.

The court, admitting its own ignorance of medical procedures, upheld the lower court decision and denied the suit because of lack of expert testimony.

The court upheld the Douglas County District Court gambling convictions of John Digilio. In a Nov. 19, 1973 raid, Omaha police seized football point spread sheets, bet slips, and a football parlay board.

The court said the evidence indicated Digilio was taking bets on the Nebraska-Oklahoma football game.

He claimed that the items seized did not prove that he was gambling. The court disagreed.

The court upheld the Sheridan County District Court conviction of Joseph Richards for statutory rape.

The court upheld a Cass County District court decision which limited a judgment for American Telephone & Telegraph to $2,769.

AT&T said Eddie Thompson should pay more for accidentally cutting a buried telephone cable.

The high court affirmed a Dixon County District Court decision in a land title case involving Henry Riffey and Jon Schulke.

All Varieties Of Marijuana Ruled Illegal

The Nebraska Supreme Court said Thursday that marijuana by any name is still pot.

Robert Claire appealed his case from the Lancaster County District Court saying there are four types of marijuana and Nebraska's statutes apply only to a variety called "Cannabis Sativa L."

The court said, "Although it would be well for legislative bodies to restrict the meaning of marijuana to the broader term 'cannabis' encompassing all varieties of the plant...the legislative intent was to include all species of marijuana and that intent was sufficiently clear to give defendant warning to the illegality of his acts."

Claire was convicted of two counts of delivering a controlled substance.

New York (AP) — Ryder System, the large truck-leasing and rental company, reported a $20 million loss for 1974 against a $20 million gain in 1973.

The company also said it has completed an agreement for a one-year $30 million credit secured mostly by real estate with a group of 32 banks.

Court Allows Adopted Girl To Wed Dad

Troy, N.Y. (AP) — Frank Bagnardi and his 22-year-old adopted daughter Lleuwana will be married "in the very near future," according to an attorney.

James Smith, Bagnardi's lawyer, made the comment after State Supreme Court Judge William R. Murray ruled that state laws on "incestuous and void marriages" pertain only to blood relatives

The issue went to court when a Troy city clerk refused to issue a marriage license to Bagnardi, 50, of nearby Watervliet, and Lleuwana. She was adopted by Bagnardi and his wife in 1966 The Bagnardi's were divorced in 1973

Club Tradition Falls

London (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, leader of Britain's Conservative party, has been admitted to the members dining room of the exclusive Carlton Club, ending 143 years of tradition that had allowed women only in the club annex.

Don't miss it. News of friends on vacation, marriages, engagements, parties, P.T.A. notes and club meetings makes good reading in the family section of "Sunday Journal and Star."

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Act One, Scene Two: "Come, come," says the Inspector. "Let's get to the bottom of this."

On the library floor lies the body of Lord Fiddle-faddle. Except for the curious East Indian shiv sticking out of his back, he's the picture of health.

Inspector: "You're Quivers, the butler, are you not? When did you last see his Lordship alive?"

Quivers (shiftily): "It was when I went to fetch 'is port, sir. Very fond of port 'is Lordship was. I know the stains on me trousers look like blood, sir. But it's where I spilled the port, so 'elp me."

☆ ☆ ☆

That's the way the English like their mysteries. One corpse does for the whole play.

In the American half hour TV show, there is a shooting before each commercial. Bodies spill down fire escapes — bumpity, bump. Inspector Erskine of the FBI pursues his criminal up and down the Streets of San Francisco.

(How come the good guys shoot so good? And the bad guys shoot so bad?)

☆ ☆ ☆

A great deal of hue and cry that American TV is too gory. That children follow in the footsteps of the show and carve up their playmates.

Not so with the British shows. There's a touch of fog on the moors. And a dark figure is climbing the ivy to the haunted tower.

"It was 'alf past three in the morning," says Mrs. Piggins, the cook. "I could 'ear them talking through the library door. 'That'll cost you a thousand quid,' says Quivers. 'That or go to jail,' 'e says."

Quivers (sulkily): "We was playing Monopoly. I 'ad 'im fair and square with the mortgages."

☆ ☆ ☆

I think the reason English writers can pull this off is because that's the way crime is in the British isles.

I was in London when a killer was loose. "The Moon Mad Strangler of Notting Hill" the press called him.

He strangled strolling nannies and boiled them down to soap. (A real soap opera.) He struck on the full moon.

☆ ☆ ☆

When the constables finally grabbed him, he turned out to be an unlikely murderer. He was a milt little clerk in a bowler hat and furled umbrella.

Paid his rent on time and had one glass of bitter each night at the local.

The Johnny Nabs put the sleeve on the stranger — as English police do, politely.

The papers reported: "He readily admitted his identity and agreed to go to the police station in Putney."

☆ ☆ ☆

My own moppets are not so interested in the shoot-'em-up chase shows.

They adore Creature Features. You know, in the dark cellar the creaking coffin lid opens. Out steps Dracula, looking for donors to the blood bank.

So far, they have not tried to bite me in the neck. (But I keep the bedroom door locked.)

☆ ☆ ☆

The British writers underplay the gore. They give much more to the solution.

Inspector: "Quivers, I believe that's your knife in His Lordship's back. When did you see it last?"

"I was peeling meself an orange," says Quivers. "I run out of me Vitamin C pills." (That's a thin excuse.)

Anyway, the butler never does it. That's too easy. Turned out it was the gamekeeper's daughter. She was some kind of nut.

GARDEN-CHAPEL MAUSOLEUM

For families preferring mausoleum interment as a means of honoring departed loved ones, Lincoln Memorial Park's new Garden-Chapel Mausoleum will provide the ultimate in expressing lasting remembrance. For here, complementing the present Garden Mausoleums for which many families in Nebraska and western Iowa have shown a strong preference, will be a beautifully designed mausoleum with an elegantly appointed chapel...a monument that will offer families the choice of either garden or chapel crypts.

Built to defy the ravages of time, the new Garden-Chapel Mausoleum will provide families with the peace of mind of knowing their departed loved ones will rest securely in the permanent protection of clean, dry chambers as if sleeping in the confines of an immaculately kept room.

Is Mausoleum entombment more expensive?

Taking into consideration the savings involved in not having to buy cemetery lots, interment vaults and monuments, and the elimination of such other expenses as grave preparation, the cost of mausoleum entombment compares favorably with that of ground burial—particularly now, while pre-construction discounts are available.

Can property owned in Lincoln Memorial Park be exchanged for mausoleum crypts?

Yes. Where present property owners wish to exchange their lots and bronze memorials for mausoleum crypts, arrangements can be made for an equitable exchange. A number of families have been taking advantage of this opportunity.

May a loved one interred elsewhere be moved to the mausoleum?

Yes. It is being done, both by families whose departed loved ones have been interred at Lincoln Memorial Park and at other cemeteries.

Is provision made for perpetual care?

Yes. Perpetual Care Funds at Lincoln Memorial Park are being enlarged to provide for maintenance of the Garden-Chapel Mausoleum...forever!

Is it desirable to make plans now?

By reserving space for your family in the Garden-Chapel Mausoleum now, you can select from choice locations—take advantage of special pre-construction discounts—and, be spared the mental anguish and expense of this inevitable obligation at time of need. Monthly terms are available at no interest.

Court: Right To Attorney Applies To Small Claims Court Appeals

By The Associated Press

In striking down a decision of the Scotts Bluff County District Court, the Nebraska Supreme Court said Thursday that the right to an attorney applies to cases appealed to district court from small claims court.

The small claims courts, established by the legislature in 1972, allow individuals to settle suits for less than $500 without hiring attorneys.

The high court said Thursday, "The creation of small claims courts is clearly in accord with sound public policy."

But the court said the system is only valid "as long as the right to appear by counsel is guaranteed in a real sense somewhere in the proceeding." The court said the right to an attorney should be granted when small claims cases are appealed to district court.

The issue was brought to the court by a $288 suit filed in Scotts Bluff County Small Claims Court by Howard Simon against Abe Lieberman.

The case involved renting and loss of moving equipment.

The small claims court gave Simon a $145 judgment and Lieberman appealed to the district court. The district court said Lieberman could not have an attorney in district court because the case was appealed from small claims court. The Supreme Court ordered the district court to grant a new trial and allow Lieberman to be represented by an attorney.

In a personal note attached to a case, Judge Lawrence Clinton asked the medical, legal and insurance industries to work with the legislature to set up panels of impartial experts to give testimony in medical malpractice cases.

He commented on a case appealed from the Douglas County District Court in which Alma Halligan was suing Walter Cotton for malpractice.

The court, admitting its own ignorance of medical procedures, upheld the lower court decision and denied the suit because of lack of expert testimony.

The court upheld the Douglas County District Court gambling convictions of John Digilio. In a Nov. 19, 1973 raid, Omaha police seized football point spread sheets, bet slips, and a football parlay board.

The court said the evidence indicated Digilio was taking bets on the Nebraska-Oklahoma football game.

He claimed that the items seized did not prove that he was gambling. The court disagreed.

The court upheld the Sheridan County District Court conviction of Joseph Richards for statutory rape.

The court upheld a Cass County District court decision which limited a judgment for American Telephone & Telegraph to $2,769.

AT&T said Eddie Thompson should pay more for accidentally cutting a buried telephone cable.

The high court affirmed a Dixon County District Court decision in a land title case involving Henry Riffey and Jon Schulke.

All Varieties Of Marijuana Ruled Illegal

The Nebraska Supreme Court said Thursday that marijuana by any name is still pot.

Robert Claire appealed his case from the Lancaster County District Court saying there are four types of marijuana and Nebraska's statutes apply only to a variety called "Cannabis Sativa L."

The court said, "Although it would be well for legislative bodies to restrict the meaning of marijuana to the broader term 'cannabis' encompassing all varieties of the plant...the legislative intent was to include all species of marijuana and that intent was sufficiently clear to give defendant warning to the illegality of his acts."

Claire was convicted of two counts of delivering a controlled substance.

Ryder System Has '74 Loss

New York (AP) — Ryder System, the large truck-leasing and rental company, reported a $20 million loss for 1974 against a $20 million gain in 1973.

The company also said it has completed an agreement for a one-year $30 million credit secured mostly by real estate with a group of 32 banks.

Court Allows Adopted Girl To Wed Dad

Troy, N.Y. (AP) — Frank Bagnardi and his 22-year-old adopted daughter Lleuwana will be married "in the very near future," according to an attorney.

James Smith, Bagnardi's lawyer, made the comment after State Supreme Court Judge William R. Murray ruled that state laws on "incestuous and void marriages" pertain only to blood relatives.

The issue went to court when a Troy city clerk refused to issue a marriage license to Bagnardi, 50, of nearby Watervliet, and Lleuwana. She was adopted by Bagnardi and his wife in 1966. The Bagnardi's were divorced in 1973.

Club Tradition Falls

London (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, leader of Britain's Conservative party, has been admitted to the members dining room of the exclusive Carlton Club, ending 143 years of tradition that had allowed women only in the club annex.

Don't miss it. News of friends on vacation, marriages, engagements, parties, P.T.A. notes and club meetings makes good reading in the family section of "Sunday Journal and Star."

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Act One, Scene Two: "Come, come," says the Inspector. "Let's get to the bottom of this."

On the library floor lies the body of Lord Fiddle-faddle. Except for the cruious East Indian shiv sticking out of his back, he's the picture of health.

Inspector: "You're Quivers, the butler, are you not? When did you last see his Lordship alive?"

Quivers (shiftily): "It was when I went to fetch 'is port, sir. Very fond of port 'is Lordship was. I know the stains on me trousers look like blood, sir. But it's where I spilled the port, so 'elp me."

☆ ☆ ☆

That's the way the English like their mysteries. One corpse does for the whole play.

In the American half hour TV show, there is a shooting before each commercial. Bodies spill down fire escapes — bumpity, bump. Inspector Erskine of the FBI pursues his criminal up and down the Streets of San Francisco.

(How come the good guys shoot so good? And the bad guys shoot so bad?)

☆ ☆ ☆

A great deal of hue and cry that American TV is too gory. That children follow in the footsteps of the show and carve up their playmates.

Not so with the British shows. There's a touch of fog on the moors. And a dark figure is climbing the ivy to the haunted tower.

"It was 'alf past three in the morning," says Mrs. Piggins, the cook. "I could 'ear them talking through the library door. 'That'll cost you a thousand quid,' says Quivers. 'That or go to jail,' 'e says."

Quivers (sulkily): "We was playing Monopoly. I 'ad 'im fair and square with the mortgages."

☆ ☆ ☆

I think the reason English writers can pull this off is because that's the way crime is in the British isles.

I was in London when a killer was loose. "The Moon Mad Strangler of Notting Hill" the press called him.

He strangled strolling nannies and boiled them down to soap. (A real soap opera.) He struck on the full moon.

☆ ☆ ☆

When the constables finally grabbed him, he turned out to be an unlikely murderer. He was a milt little clerk in a bowler hat and furled umbrella.

Paid his rent on time and had one glass of bitter each night at the local.

The Johnny Nabs put the sleeve on the stranger — as English police do, politely.

The papers reported: "He readily admitted his identity and agreed to go to the police station in Putney."

☆ ☆ ☆

My own moppets are not so interested in the shoot-'em-up chase shows.

They adore Creature Features. You know, in the dark cellar the creaking coffin lid opens. Out steps Dracula, looking for donors to the blood bank.

So far, they have not tried to bite me in the neck. (But I keep the bedroom door locked.)

☆ ☆ ☆

The British writers underplay the gore. They give much more to the solution.

Inspector: "Quivers, I believe that's your knife in His Lordship's back. When did you see it last?"

"I was peeling meself an orange," says Quivers. "I run out of me Vitamin C pills." (That's a thin excuse.)

Anyway, the butler never does it. That's too easy. Turned out it was the gamekeeper's daughter. She was some kind of nut.

Regents To Eye Tardy Bill Payers

If you don't pay the bill, should you be allowed to stay in school?

That's what the University of Nebraska Board of Regents will be asked to rule on Saturday. The University of Nebraska-Lincoln administration is seeking authority to suspend or refuse to readmit students who don't pay their bills.

The board will meet at 9 a.m. in Room 3042, Wittson Hall, at the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC) campus in Omaha.

On Friday at 2:30 p.m. in Eppley Hall, the regents executive committee will discuss its Big 8 Conference relationship, and a Lincoln meeting June 13-14 of the Big 8 schools' governing boards.

The committee will also discuss with legal counsel Warren Johnson a policy statement on open meetings, and review board procedures for regents informal meetings.

Reporters in the past have been barred from reporting in the press or broadcasting proceedings of the informal meetings, unless they obtained permission from each of the regents to use their quotes — even though the meetings are open to the public.

Regents will meet in informal session at 8 p.m. Friday, also at UNMC.

As well as the UNL student bills policy to satisfy legislators' concerns, the regents business affairs committee will also consider for full board action:

—accepting a $51,127 proposal by E. O. Peters Inc. to install a boiler in the UNL east campus power plant.

—accepting a $64,600 proposal by Philips Electronics Instruments of Mount Vernon, N.Y., for a transmission electron microscope.

—approving a $4,800 annual lease of the Goodall Cedar Point Camp at Ogallala to use as the Sandhills Biological Station.

—approving the six-year capital projection for UNL, to submit to the State Department of Administrative services.

Faculty Appointments On Regents Agenda

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents will consider at a Saturday meeting in Omaha appointing eight University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty members as recipients of Maude Hammond Fling Faculty Research Fellowships during summer 1975.

They are Assistant Prof. Daniel J. Bernstein, psychology, social motivation analysis; Associate Prof. Richard O. Hoffman, industrial and management systems engineering, center pivot irrigation mapping model; Associate Prof. Svetlana P. Kartashev, computer science, system programming; Associate Prof. David J. Sellmyer, physics, organic conduction.

Associate Prof. Norman D. Simon, physics, atmospheres of cool stars; Prof. Luh C. Tao, chemical engineering, surface properties of solar collectors; Associate Prof. Roger Wiegand, mathematics, investigation in pure math.

All the projects will be done in Lincoln, and Simon proposes to conduct research jointly with colleagues from Iowa State University and the NASA Ames Research Center.

Student Beats Computer In ASUN Election

Jim Say of Norfolk can say with the glee only human emotion allows that he is one person who got the best of a computer.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln junior got three times as many votes as the IBM 360, and he went on to win the student body presidency to boot.

The computer came in third, with 278 votes in the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN) election. Say outclicked six other official candidates (including the metal competitor lolling in Nebraska Hall) with 820 votes.

Those are unofficial results, notes current ASUN President Ron Clingenpeel of Valentine. He indicated no conflict of interest in the IBM 360 tabulating the ballots, including its own.

But the computer, just as the student body, apparently could've cared less, if indeed it could've. Only 1,900 of UNL's 20,000 students turned up at he polls.

The Pro-Apathy Party (PAP) entered the IBM 360 in the race when appropriately, it couldn't muster enough interest in any human student to run for ASUN president.

The Pro-Apathyites maintained strong disinterest through their non-campaign, and couldn't get enough valid signatures to enter candidates as an official party. The computer, obviously, couldn't be disheartened, but ran anyway as an Independent.

Say will be installed as UNL student body president on April 2, when his office also automatically makes him a nonvoting member of the NU Board of Regents.

Say is a member of the United Students Effort (USE) Party, which swept virtually all seats in the student senate and advisory councils, Clingenpeel said.

Completing the ASUN executive slate, Mary Jenkins of Lincoln defeated five other candidates for first vice president, winning 813 votes. Paul Morrison of St. Paul was elected second vice president, garnering 783 votes.

Other ASUN presidential candidates and their unofficial returns are Del Gustafson of Holdrege (Sons of Liberty Party), 325; David Thomas Ware of Lincoln (Cut the Crap Party), 135; Dennis Snyder of Lincoln (Independent), 132; Vince Powers of Omaha (Independent), 131, and Charles Rosvold of Norfolk (Independent), 54. All are juniors.

A constitutional amendment to decide if students should choose homecoming royalty got only 1,406 votes, thus was thrown out because 3,000 affirmative ballots were required for it to have effect. Incidentally, 1,134 voted yes, and 272 no.

A second part of the amendment asked, if there is homecoming royalty, should it be male, female, both or either. The issue came up last fall when the UNl student body elected a male homecoming "queen" who was later disqualified, then reinstated. (He finally abdicated.) Of those responding, 851 voted for both a homecoming king and queen; 503 voted for either; 507 preferred a female queen, and 12 voted for male royalty.

Public Schools Studying Special Education Opinion

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Supt. John Prasch said Thursday Lincoln Public Schools officials are looking into the possible effects of the state attorney general's opinion that local districts may offer special education classes for handicapped students in private schools.

The Lincoln district offers speech therapy programs in public school buildings for private and parochial school students.

But the opinion, requested by State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell to clear up part of the question about operating the special education law, LB403, could require the Lincoln district to provide services in parochial school buildings.

Prasch said when he gets a copy of Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas' opinion, he'll investigate its implications and attempt to prepare a report by Tuesday, when the Lincoln Board of Education will meet.

The Lincoln Public Schools has not contracted with Villa Marie, on Lincoln's eastern fringe, or with Martin Luther Home in Beatrice for special education programs for parochial school students, Prasch said, on the basis they are private or parochial schools. The district has complied with what it was told, based in law, was conformance with the state constitution's separation of church and state, in offering LB403 programs.

The Lincoln Catholic schools administration has said it wants special education programs to begin soon in local parochial schools, based on the new opinion.

But Prasch said the public schools thought the issue in requesting the legal opinion related to contracting for services at Villa Marie and Martin Luther Home.

The Hartington School case was cited as a precedent for a public school to lease space in a private school, to serve handicapped students.

Prasch questioned whether the Hartington case is "parallel" to the issue. He said Hartington School had no space to provide Title I services for disadvantaged children, thus needed to lease space elsewhere. The Lincoln district has no such need for space.

Prasch said he would try to determine whether the opinion will require the Lincoln Public Schools to lease space first at Villa Marie and Martin Luther Home, and then contract for services.

NWU Governors OK Planning For Campus Theater Complex

The Nebraska Wesleyan University Board of Governors has authorized the NWU administration to contract with architects to begin work on plans for a new theater complex for the campus, 50th and St. Paul.

NWU President Vance D. Rogers said he hopes work on the theater could start within the next year.

The same architects' firm, Davis, Fenton, Stange and Darling of Lincoln, is also preparing plans for a physical education-activity building immediately west of O.N. Magee Stadium. Work could begin late this summer, Dr. Rogers said.

The board also approved naming a conference room in the Smith-Curtis Classroom-Administration Building in honor of the late Dr. E. Glenn Callen, long-time political science professor at NWU, who is known as the father of the Nebraska Merit System.

Dr. Callen's widow Frances will attend a meeting of the NWU Board of Trustees for a brief dedication ceremony at 10 a.m. Friday.

The Board of Governors also awarded advancements in rank to four NWU faculty members and granted tenure to three others.

Thomas Grabau was advanced to assistant professor of history, Dr. David Goss was named professor of physics, William Pfeffer was advanced to associate professor of philosophy, and Ruth Stephenson was advanced to associate professor of music.

Those granted tenure are Dr. Roger A. Cognard, assistant professor of English; Dr. George H. Coleman, associate professor of chemistry, and Dr. A. Oliver Vannorsdall, assistant professor of religion.

When the Board of Trustees meets Friday, it will elect members of the Board of Governors for the next year, select five persons to be elected as trustees and elect trustee officers.

But the computer, just as the student body, apparently could've cared less, if indeed it could've. Only 1,900 of UNL's 20,000 students turned up at he polls.

The Pro-Apathy Party (PAP) entered the IBM 360 in the race when appropriately, it couldn't muster enough interest in any human student to run for ASUN president.

The Pro-Apathyites maintained strong disinterest through their non-campaign, and couldn't get enough valid signatures to enter candidates as an official party. The computer, obviously, couldn't be disheartened, but ran anyway as an Independent.

Say will be installed as UNL student body president on April 2, when his office also automatically makes him a non-voting member of the NU Board of Regents.

Say is a member of the United Students Effort (USE) Party, which swept virtually all seats in the student senate and advisory councils, Clingenpeel said.

Completing the ASUN executive slate, Mary Jenkins of Lincoln defeated five other candidates for first vice president, winning 813 votes. Paul Morrison of St. Paul was elected second vice president, garnering 783 votes.

Other ASUN presidential candidates and their unofficial returns are Del Gustafson of Holdrege (Sons of Liberty Party), 325; David Thomas Ware of Lincoln (Cut the Crap Party), 135; Dennis Snyder of Lincoln (Independent), 132; Vince Powers of Omaha (Independent), 131, and Charles Rosvold of Norfolk (Independent), 54. All are juniors.

A constitutional amendment to decide if students should choose homecoming royalty got only 1,406 votes, thus was thrown out because 3,000 affirmative ballots were required for it to have effect. Incidentally, 1,134 voted yes, and 272 no.

A second part of the amendment asked, if there is homecoming royalty, should it be male, female, both or either. The issue came up last fall when the UNl student body elected a male homecoming "queen" who was later disqualified, then reinstated. (He finally abdicated.) Of those responding, 851 voted for both a homecoming king and queen; 503 voted for either; 507 preferred a female queen, and 12 voted for male royalty.

Public Schools Studying Special Education Opinion

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Supt. John Prasch said Thursday Lincoln Public Schools officials are looking into the possible effects of the state attorney general's opinion that local districts may offer special education classes for handicapped students in private schools.

The Lincoln district offers speech therapy programs in public school buildings for private and parochial school students.

But the opinion, requested by State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell to clear up part of the question about operating the special education law, LB403, could require the Lincoln district to provide services in parochial school buildings.

Prasch said when he gets a copy of Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas' opinion, he'll investigate its implications and attempt to prepare a report by Tuesday, when the Lincoln Board of Education will meet.

The Lincoln Public Schools has not contracted with Villa Marie, on Lincoln's eastern fringe, or with Martin Luther Home in Beatrice for special education programs for parochial school students, Prasch said, on the basis they are private or parochial schools. The district has complied with what it was told, based in law, was conformance with the state constitution's separation of church and state, in offering LB403 programs.

The Lincoln Catholic schools administration has said it wants special education programs to begin soon in local parochial schools, based on the new opinion.

But Prasch said the public schools thought the issue in requesting the legal opinion related to contracting for services at Villa Marie and Martin Luther Home.

The Hartington School case was cited as a precedent for a public school to lease space in a private school, to serve handicapped students.

Prasch questioned whether the Hartington case is "parallel" to the issue. He said Hartington School had no space to provide Title I services for disadvantaged children, thus needed to lease space elsewhere. The Lincoln district has no such need for space.

Prasch said he would try to determine whether the opinion will require the Lincoln Public Schools to lease space first at Villa Marie and Martin Luther Home, and then contract for services.

NWU Governors OK Planning For Campus Theater Complex

The Nebraska Wesleyan University Board of Governors has authorized the NWU administration to contract with architects to begin work on plans for a new theater complex for the campus, 50th and St. Paul.

NWU President Vance D. Rogers said he hopes work on the theater could start within the next year.

The same architects' firm, Davis, Fenton, Stange and Darling of Lincoln, is also preparing plans for a physical education-activity building immediately west of O.N. Magee Stadium. Work could begin late this summer, Dr. Rogers said.

The board also approved naming a conference room in the Smith-Curtis Classroom-Administration Building in honor of the late Dr. E. Glenn Callen, long-time political science professor at NWU, who is known as the father of the Nebraska Merit System.

Dr. Callen's widow Frances will attend a meeting of the NWU Board of Trustees for a brief dedication ceremony at 10 a.m. Friday.

The Board of Governors also awarded advancements in rank to four NWU faculty members and granted tenure to three others.

Thomas Grabau was advanced to assistant professor of history, Dr. David Goss was named professor of physics, William Pfeffer was advanced to associate professor of philosophy, and Ruth Stephenson was advanced to associate professor of music.

Those granted tenure are Dr. Roger A. Cognard, assistant professor of English; Dr. George H. Coleman, associate professor of chemistry, and Dr. A. Oliver Vannorsdall, assistant professor of religion.

When the Board of Trustees meets Friday, it will elect members of the Board of Governors for the next year, select five persons to be elected as trustees and elect trustee officers.

OPEN DAILY 10-10 SUNDAY 10-7 FRIDAY. SATURDAY. SUNDAY.

Senate Starting Over On Anti-Recession Bill

©The New York Times

Washington — The Senate scrapped all the work it had done for the last two days on the tax bill Thursday and voted to start over again with a somewhat larger antirecession package, including a $800 special cash payment to every recipient of Social Security, railroad retirement or federal welfare benefits.

It also approved a different version of the repeal of the 22% oil depletion allowance. The new version would terminate the allowance for more companies than the one the Senate approved on Tuesday.

All of the Senate's actions were still subject to change and there was little or no indication of when it might finish work on the tax bill, which is regarded as urgently needed if the current economic downturn is to be reversed any time soon.

Work Scrapped

Technically, the Senate had not even formally adopted the substitute tax bill, which was offered by Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader. The Senate merely voted, 85 to 11, to make Mansfield's substitute its pending business, thereby scrapping all the work it had done in the preceding two days.

Mansfield said that he was offering his substitute because the Senate, with its various votes on the measure Tuesday and Wednesday, was "going astray, far astray."

With modifications chiefly on matters relating to the taxes paid by oil companies and by other companies with international operations, the new bill greatly resembled the one it had displaced with respect to the very provisions Mansfield was complaining about.

Mansfield estimated that the tax cuts and benefit payments in his bill would total $28 billion. More refined estimates made later by staff experts put the total at more than $31 billion.

Major Features

In addition to the special $100-payment to Social Security and railroad retirement beneficiaries and to the aged, blind and disabled who receive federal welfare payments, the Mansfield substitute contained the following major features:

—The rebate of 1974 taxes would be increased from 10% contained in the bill passed by the House to 12%. The maximum rebate, which would go to persons with total incomes of no more than $20,000, would be $240, instead of the $200 in the house bill. The minimum payment would be $120, instead of $100. Persons whose 1974 tax payments were less than $120 would get back whatever they paid.

—The tax credit of 5% against the purchase price of a residence, up to a maximum credit of $2,000, would be applied only to new residential units, not existing ones as in the Senate Finance Committee's bill.

—The loss-carryback provisions of the committee's bill, which would give more generous tax relief than at present to both individuals and corporations that had suffered losses, were scrapped in the Mansfield bill.

The substitution of a $200-per-person tax credit for the present $750 personal exemption, as contained in the Senate committee's bill, was kept unchanged in the Mansfield version. This would benefit single persons with incomes of up to $12,000 and married couples with incomes of up to $16,000, but would not increase taxes for anyone, since those who would save money by continuing to use the $750 personal exemption could do so.

Also unchanged from the committee's version in the Mansfield substitution was the reduction of the tax rate in each of the first four income brackets, a change that would bring a tax reduction of $40 to most individuals.

Provisions Unchanged

All of the provisions of the committee's bill affecting the taxes paid by businesses (except for the loss caryback provision) were also unchanged in the Mansfield substitute.

The Senate spent the bulk of the day arguing about the taxation of the oil industry.

The upshot of more than a dozen roll-call votes was approval of proposals that would disallow the depletion allowance on the income from oil production in excess of 2,000 barrels a day or its equivalent in natural gas.

On Tuesday, the Senate had put the cutoff point at 3,000 barrels.

As it now stands, the Senate's version of the depletion repeal would increase oil company taxes by about $1.8 billion.

Home, Builders Show Features 'Everything'

Everything including the kitchen sink is featured at the 1975 Greater Home and Builders Show which opened Thursday at Pershing Auditorium.

The very new in home building and furnishings, as well as the items used in great grandmother's day, are featured, including a display of early telephones and an antique heating stove.

The elaborate heating stove of the turn of the century is contrasted with a solar heating unit which is still in the experimental stages.

According to Everett Green, one of the exhibitors, the old stove which he has had rechromed where the nickel plating had worn is simular to a 1902 model in the Sears catalogue which listed for $26.15.

Also on display is a solar heating unit which was developed by a Mead man and is designed to make use of the heat from the sun to conserve energy.

Two contests sponsored by the Lincoln Homebuilders' Association drew considerable interest from high school students who submitted their efforts in model home design and interior design for judgment.

John L. Hamilton, a Lincoln Southeast High senior, won the first-place award of $150 in the model home design, while Mark Lionberger of Lincoln Northeast took top honors and won $150 in the interior design contest.

Other winners were: Toby Beach of East, second place, and Steven W. Weber of Lincoln Southeast, third place, in the model home contest: Dena Douglas, of Lincoln Northeast, second place, and Kris Rhodes of Lincoln Northeast, third place, in the interior design competition.

Second-place winners received a $100 award, third-place winners received $75 in each of the two contests.

Ford Expected To Name Spying Probes Assistant

©The New York Times

Washington — President Ford is expected to appoint a special assistant in the White House to deal with the proliferating investigations of the United States intelligence community, reliable White House sources have disclosed.

The main responsibility for advising the President on his administration's response to the growing number of investigations would rest with a presidential counsel with subcabinet rank, the sources said.

The White House at first considered creating a "virtual czar" over the intelligence community and thus limiting the power of William E. Colby, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, several sources said, but the President settled on handling the matters within the present White House structure.

The leading contender for this crucial assignment is Roderick Hills, chairman of the board of the Republic Corporation, a lawyer and husband of Carla Hills, secretary of housing and urban development.

Second Post

The White House is also expected to create a second post within the counsel's office to handle day-to-day liaison with Capitol Hill and intelligence agencies.

The leading candidate for this position is James Wilderotter, associate deputy attorney general, a former HUD official.

According to key sources familiar with the Capitol Hill inquiries, the assignment could well determine the whole atmosphere of the relations between President Ford and the congressional investigating committees. "The Senate committee," one source pointed out, "has asked the President to instruct federal agencies to cooperate fully. The President said he would deal with the requests on a case-by-case basis. This is the man who will carry the ball on each of those cases."

An administration source described the job as one calling for "a diplomat — a man who can sit down with Church and Tower (senators Frank Church and John G. Tower) and work out what they need."

Another source said that when "push comes to shove, this is the man who will advise the President on whether to comply with the Hill or use his executive privilege."

Wrestling For Weeks

According to White House sources, the President and his senior aides have been wrestling for weeks with how to deal with increasingly sweeping congressional investigations. At one point, these sources said, consideration was given to setting up a post that would have virtual command over the intelligence community.

The creation of that job, several sources said, "would have the effect of firing Bill Colby," since under the 1947 law that created the CIA, the director is the senior official of the entire intelligence community. The idea was rejected and the White House began the more difficult task of finding someone to represent the White House in the investigations.

"Whoever gets this job will make a lot of enemies, said one powerful Republican lawyer. "It is a no-win position."

LT&T Directors Vote Dividends For Common, Preferred Stocks

The Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. board of directors Wednesday declared a 40-cent dividend payable April 10 to common stockholders.

January's quarterly dividend was also 40 cents. A regular quarterly dividend on preferred stock was also declared.

LT&T President Thomas C. Woods Jr. told stockholders at the annual meeting operating revenues for 1974 were $45,151,977, an 11% increase over 1973. Woods said, however, that operating expenses, including taxes and interest, had increased by 12.6%, to more than $28 million.

Net earnings in 1974 were $5,743,371, compared to $5,123,002 in 1973.

Woods said nearly $24.5 million was spent in 1974 on construction projects to meet demands for more and better telephone service. That was a 44.4% increase over 1973 construction.

LT&T gained 13,443 telephones in 1974, with a total of 265,134 in service at the end of the year. The growth rate has begun to slow in 1975, Woods said. As of March 1, the company had gained 2,209 telephones, compared to a gain of 3,762 during that time last year.

James Geist, vice president of operations, said despite the wide range of internal programs to offset increasing costs, inflation caused jumps in both labor and equipment costs. On Feb. 28, LT&T filed an application with the Nebraska Public Service Commission to raise local service rates and service connection charges.

Geist estimated that basic rates for both business and residence customers would increase between 10-15% if the request is approved, netting $2.8 million in additional revenues.

Company directors re-elected at the meeting of stockholders were.

Frank H Woods, Thomas C Woods Jr., James Geist, George B. Cook, William W Cook, Edwin J. Faulkner, J. Taylor Greer, Hal Lainson, Carl W Olson, Charles T. Stuart, Burnham Yates and Paul C Schorr III.

Woods announced the retirement of Thomas H Wake as a company director. Wake, former chairman of the board of the Jones National Bank, Seward, had been an LT&T director since 1956

At the annual directors meeting which followed the stockholders meeting, the following corporate officials were re-elected:

Frank H. Woods, chairman of the board, Thomas C Woods Jr., president, James Geist, vice president operations, Houghton Furr, vice president treasurer, Laurence Conneely, vice president controller, Donald R Swanson, secretary and assistant treasurer, and Robert C Halvorsen, assistant secretary

Operating officials reappointed were:

Charles P Arnold, second vice president commercial, Charles E. Connors, general plant superintendent; Roger K. Ghormley, chief planning engineer; Richard B. Hobson, general traffic superintendent; Kenneth E Versaw, chief engineer, and Neal J. Westphal, personnel director.

First National Chairman Elected To Head DED

First National Bank of Lincoln board chairman Burnham Yates, 2900 Bonacum Drive, was elected chairman of the 11-member Advisory Committee of the Department of Economic Development (DED).

Yates, who succeeds the late Bennett S. Martin as chairman, is one of three men recently appointed to committee vacancies by Gov. J. J. Exon.

Yates joined First National in 1945 and was president from 1950-1969.

He is also a director of the Lincoln Industrial Development Corp., the Lincoln Center Development Corp. and the Nebraska Resources Foundation.

The other appointees are Charles Davey of Scottsbluff and William A. Spitzenberger of Omaha.

Davey owns Davey Co., a Scottsbluff real estate firm.

Spitzenberger directs economic development for Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha. He is president of the Business Development Corp. of Nebraska.

Earth's Probable Life Already Half Used Up

Houston (UPI) — Two geophysicists Thursday said the earth has used half of its probable lifespan and will be as inactive and cold as the moon in another 4 billion years.

M. N. Toksoz of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and John W. Minear of the Johnson Space Center said the earth's large size has kept it warm and active for 4.6 billion years.

"The size of the planet, more than any other factor, seems to control its evolution state and the present day thermal state," Toksoz said.

When the planet becomes inactive geologically it won't produce new minerals or release carbon dioxide into the air, but since the sun is the prime source of life, earth will probably still sustain life, they said.

They said in an interview they compared earth, Venus, Mars, Mercury and the moon and believe the planets' sizes are responsible for the difference in activity and changes.

The changes, called differentiation, consist mainly of forming a core and then other layers such as the earth's mantle and crust. On the passive moon and Mercury, the only changes are surface changes as a result of meteors striking, Toksoz said.

"When we look at the earth and moon we see two totally different pictures," Toksoz said. "On earth, it looks like the differentiation has been going on since the beginning and is still going strong now."

Venus also is still very active. There are volcanos, earthquakes and continental changes on both planets. Mars had volcanic activity sometime within the last 500 million years, but the geophysicists said they were not sure if the planet was still changing.

Gen. Bradley Still Serious After Stroke

Los Angeles (UPI) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only living five star general, was in 'serious' condition Thursday from a cerebral stroke but a hospital spokesman said he had "shown a decided and encouraging improvement."

Bradley, 82, was "conscious and resting comfortably," the spokesman at UCLA Medical Center said. But he emphasized that Bradley's general condition remained "serious."

The soft-spoken but tough Missourian, who took pride in his identification as the "GI's general" during World War II, was admitted to the hospital early Monday. At the time, his doctor said, Bradley's condition was "very serious."

But his condition report Thursday was more encouraging.

"General of the Army Omar N. Bradley has shown decided and encouraging improvement," a hospital spokesman said.

Physicians End New York Strike

©The New York Times

New York — The nation's first major physicians' strike ended here Thursday night, with an agreement that sent interns and residents back at once to their regular duties in 21 affected hospitals. It was the fourth day of a walkout that sought to shorten drawn-out work schedules.

The agreement was on a reinstated offer made by the League of Voluntary Hospitals at 3:30 a.m., the first ever by hospitals in collective bargaining here to limit working hours — normally now to provide that there should not be more than one night's duty in a three-day period.

OPPD Okays Fuel Reload Contract

Omaha (AP) — Meeting in regular session Thursday, the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) board of directors authorized a fuel fabrication contract for the district's Fort Calhoun Station, and awarded contracts for more than $5 million in work at the new Nebraska City Station.

The board authorized a contract with the Exxon Nuclear Co., Inc., of Bellevue, Wash. The contract will amount to $8,850,000 for the fabrication of five nuclear fuel reloads for the Fort Calhoun, and has a $10,550,000 option for an additional five reloads.

In action involving the Nebraska City plant, the board awarded a contract for $3,107,000 to the Allen Sherman Hoff, Co., Divison of Ecolaire, Inc. The Wynnewood, Pa., firm will manufacture an ash handling system for the plant.

Koppers Co., Inc., of Elmhurst, Ill., was awarded an $810,123 contract to produce materials needed in the construction of a 345,000-volt transmission line for the station.

And, the Dresser Crane, Hoist & Tower Division of Dresser Industries, Inc., Muskegon, Mich., was awarded a $401,620 contract to manufacture of a crane for the station's turbine room. The crane will be used during the construction of the plant and for maintenance during operation.

The board also approved three change orders for work at the Nebraska City Station.

In other action concerning the Nebraska City plant, the board delayed for one week a decision on a contract for material, labor, equipment and supervision related to the development of the 575,000 kilowatt station.

Nuclear fuel fabrication involves the processing of uranium into pellet form, and the insertion of the pellets into rods for nuclear power plant fuel assemblies.

BN To Lay Off 90 In Lincoln

An estimated 90 Burlington Northern employes in the Lincoln area will be laid off by the end of the week, a Burlington official said Thursday.

R. L. Merklin, Burlington vice president, said the indefinite layoffs were necessary "simply because of a slowdown in the economy as it affects our industry."

Those affected by the cutback were carmen, track maintenance workers and clerical employes.

Retired Persons Name Officers

The Northeast Branch of the American Association of Retired Persons has elected Mrs. Earl Flowers president.

The group, meeting at the Havelock Christian Church, also elected Glen Jefferson, vice president; Mrs. Rosewell Ludden, secretary; Mrs. Nel Breeden, treasurer; and Maurice McAvoy, chairman of the nominating committee.

Directors elected at the meeting were Mrs. Nel Breeden, Henry Sterkel, Mrs. Raymond Edwards, Mrs. Ralph Czapanskiy, and Mrs. Carl Alquist.

Alco To Buy Omaha Manufacturer

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha-based distributor of glassware, containers and materials handling equipment will be sold to a Pennsylvania firm under a preliminary agreement announced Wednesday.

The agreement calls for the sale of S. Riekes & Sons Inc. to Alco Standard Corp. of Valley Forge, Pa. Under terms of the agreement, Alco will purchase all outstanding shares of Riekes for the equivalent of $11.40 a share, or about $12 million.

Alco is a diversified manufacturing, mining and distributing firm.

The Alco purchase would be accomplished in two stages, officials said. Alco would acquire 621,500 shares held by the principal Riekes shareholders, who control about 60% of the outstanding stock. The payment would be 200,000 Alco common shares and $5.1 million in cash.

After purchase of the initial 621,500 shares, Alco would offer to purchase remaining Riekes stock for $11.40 a share, bringing the total purchase price to about $12 million.

Alco stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange. The firm had sales of $1.4 billion in its latest fiscal year.

Riekes sales for the latest fiscal year were $57 million. The firm employs about 400 persons.

Senate Starting Over On Anti-Recession Bill

©The New York Times

Washington — The Senate scrapped all the work it had done for the last two days on the tax bill Thursday and voted to start over again with a somewhat larger antirecession package, including a $800 special cash payment to every recipient of Social Security, railroad retirement or federal welfare benefits.

It also approved a different version of the repeal of the 22% oil depletion allowance. The new version would terminate the allowance for more companies than the one the Senate approved on Tuesday.

All of the Senate's actions were still subject to change and there was little or no indication of when it might finish work on the tax bill, which is regarded as urgently needed if the current economic downturn is to be reversed any time soon.

Work Scrapped

Technically, the Senate had not even formally adopted the substitute tax bill, which was offered by Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader. The Senate merely voted, 85 to 11, to make Mansfield's substitute its pending business, thereby scrapping all the work it had done in the preceding two days.

Mansfield said that he was offering his substitute because the Senate, with its various votes on the measure Tuesday and Wednesday, was "going astray, far astray."

With modifications chiefly on matters relating to the taxes paid by oil companies and by other companies with international operations, the new bill greatly resembled the one it had displaced with respect to the very provisions Mansfield was complaining about.

Mansfield estimated that the tax cuts and benefit payments in his bill would total $28 billion. More refined estimates made later by staff experts put the total at more than $31 billion.

Major Features

In addition to the special $100-payment to Social Security and railroad retirement beneficiaries and to the aged, blind and disabled who receive federal welfare payments, the Mansfield substitute contained the following major features:

—The rebate of 1974 taxes would be increased from 10% contained in the bill passed by the House to 12%. The maximum rebate, which would go to persons with total incomes of no more than $20,000, would be $240, instead of the $200 in the house bill. The minimum payment would be $120, instead of $100. Persons whose 1974 tax payments were less than $120 would get back whatever they paid.

—The tax credit of 5% against the purchase price of a residence, up to a maximum credit of $2,000, would be applied only to new residential units, not existing ones as in the Senate Finance Committee's bill.

—The loss-carryback provisions of the committee's bill, which would give more generous tax relief than at present to both individuals and corporations that had suffered losses, were scrapped in the Mansfield bill.

The substitution of a $200-per-person tax credit for the present $750 personal exemption, as contained in the Senate committee's bill, was kept unchanged in the Mansfield version. This would benefit single persons with incomes of up to $12,000 and married couples with incomes of up to $16,000, but would not increase taxes for anyone, since those who would save money by continuing to use the $750 personal exemption could do so.

Also unchanged from the committee's version in the Mansfield substitution was the reduction of the tax rate in each of the first four income brackets, a change that would bring a tax reduction of $40 to most individuals.

Provisions Unchanged

All of the provisions of the committee's bill affecting the taxes paid by businesses (except for the loss caryback provision) were also unchanged in the Mansfield substitute.

The Senate spent the bulk of the day arguing about the taxation of the oil industry.

The upshot of more than a dozen roll-call votes was approval of proposals that would disallow the depletion allowance on the income from oil production in excess of 2,000 barrels a day or its equivalent in natural gas.

On Tuesday, the Senate had put the cutoff point at 3,000 barrels.

As it now stands, the Senate's version of the depletion repeal would increase oil company taxes by about $1.8 billion.

Home, Builders Show Features 'Everything'

Everything including the kitchen sink is featured at the 1975 Greater Home and Builders Show which opened Thursday at Pershing Auditorium.

The very new in home building and furnishings, as well as the items used in great grandmother's day, are featured, including a display of early telephones and an antique heating stove.

The elaborate heating stove of the turn of the century is contrasted with a solar heating unit which is still in the experimental stages.

According to Everett Green, one of the exhibitors, the old stove which he has had rechromed where the nickel plating had worn is similar to a 1902 model in the Sears catalogue which listed for $26.15.

Also on display is a solar heating unit which was developed by a Mead man and is designed to make use of the heat from the sun to conserve energy.

Two contests sponsored by the Lincoln Homebuilders' Association drew considerable interest from high school students who submitted their efforts in model home design and interior design for judgment.

John L. Hamilton, a Lincoln Southeast High senior, won the first-place award of $150 in the model home design, while Mark Lionberger of Lincoln Northeast took top honors and won $150 in the interior design contest.

Other winners were: Toby Beach of East, second place, and Steven W. Weber of Lincoln Southeast, third place, in the model home contest; Dena Douglas, of Lincoln Northeast, second place, and Kris Rhodes of Lincoln Northeast, third place, in the interior design competition.

Second-place winners received a $100 award; third-place winners received $75 in each of the two contests.

Ford Expected To Name Spying Probes Assistant

©The New York Times

Washington — President Ford is expected to appoint a special assistant in the White House to deal with the proliferating investigations of the United States intelligence community, reliable White House sources have disclosed.

The main responsibility for advising the President on his administration's response to the growing number of investigations would rest with a presidential counsel with subcabinet rank, the sources said.

The White House at first considered creating a "virtual czar" over the intelligence community and thus limiting the power of William E. Colby, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, several sources said, but the President settled on handling the matters within the present White House structure.

The leading contender for this crucial assignment is Roderick Hills, chairman of the board of the Republic Corporation, a lawyer and husband of Carla Hills, secretary of housing and urban development.

Second Post

The White House is also expected to create a second post within the counsel's office to handle day-to-day liaison with Capitol Hill and intelligence agencies.

The leading candidate for this position is James Wilderotter, associate deputy attorney general, a former HUD official.

According to key sources familiar with the Capitol Hill inquiries, the assignment could well determine the whole atmosphere of the relations between President Ford and the congressional investigating committees. "The Senate committee," one source pointed out, "has asked the President to instruct federal agencies to cooperate fully. The President said he would deal with the requests on a case-by-case basis. This is the man who will carry the ball on each of those cases."

An administration source described the job as one calling for "a diplomat — a man who can sit down with Church and Tower (senators Frank Church and John G. Tower) and work out what they need."

Another source said that when "push comes to shove, this is the man who will advise the President on whether to comply with the Hill or use his executive privilege."

Wrestling For Weeks

According to White House sources, the President and his senior aides have been wrestling for weeks with how to deal with increasingly sweeping congressional investigations. At one point, these sources said, consideration was given to setting up a post that would have virtual command over the intelligence community.

The creation of that job, several sources said, "would have the effect of firing Bill Colby," since under the 1947 law that created the CIA, the director is the senior official of the entire intelligence community. The idea was rejected and the White House began the more difficult task of finding someone to represent the White House in the investigations.

"Whoever gets this job will make a lot of enemies, said one powerful Republican lawyer. "It is a no-win position."

LT&T Directors Vote Dividends For Common, Preferred Stocks

The Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. board of directors Wednesday declared a 40-cent dividend payable April 10 to common stockholders.

January's quarterly dividend was also 40 cents. A regular quarterly dividend on preferred stock was also declared.

LT&T President Thomas C. Woods Jr. told stockholders at the annual meeting operating revenues for 1974 were $45,151,977, an 11% increase over 1973. Woods said, however, that operating expenses, including taxes and interest, had increased by 12.6%, to more than $28 million.

Net earnings in 1974 were $5,743,371, compared to $5,123,002 in 1973.

Woods said nearly $24.5 million was spent in 1974 on construction projects to meet demands for more and better telephone service. That was a 44.4% increase over 1973 construction.

LT&T gained 13,443 telephones in 1974, with a total of 265,134 in service at the end of the year. The growth rate has begun to slow in 1975, Woods said. As of March 1, the company had gained 2,209 telephones, compared to a gain of 3,762 during that time last year.

James Geist, vice president of operations, said despite the wide range of internal programs to offset increasing costs, inflation caused jumps in both labor and equipment costs. On Feb. 28, LT&T filed an application with the Nebraska Public Service Commission to raise local service rates and service connection charges.

Geist estimated that basic rates for both business and residence customers would increase between 10-15% if the request is approved, netting $2.8 million in additional revenues.

Company directors re-elected at the meeting of stockholders were:

Frank H. Woods, Thomas C. Woods Jr., James Geist, George B. Cook, William W. Cook, Edwin J. Faulkner, J. Taylor Greer, Hal Lainson, Carl W. Olson, Charles T. Stuart, Burnham Yates and Paul C. Schorr III.

Woods announced the retirement of Thomas H. Wake as a company director. Wake, former chairman of the board of the Jones National Bank, Seward, had been an LT&T director since 1956.

At the annual directors meeting which followed the stockholders meeting, the following corporate officials were re-elected:

Frank H. Woods, chairman of the board; Thomas C. Woods Jr., president; James Geist, vice president operations; Houghton Furr, vice president treasurer; Laurence Connealy, vice president controller; Donald R. Swanson, secretary and assistant treasurer, and Robert C. Halvorsen, assistant secretary.

Operating officials reappointed were:

Charles P. Arnold, second vice president commercial; Charles E. Connors, general plant superintendent; Roger K. Ghormley, chief planning engineer; Richard B. Hobson, general traffic superintendent; Kenneth E. Versaw, chief engineer, and Neal J. Westphal, personnel director.

First National Chairman Elected To Head DED

First National Bank of Lincoln board chairman Burnham Yates, 2900 Bonacum Drive, was elected chairman of the 11-member Advisory Committee of the Department of Economic Development (DED).

Yates, who succeeds the late Bennett S. Martin as chairman, is one of three men recently appointed to committee vacancies by Gov. J. J. Exon.

Yates joined First National in 1945 and was president from 1950-1969.

He is also a director of the Lincoln Industrial Development Corp., the Lincoln Center Development Corp. and the Nebraska Resources Foundation.

The other appointees are Charles Davey of Scottsbluff and William A. Spitzenberger of Omaha.

Davey owns Davey Co., a Scottsbluff real estate firm.

Spitzenberger directs economic development for Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha. He is president of the Business Development Corp. of Nebraska.

Earth's Probable Life Already Half Used Up

Houston (UPI) — Two geophysicists Thursday said the earth has used half of its probable lifespan and will be as inactive and cold as the moon in another 4 billion years.

M. N. Toksoz of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and John W. Minear of the Johnson Space Center said the earth's large size has kept it warm and active for 4.6 billion years.

"The size of the planet, more than any other factor, seems to control its evolution state and the present day thermal state," Toksoz said.

When the planet becomes inactive geologically it won't produce new minerals or release carbon dioxide into the air, but since the sun is the prime source of life, earth will probably still sustain life, they said.

They said in an interview they compared earth, Venus, Mars, Mercury and the moon and believe the planets' sizes are responsible for the difference in activity and changes.

The changes, called differentiation, consist mainly of forming a core and then other layers such as the earth's mantle and crust. On the passive moon and Mercury, the only changes are surface changes as a result of meteors striking, Toksoz said.

"When we look at the earth and moon we see two totally different pictures," Toksoz said. "On earth, it looks like the differentiation has been going on since the beginning and is still going strong now."

Venus also is still very active. There are volcanos, earthquakes and continental changes on both planets. Mars had volcanic activity sometime within the last 500 million years, but the geophysicists said they were not sure if the planet was still changing.

Gen. Bradley Still Serious After Stroke

Los Angeles (UPI) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only living five star general, was in 'serious' condition Thursday from a cerebral stroke but a hospital spokesman said he had "shown a decided and encouraging improvement."

Bradley, 82, was "conscious and resting comfortably," the spokesman at UCLA Medical Center said. But he emphasized that Bradley's general condition remained "serious."

The soft-spoken but tough Missourian, who took pride in his identification as the "GI's general" during World War II, was admitted to the hospital early Monday. At the time, his doctor said, Bradley's condition was "very serious."

But his condition report Thursday was more encouraging.

"General of the Army Omar N. Bradley has shown decided and encouraging improvement," a hospital spokesman said.

Physicians End New York Strike

©The New York Times

New York — The nation's first major physicians' strike ended here Thursday night, with an agreement that sent interns and residents back at once to their regular duties in 21 affected hospitals. It was the fourth day of a walkout that sought to shorten drawn-out work schedules.

The agreement was on a reinstated offer made by the League of Voluntary Hospitals at 3:30 a.m., the first ever by hospitals in collective bargaining here to limit working hours — normally now to provide that there should not be more than one night's duty in a three-day period.

OPPD Okays Fuel Reload Contract

Omaha (AP) — Meeting in regular session Thursday, the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) board of directors authorized a fuel fabrication contract for the district's Fort Calhoun Station, and awarded contracts for more than $5 million in work at the new Nebraska City Station.

The board authorized a contract with the Exxon Nuclear Co., Inc., of Bellevue, Wash. The contract will amount to $8,850,000 for the fabrication of five nuclear fuel reloads for the Fort Calhoun, and has a $10,550,000 option for an additional five reloads.

In action involving the Nebraska City plant, the board awarded a contract for $3,107,000 to the Allen Sherman Hoff, Co., Divison of Ecolaire, Inc. The Wynnewood, Pa., firm will manufacture an ash handling system for the plant.

Koppers Co., Inc., of Elmhurst, Ill., was awarded an $810,123 contract to produce materials needed in the construction of a 345,000-volt transmission line for the station.

And, the Dresser Crane, Hoist & Tower Division of Dresser Industries, Inc., Muskegon, Mich., was awarded a $401,620 contract to manufacture of a crane for the station's turbine room. The crane will be used during the construction of the plant and for maintenance during operation.

The board also approved three change orders for work at the Nebraska City Station.

In other action concerning the Nebraska City plant, the board delayed for one week a decision on a contract for material, labor, equipment and supervision related to the development of the 575,000 kilowatt station.

Nuclear fuel fabrication involves the processing of uranium into pellet form, and the insertion of the pellets into rods for nuclear power plant fuel assemblies.

BN To Lay Off 90 In Lincoln

An estimated 90 Burlington Northern employes in the Lincoln area will be laid off by the end of the week, a Burlington official said Thursday.

R. L. Merklin, Burlington vice president, said the indefinite layoffs were necessary "simply because of a slowdown in the economy as it affects our industry."

Those affected by the cutback were carmen, track maintenance workers and clerical employes.

Retired Persons Name Officers

The Northeast Branch of the American Association of Retired Persons has elected Mrs. Earl Flowers president.

The group, meeting at the Havelock Christian Church, also elected Glen Jefferson, vice president; Mrs. Rosewell Ludden, secretary; Mrs. Nel Breeden, treasurer; and Maurice McAvoy, chairman of the nominating committee.

Directors elected at the meeting were Mrs. Nel Breeden, Henry Sterkel, Mrs. Raymond Edwards, Mrs. Ralph Czapanskiy, and Mrs. Carl Alquist.

Alco To Buy Omaha Manufacturer

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha-based distributor of glassware, containers and materials handling equipment will be sold to a Pennsylvania firm under a preliminary agreement announced Wednesday.

The agreement calls for the sale of S. Riekes & Sons Inc. to Alco Standard Corp. of Valley Forge, Pa. Under terms of the agreement, Alco will purchase all outstanding shares of Riekes for the equivalent of $11.40 a share, or about $12 million.

Alco is a diversified manufacturing, mining and distributing firm.

The Alco purchase would be accomplished in two stages, officials said. Alco would acquire 621,500 shares held by the principal Riekes shareholders, who control about 60% of the outstanding stock. The payment would be 200,000 Alco common shares and $5.1 million in cash.

After purchase of the initial 621,500 shares, Alco would offer to purchase remaining Riekes stock for $11.40 a share, bringing the total purchase price to about $12 million.

Alco stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange. The firm had sales of $1.4 billion in its latest fiscal year.

Riekes sales for the latest fiscal year were $57 million. The firm employs about 400 persons.

PROBLEMS? PROBLEMS? PROBLEMS?

Is there some way we can help?

Every day we help solve problems for hundreds of people.

We do it by providing a low-cost way for people to communicate with each other—a way that must work, otherwise so many people wouldn't take advantage of it.

We are talking about the Classified Ad pages where the hundreds of ads are all doing their work daily, many of them solving problems for people just like you.

How, you say, can a Classified Ad solve my problem?

Since we are not sure what your problem is, we can only point out some of the problems others have used Classified to solve. Problems like:

Disposing of items which are valuable but for which you have no further need.

Finding a better job.

Finding more suitable living quarters.

Locating hard-to-find items which you need.

Finding a suitable tenant for your vacant rental quarters.

Finding reliable people to perform needed service or repairs.

Hiring a needed employee.

Finding good pre-owned articles which can be purchased at a worthwhile saving.

Contacting the person who has found an article you have lost.

These are all problems which can be solved, along with many more, when people have a means to communicate with each other. Get in the Classified Ad habit. Let our problem solvers help you communicate.

Patty Hearst Sighted By Colorado Rancher

. . . Sheriff Informs FBI

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — The sheriff of a rural county south of Denver said Thursday night he believed fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst had been in the area last week based on statements from a rancher.

Sheriff John Vernetti of Fremont County said the description was provided by a 50-year-old rancher who told him he took Miss Hearst to lunch last Wednesday or Thursday.

Vernetti said he kept the FBI informed of the case and worked with its agents. But he declined to give details.

FBI agents in Colorado had no comment.

Since the newspaper heiress was dragged from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment Feb. 4, 1974, there have been numerous reports of Miss Hearst being seen in all areas of the country. Few have given investigators a lead on her whereabouts.

Vernetti said he believed the rancher and said he had reason to believe the woman identified as Miss Hearst left his area for Albuquerque, N.M.

"At first I thought it was a wild goose chase, but decided there was more to it than a hoax," the sheriff said. He concluded "we do have positive I.D. of the young lady at this time as being Miss Hearst."

The sheriff refused to identify the rancher, whom he said did not immediately report the sighting because he feared for his life.

Vernetti said the rancher went into a local restaurant in Penrose, a small town on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, for lunch last Wednesday or Thursday.

He "sat down and struck up a conversation with the girl, who was alone," Vernetti said. "She talked him into buying her lunch." The sheriff said he did not talk with the rancher until Tuesday after getting an anonymous tip that the rancher might have information.

Based on the rancher's statement, Vernetti said he staked out a farmhouse in the town of Penrose three days ago, but denied reports that a raid was conducted.

Penrose is about 14 miles from Canon City, which is about 100 miles south of Denver. Miss Hearst's younger sister Anne attends Regis College in Denver under an assumed name.

A red car identified by the rancher as one in which Miss Hearst had been traveling was found in a repair shop and the shop owner said the driver told him she was going to Albuquerque.

The rancher told the sheriff that the woman identified as Patricia, another woman and two men were in Penrose again Sunday for a meal. He did not join them.

The sheriff Thursday night said the other woman was believed to have left Fremont County "either last night or this morning" for Albuquerque.

He said the rancher, who identified a pendant Miss Hearst was wearing, feared for his life and did not contact authorities immediately. A friend arranged a meeting between the rancher and the sheriff's officers.

The sheriff described the pendant as "an SLA-type pendant with a 13-headed snake, or whatever that is."

Christina Onassis Seeks Rest; Heiress Said Dreadfully Lonely

Geneva (UPI) — Christina Onassis, who is expected to inherit most of the wealth amassed by her father Aristotle Onassis, flew to Switzerland with her finance Thursday in search of peace and rest.

Onassis, who was married to President John F. Kennedy's widow Jacqueline, died in Paris last Saturday of a lung infection. He was buried Tuesday in the cemetery on his private island of Skorpios in the Ionian Sea.

Christina, 24, "is desperately looking for quiet and if she can't find it here she will leave again," a close family friend said.

"She lost her brother, then her mother and now her father in such a short time and is dreadfully lonely and cannot cope with being chased any more," the friend said.

Reports from Athens and London said Christina flew to Geneva for a private reading of her father's will at the Banque des Depots (Deposit Bank), which Onassis owned.

Friends said, however, that this was incorrect and that she came to Switzerland with her fiance Peter Goulandris, son of another Greek shipowner, Bazil Goulandris, for "a few days of peace and rest."

A close friend of Christian said she will marry Goulandris after the mourning period — six months, according to Greek tradition — for her father is over.

"The wedding was actually scheduled for April but had to be postponed because of her father's death," the source said.

Mrs. Onassis was in Paris and the family friends here said she has no plans to come to Swizerland.

Patty Hearst Sighted By Colorado Rancher

. . . Sheriff Informs FBI

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — The sheriff of a rural county south of Denver said Thursday night he believed fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst had been in the area last week based on statements from a rancher.

Sheriff John Vernetti of Fremont County said the description was provided by a 50-year-old rancher who told him he took Miss Hearst to lunch last Wednesday or Thursday.

Vernetti said he kept the FBI informed of the case and worked with its agents. But he declined to give details.

FBI agents in Colorado had no comment.

Since the newspaper heiress was dragged from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment Feb. 4, 1974, there have been numerous reports of Miss Hearst being seen in all areas of the country. Few have given investigators a lead on her whereabouts.

Vernetti said he believed the rancher and said he had reason to believe the woman identified as Miss Hearst left his area for Albuquerque, N.M.

"At first I thought it was a wild goose chase, but decided there was more to it than a hoax," the sheriff said. He concluded "we do have positive I.D. of the young lady at this time as being Miss Hearst."

The sheriff refused to identify the rancher, whom he said did not immediately report the sighting because he feared for his life.

Vernetti said the rancher went into a local restaurant in Penrose, a small town on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, for lunch last Wednesday or Thursday.

He "sat down and struck up a conversation with the girl, who was alone," Vernetti said. "She talked him into buying her lunch." The sheriff said he did not talk with the rancher until Tuesday after getting an anonymous tip that the rancher might have information.

Based on the rancher's statement, Vernetti said he staked out a farmhouse in the town of Penrose three days ago, but denied reports that a raid was conducted.

Penrose is about 14 miles from Canon City, which is about 100 miles south of Denver. Miss Hearst's younger sister Anne attends Regis College in Denver under an assumed name.

A red car identified by the rancher as one in which Miss Hearst had been traveling was found in a repair shop and the shop owner said the driver told him she was going to Albuquerque.

The rancher told the sheriff that the woman identified as Patricia, another woman and two men were in Penrose again Sunday for a meal. He did not join them.

The sheriff Thursday night said the other woman was believed to have left Fremont County "either last night or this morning" for Albuquerque.

He said the rancher, who identified a pendant Miss Hearst was wearing, feared for his life and did not contact authorities immediately. A friend arranged a meeting between the rancher and the sheriff's officers.

The sheriff described the pendant as "an SLA-type pendant with a 13-headed snake, or whatever that is."

Christina Onassis Seeks Rest; Heiress Said Dreadfully Lonely

Geneva (UPI) — Christina Onassis, who is expected to inherit most of the wealth amassed by her father Aristotle Onassis, flew to Switzerland with her finance Thursday in search of peace and rest.

Onassis, who was married to President John F. Kennedy's widow Jacqueline, died in Paris last Saturday of a lung infection. He was buried Tuesday in the cemetery on his private island of Skorpios in the Ionian Sea.

Christina, 24, "is desperately looking for quiet and if she can't find it here she will leave again," a close family friend said.

"She lost her brother, then her mother and now her father in such a short time and is dreadfully lonely and cannot cope with being chased any more," the friend said.

Reports from Athens and London said Christina flew to Geneva for a private reading of her father's will at the Banque des Depots (Deposit Bank), which Onassis owned.

Friends said, however, that this was incorrect and that she came to Switzerland with her fiance Peter Goulandris, son of another Greek shipowner, Bazil Goulandris, for "a few days of peace and rest."

A close friend of Christian said she will marry Goulandris after the mourning period — six months, according to Greek tradition — for her father is over.

"The wedding was actually scheduled for April but had to be postponed because of her father's death," the source said.

Mrs. Onassis was in Paris and the family friends here said she has no plans to come to Swizerland.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Friday

For relating beautiful experiences, call on Pisces. The native perceives what is subtle, can weave through a labyrinth of webs and emerge with a flash of infinite wisdom. Being close to Pisces can result in a kind of exalted intoxication. Now, go out and find yourself a Piscean!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Weight of added responsibility becomes apparent. Family involvements, business situations are emphasized. Cancer, Capricorn persons dominate scene. Check costs, building security and structure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Highlight flexibility. Short trip could resolve dilemma. What appears an obstacle can easily be surmounted. Be willing to go around as well as directly over the top. Message will become increasingly clear.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You could be revising, checking details, studying fine print. Money is involved. Refuse to give up something for a mere promise. Obtain written agreement. Otherwise, you could lose both money and a friend. Be grownup!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Those who claim you need "more experience" may be forced to eat their words. Some changes occur which provide you with platform, greater chance to express yourself. You also will have additional assignment or responsibility.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Settle longstanding problem which involves family and property. You can do so in diplomatic manner. Stand tall — but be mature enough to make intelligent concessions. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio are involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Heavy-handed method by friend could create confusion. Strive for balanced point-of-view. Don't rush to judgment. Individual in question is suffering from financial embarrassment. Be considerate — don't compound your friend's error.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Persons in authority seem to desire your counsel. That's fine — but you are no charity. Be aware of your worth. Your own self esteem is at stake. Unless you set a price and stick to it, you will be taken for granted. It's up to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finish what you start. Concentrate on messages, distribution and image. You can get green light from key person — but you will have to take roundabout steps. Means the usual sources won't bear fruit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New approach is necessary, especially where mate, partner and money are concerned. Strive to create your own style. If you insist on what appears a safe course, you will pay an inflated price. Leo, Aquarius are involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you stick out your chin, someone will land a knockout punch. Means cycle is such that you do best now on sidelines. Wait for call rather than volunteer. There are persons who have your number and are waiting to pull rug out from under you. Get firm grip —hang on!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Light touch gets best results. Means don't insist, force, cajole. Practical matters dominate, including employment and diet. Gemini, Sagittarius are likely to be in picture. A letter, which seems disconnected, could be important.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): All indications point to intense involvement. Member of opposite sex plays key role. Nothing now is lukewarm — it is all or nothing. Relationship you took for granted could explode in your face. Make up your mind or give up — do it or get out.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are entering new phase of your life. You will be free and independent; July will be your most significant month. Leo, Aquarius persons are in your life and will remain. What you feel was lost is actually a gain — a proverbial blessing in disguise. You are inventive, sensitive and not everyone's cup of tea.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Light touch gets best results. Means don't insist, force, cajole. Practical matters dominate, including employment and diet. Gemini, Sagittarius are likely to be in picture. A letter, which seems disconnected, could be important.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): All indications point to intense involvement. Member of opposite sex plays key role. Nothing now is lukewarm — it is all or nothing. Relationship you took for granted could explode in your face. Make up your mind or give up — do it or get out.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are entering new phase of your life. You will be free and independent; July will be your most significant month. Leo, Aquarius persons are in your life and will remain. What you feel was lost is actually a gain — a proverbial blessing in disguise. You are inventive, sensitive and not everyone's cup of tea.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
